Featherbed Talks Collapse

Flood Damage Mounts In 5 States

More Areas Threatened By Streams

Cleanup Starts; Death Toll Reaches 14; Six Missing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thousands of families driven from their homes by devastating floods in five states prepared to return Wednesday as massive cleanup operations were launched in areas where floodwaters began receding.

But the worst appeared yet to come for some sections which still lay in the path of rampaging rivers and streams.

Parts of southeastern Kentucky and southwestern West Virginia, which appeared hardest hit by flooding, were declared disaster areas by President Kennedy. Sections of Tennessee and Virginia were being considered by the White House for similar action.

Fourteen deaths were attributed to floods and six persons were unaccounted for. Six died in West Virginia, four in Tennessee, two in Kentucky, and one each in Virginia and Alabama.

Evacuation of Prestonsburg and Paintsville, Ky., began as the Big Sandy River approached a crest above flood stage. The Cumberland River threatened to overflow its banks at Barbourville and Williamsburg.

Begin Mopping Up

However, other Kentucky towns which were hit hardest by flooding Tuesday—Harlan, Hazard and Pikeville — began mopping up. Workers said the cleanup was difficult because of unusual amounts of debris and silt.

Red Cross headquarters in Washington estimated that about 7,000 families, totaling more than 30,000 persons, suffered some loss in Kentucky, West Virginia and Virginia. Robert C. Edson, disaster services director, said the figures may go still higher and the disaster might approach the proportions of the January 1957 floods in the same general area.

Had No Warning

Rain-swollen rivers and streams poured out of the Appalachian Mountains on Monday night and early Tuesday, catching many valley residents by surprise. Some said they had no warning other than the sound of rushing water.

Flood waters receded rapidly in West Virginia as the body of the state's sixth victim was found in debris at Logan. The Guyandotte River had dropped to 9.3 feet below flood stage at Logan early Wednesday.

At Lynchburg, Va., the James River reached a flood-stage crest of 18.5 feet — the highest mark recorded in 28 years. Other spots along the James expected flooding, as the river surged out of the mountains toward Richmond.

Three persons were missing on a canoe trip on the flooded Jackson River at Covington, Va.

The Tennessee River jumped its banks at Chattanooga, Tenn., for the first time in more than six years, but only unoccupied land was flooded.

Whole Family Lost

Tributaries of the Tennessee appeared to be receding after causing widespread flooding throughout the eastern part of the state.

A family of four drowned Tuesday when the Sequatchie River washed away their house near Jasper, northwest of Chattanooga.

Gov. Frank Clement asked for federal assistance for the hardest-hit eastern Tennessee counties.

In northern Alabama, the Flint and Tennessee rivers were receding, but the Paint Rock River threatened the community of New Hope where one house was reported under water.

Low-lying farm lands flooded near Huntsville, Ala., when the Tennessee River climbed to 10 feet above flood stage.

There was no immediate estimate but heavy property damage was reported in all areas and was expected to run into millions of dollars.

Red China Invites K To Peking

Summit Session Of Leaders Could Air Differences

MOSCOW (AP) — Mao Tze-tung has invited Premier Khrushchev to Peking to discuss their differences "on a footing of real equality."

At the same time, the Chinese Communists agreed to suspend their attacks on Khrushchev's leadership. Thousands of angry words have flowed like a torrent from Peking in the past few weeks in the dispute threatening to split the world Communist movement.

But the Chinese showed no signs of giving in on their demands that the Kremlin drop its talk of peaceful coexistence with the West and push sternly ahead in the drive to communize the world regardless of risks of nuclear war.

Received Letter

The suggestion for a summit conference of the leaders of the two largest Communist powers was announced Wednesday by the official news agency Tass. It was contained in a letter, dated March 8, from the Chinese party to the Soviet Communist Central Committee.

There was no indication that Khrushchev had accepted the invitation and the Chinese note seemed to say Mao would not come to Moscow. But it said a delegation might be sent here.

While the letter was from the Chinese Communist party Central Committee, a Peking broadcast said the Khrushchev visit was first broached by Mao on Feb. 28 at a meeting with Soviet Ambassador Stepan Chervonenko.

Spring Conference

The Chinese leader suggested that Khrushchev stop off in Peking en route to Cambodia. Khrushchev is expected to visit that Southeast Asian nation this spring.

The letter said: "If this is not convenient for you (Khrushchev), the Central Committee of the CPSU (Communist party of the Soviet Union) can send to Peking a delegation headed by another responsible comrade, or we can send a delegation to Moscow."

Westerners here believe that for settlement of the dispute Khrushchev and Mao will have to meet face to face. Anything lower than that level would offer little hope of settling the quarrel, they said.

The Chinese suggested that after the Mao-Khrushchev summit meeting all Communist nations be called into a conference.

Unions Consider Protest Strike Over Layoffs

White House Intervention Appears Almost Certainty

By EARL AYKROID

CHICAGO (AP)—Railroad-union negotiations on the "featherbedding" issue collapsed Wednesday, raising the possibility of a nationwide rail strike and quick White House intervention.

A conference of leaders of the five operating labor organizations and representatives of the rail lines broke down just 1½ hours after it started.

James E. Wolfe, chief of the management's negotiating team, announced that the railroads will move as soon as possible to make sweeping changes in the work rules to eliminate what they call "featherbedding."

And the unions, embracing 200,000 members, have stated such action would trigger a walkout.

"The nation cannot stand a strike of railroad employes," "Wolfe said.

He said the breakoff in negotiations — for the third time — should lead to appointment of a fact-finding board by President Kennedy. That would delay any strike for at least 60 days.

National Interest

The Kennedy administration already has made known that the "national interest is very vitally involved." Arthur J. Goldberg spelled it out that way when he was secretary of labor.

The parley negotiations involve 65,000 jobs.

Negotiating teams for both sides had expressed optimism over the possibility of a settlement.

But they appeared to be wide apart on ground rules. The railroads wanted to conduct the talks within the framework of the report of a presidential railroad commission made Feb. 28, 1962. That report accepted some of management's demands. The unions wanted "everything on the table" bargaining—including their own demands.

Eliminate 40,000 Jobs

The commission recommended elimination of the jobs of 40,000 firemen on diesel locomotives in yard and freight service. It suggested that 13,000 of those firemen with less than 10 years seniority be dismissed with up to 12 months notice and severance pay. The 27,000 others would stay on the payroll until they retired, died or quit.

Wolfe told newsmen that the union negotiators had refused to give any consideration to that recommendation.

He said the labor leaders wanted to go back to Nov. 2, 1959, when the negotiations began. On that date the rail lines asked for revision of old work rules. They claimed such rules cost them $600 million a year.

Court Upholds Rails

Under the proposed revisions, 65,000 or more of the union men could be let out gradually.

The unions—engineers, firemen, trainmen, brakemen and switchmen — made their counter demands Sept. 7, 1960. They included wage improvements and weekly and monthly pay guarantees.

Negotiations got under way April 2, 1962. Management broke them off twice—May 17, 1962, and June 22, 1962. This time, as on those occasions, management accused the unions of stalling.

The railroads accepted, but the unions rejected the presidential commission's report.

The brotherhoods tried to stop the rules revisions in the courts. But the U.S. Supreme Court on March 4 upheld management's right to make the changes.

The rewriting of rules can't be done, however, until the court mandate is received. It is expected about the end of March.

PROMOTED—Roger Hilsman Jr., was appointed yesterday by President Kennedy, as assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs. A native of Waco, Texas, he is now director of the State Department's bureau of intelligence and research.

FCC Postpones Rate Hike On Wire Services

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission announced Wednesday an indefinite postponement of its order authorizing rate increases for the private use of leased communications lines.

The commission authorized the increases Jan. 29 after a seven-year investigation. It directed the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and Western Union to file papers to put the higher rates into effect May 1.

In Wednesday's action, the FCC said the order would be stayed while it considers petitions for reconsideration.

Reconsideration was requested by press interests who had opposed the AT&T and Western Union applications for rate increases.

The American Newspaper Publishers Association, which was among those asking reconsideration, said in a Feb. 15 statement some users would pay up to 150 per cent for private line service under the new tariff schedules. The ANPA noted that AT&T had estimated the increases would average about 19 per cent to press users and 2.1 per cent for commercial users, while charges for governmental users under the new tariffs would be 7.8 per cent lower.

British Agree On NATO Navy Nuclear Force

LONDON (AP)—U.S. Ambassador Livingston T. Merchant won British support Wednesday for a North Atlantic Treaty Organization navy manned by crews of mixed nationalities and armed with the latest Polaris missiles.

In exchange, Merchant voiced the U.S. government's backing for a British plan for early creation of a NATO nuclear force built from separate national contingents, which could go into operation before the U.S.-proposed fleet.

A communique, issued after Merchant had two days of talks with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, Foreign Secretary Lord Home and other British leaders, pledged the two governments to move forward on both projects.

Both have the same goal: to give all the members of NATO a greater feeling of participation in nuclear strategy and to head off the organization of independent national nuclear forces by the West Germans and others.

U.S. Denies Firing On Red Fishing Ship

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States flatly denied Wednesday night that any U.S. naval vessel fired on a Soviet fishing ship last Friday 70 miles east of Norfolk, Va., as Moscow charged earlier Wednesday.

A statement issued by the State Department after a day-long investigation said there was naval firing practice within the area east of Norfolk but that the nearest surface ship was 12 miles away.

The statement replied to a Moscow protest charging that three U.S. warships fired dummy shells at a Soviet Trawler. The protest denounced the firing as "an act of sheer wantonness which could have grave consequences."

The U.S. statement said:

"A thorough investigation has positively established that the Soviet protest of an alleged firing of a U.S. naval vessel on a Soviet trawler 70 miles east of Norfolk on March 8 is without foundation."

The statement did not identify the surface ship which it described as having been in the general area and a state department spokesman said he did not know whether it was a Soviet vessel.

But the statement asserted that antiaircraft ammunition being used by the nearest destroyer had a maximum range of seven miles, which it said was five miles short of the distance to the surface ship.

Nathan Leopold Wins Release From Parole

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Nathan Leopold, a man who has spent his adult life atoning for a crime committed in his youth, won his release from parole Wednesday.

The Illinois Pardon and Parole Board discharged Leopold in line with its policy of granting full freedom to life termers who successfully complete five years parole.

Leopold, 58, took up residence in Puerto Rico to work as a hospital orderly after his release from Stateville Penitentiary at Joliet, Ill. His discharge from parole will become effective when Leopold receives the board's notice sometime next week.

Leopold was granted parole on March 13, 1958, after serving 33 years, 6 months and 2 days for the 1924 thrill-slaying of 14-year-old Bobby Franks.

Leopold and a companion, Richard Loeb, were sentenced to life terms for the murder, plus 99 years for kidnapping. The guilty plea was entered at the recommendation of famed attorney Clarence Darrow whose impassioned defense of the pair is credited with saving them from a death penalty.

Leopold was 19 and Loeb 18 at the time of their crime. Both were members of wealthy Chicago families as was Bobby Franks whom the pair picked at random to be the victim of a "perfect murder."

A pair of spectacles dropped by Leopold at the culvert where they dumped their victim's bludgeoned body led to their arrest.

Sentenced to identical terms the two would-be "master criminals" followed divergent paths in prison. Loeb was slashed to death in 1936 by a fellow prisoner who claimed Loeb tried to induce him

Italian Troopers Capture "The Wolf"

AVELLINO, Italy (AP)—The law has caught up with Vito Nardiello, who spread terror for 17 years in the bleak hill country near Naples.

A posse of 200 Italian federal troopers captured the bandit at dawn Wednesday as he was slipping into a little house on the outskirts of Volutrara Irpini.

Nardiello, who commanded a partisan execution platoon in wartime was wanted for seven slayings and 19 holdups. His career of violence earned him the name of "The Wolf of the Irpines"—from the region where the Irpini tribes lived in pre-Roman times.

Kennedy Says Prosperity Is Up To Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy said Wednesday the country will slide into another recession unless Congress heeds the lessons of the Dwight D. Eisenhower administration.

The President said Congress is faced with decisions on tax cuts, budget slashing and the debt ceiling.

"Economic history—specifically the history of 1957-60, which produced two recessions from which the economy never wholly recovered—clearly warns us now that the wrong answer to each of these three questions would spell downturn for the American economy as a whole," he said.

In a speech to the Advertising Council, Kennedy said he spoke not as a partisan or blame-layer in urging favorable action on his economic program.

"The errors of a Republican administration and a Democratic Congress during those crucial years have been previously acknowledged by members of both parties," he said.

"I do not review them now to gain political advantage in hindsight, but to gain greater degree of foresight on the same problems that face us now."

Kennedy's linking of the federal budget and debt ceiling with his tax-cutting proposals seemed to reflect an effort to broaden the base of current debate on economic policy.

He contended that tax cuts alone—"We are not asking for an unprecedented tax cut, but for a program which will add only $2.7 billion to the next budget deficit," he said—are not enough.

He said "an unrealistic debt ceiling or budget cut today" would also cause a slowdown in the economy and ultimately another recession.

In 1957, he said, the federal government decided to "keep the debt

Ghashghaei Tribe In Iran To Be Attacked

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The government has ordered air and ground attacks against nomads of south Iran warring against the shah's land reform program. It ordered bombing runs against the tribes Thursday.

The military governor of southwestern Fars Province predicted the resistance would be snuffed out and its agitators hanged within 24 hours.

The announcement of Gen. Karim Varahram in Fars was the first real indication of any heavy resistance to the land reform program, approved in a January referendum by a 1,000-to-1 margin.

Targets of the government offensive are rebellious members of the Ghashghaei tribe, made up of about 200,000 cattle breeders who live in black woolen tents.

U.S.-supplied planes are expected to be used.

Opposition to the shah's program of sharing millions of acres of land with peasants has been small but loud. The program is opposed by religious leaders whose church land would be seized, landlords, the National Front party of former Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, and Communists.

Iron Miners Show Solidarity In Paris

PARIS (AP)—Iron miners from Lorraine rolled into Paris Monday to press their strike demands for more pay and assurance that foreign competition won't put them out of work.

The 2,000 miners from pits in eastern France were given a welcome by throngs who swarmed the streets of the largely Communist suburb of Pantin.

The iron miners have been on strike for two weeks. Their trip to Paris also demonstrated solidarity with 170,000 coal miners who kept up their 13-day-old strike despite government draft orders.

Red Sets Record For Delayed Jump

MOSCOW (AP) — Yevgeni Andreyev, holder of the record for delayed-opening parachute jumps — nearly 16 miles — was awarded Wednesday the title of Merited Master of Sports, highest sports award in the Soviet Union.

Andreyev jumped from a balloon Nov. 1 from 83,502 feet, falling 80,360 feet before opening his parachute. Pyotr Dolgov, who jumped with him, was killed.

Reds Reject U.S. Offer On Test Ban Pact

GENEVA (AP)—The United States offered the Soviet Union two concessions in detailed proposals Wednesday for inspection of a nuclear test ban. But the Russians quickly rejected the offer.

The U.S. plan, presented in the 17-nation disarmament conference by U.S. Ambassador Charles C. Stelle, would have provided that:

1. On-site inspection to determine whether a suspicious underground disturbance was an earthquake or a nuclear explosion would cover a maximum of 500 square kilometers — 193 square miles, instead of the 700 to 800 square kilometers the West has been demanding.

2. Each inspected country could exclude sensitive defense installations from areas subject to inspection, though any abuse of this right would leave the other side free to consider the treaty void and resume testing.

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin turned down the proposals as another device to "sabotage the discussion of a test ban by bringing up technical matters."

King Is On Visit

ALGIERS (AP) — Moroccan King Hassan II began a three-day state visit to Algeria on Wednesday. During his stay, Morocco and Algeria will sign a series of agreements covering financial and cultural relations.

Soviet Creates New Council On Economics

Coordinating Unit To Guide Industry And Construction

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government created a Supreme National Economic Council on Wednesday to run the nation's economy.

Tapped to head the new organ was Dimitry Ustinov, 55, a deputy premier formerly in charge of defense industries.

Ustinov was promoted to first deputy premier to go with his new job. Soviet Premier Khrushchev's other first deputies are Alexei Kosygin and Anastas I. Mikoyan.

A communique said the new council "will be the supreme state agency for the management of industry and construction in the country."

The Council of Ministers Presidium also announced the promotion of Leonid V. Smirnov to the rank of deputy premier.

Smirnov has been chairman of the State Committee for Defense Material since 1961 and presumably will take over supervision of defense industries from Ustinov now.

Establishment of the council capped a Khrushchev program for a sweeping reorganization of agricultural and industrial management that was approved by the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist party last November. It means another tightening of controls.

The effect is to swing still further from Khrushchev's 1957 experiment with a decentralized system of scattered regional economic councils, a system that failed to live up to expectations in curing Soviet farm and industrial ills.

Tass said the council will outrank all other Soviet economic bodies and will work directly under the Council of Ministers, Khrushchev's Cabinet.

The object, Tass said, is "further improving the guidance and the development of industry and construction and coordinating the activity of the State Planning Committee, the National Economic Council, the Committee for Construction and state specialized and production committees."

2 Fighters Crash

SAINT DIZIER, France (AP)—Two U.S. fighter planes, one from France and one from Germany, crashed near here Wednesday on maneuvers.

Officials said three persons were killed in the crashes. Identities were being withheld pending notification of relatives.

Reds Claim Plane Launched Missile

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union has a plane-launched missile that can be delivered to any point in the globe by a long-range bomber, Moscow radio reported Wednesday. The broadcast described the missile as shaped like a swept-wing fighter and called it "invulnerable to antiaircraft defense because of its speed and ceiling."

"The errors of a Republican administration and a Democratic Congress during those crucial years have been previously acknowledged by members of both parties," he said.

"I do not review them now to gain political advantage in hindsight, but to gain greater degree of foresight on the same problems that face us now."

Kennedy's linking of the federal budget and debt ceiling with his tax-cutting proposals seemed to reflect an effort to broaden the base of current debate on economic policy.

He contended that tax cuts alone—"We are not asking for an unprecedented tax cut, but for a program which will add only $2.7 billion to the next budget deficit," he said—are not enough.

He said "an unrealistic debt ceiling or budget cut today" would also cause a slowdown in the economy and ultimately another recession.

In 1957, he said, the federal government decided to "keep the debt

Soviet Creates New Council On Economics

Coordinating Unit To Guide Industry And Construction

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government created a Supreme National Economic Council on Wednesday to run the nation's economy.

Tapped to head the new organ was Dimitry Ustinov, 55, a deputy premier formerly in charge of defense industries.

Ustinov was promoted to first deputy premier to go with his new job. Soviet Premier Khrushchev's other first deputies are Alexei Kosygin and Anastas I. Mikoyan.

A communique said the new council "will be the supreme state agency for the management of industry and construction in the country."

The Council of Ministers Presidium also announced the promotion of Leonid V. Smirnov to the rank of deputy premier.

Smirnov has been chairman of the State Committee for Defense Material since 1961 and presumably will take over supervision of defense industries from Ustinov now.

Establishment of the council capped a Khrushchev program for a sweeping reorganization of agricultural and industrial management that was approved by the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist party last November. It means another tightening of controls.

The effect is to swing still further from Khrushchev's 1957 experiment with a decentralized system of scattered regional economic councils, a system that failed to live up to expectations in curing Soviet farm and industrial ills.

Tass said the council will outrank all other Soviet economic bodies and will work directly under the Council of Ministers, Khrushchev's Cabinet.

The object, Tass said, is "further improving the guidance and the development of industry and construction and coordinating the activity of the State Planning Committee, the National Economic Council, the Committee for Construction and state specialized and production committees."

Nathan Leopold Wins Release From Parole

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Nathan Leopold, a man who has spent his adult life atoning for a crime committed in his youth, won his release from parole Wednesday.

The Illinois Pardon and Parole Board discharged Leopold in line with its policy of granting full freedom to life termers who successfully complete five years parole.

Leopold, 58, took up residence in Puerto Rico to work as a hospital orderly after his release from Stateville Penitentiary at Joliet, Ill. His discharge from parole will become effective when Leopold receives the board's notice sometime next week.

Leopold was granted parole on March 13, 1958, after serving 33 years, 6 months and 2 days for the 1924 thrill-slaying of 14-year-old Bobby Franks.

Leopold and a companion, Richard Loeb, were sentenced to life terms for the murder, plus 99 years for kidnapping. The guilty plea was entered at the recommendation of famed attorney Clarence Darrow whose impassioned defense of the pair is credited with saving them from a death penalty.

Leopold was 19 and Loeb 18 at the time of their crime. Both were members of wealthy Chicago families as was Bobby Franks whom the pair picked at random to be the victim of a "perfect murder."

A pair of spectacles dropped by Leopold at the culvert where they dumped their victim's bludgeoned body led to their arrest.

Sentenced to identical terms the two would-be "master criminals" followed divergent paths in prison. Loeb was slashed to death in 1936 by a fellow prisoner who claimed Loeb tried to induce him

Ghashghaei Tribe In Iran To Be Attacked

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The government has ordered air and ground attacks against nomads of south Iran warring against the shah's land reform program. It ordered bombing runs against the tribes Thursday.

The military governor of southwestern Fars Province predicted the resistance would be snuffed out and its agitators hanged within 24 hours.

The announcement of Gen. Karim Varahram in Fars was the first real indication of any heavy resistance to the land reform program, approved in a January referendum by a 1,000-to-1 margin.

Targets of the government offensive are rebellious members of the Ghashghaei tribe, made up of about 200,000 cattle breeders who live in black woolen tents.

U.S.-supplied planes are expected to be used.

Opposition to the shah's program of sharing millions of acres of land with peasants has been small but loud. The program is opposed by religious leaders whose church land would be seized, landlords, the National Front party of former Premier Mohammed Mossadegh, and Communists.

Iron Miners Show Solidarity In Paris

PARIS (AP)—Iron miners from Lorraine rolled into Paris Monday to press their strike demands for more pay and assurance that foreign competition won't put them out of work.

The 2,000 miners from pits in eastern France were given a welcome by throngs who swarmed the streets of the largely Communist suburb of Pantin.

The iron miners have been on strike for two weeks. Their trip to Paris also demonstrated solidarity with 170,000 coal miners who kept up their 13-day-old strike despite government draft orders.

Reds Reject U.S. Offer On Test Ban Pact

GENEVA (AP)—The United States offered the Soviet Union two concessions in detailed proposals Wednesday for inspection of a nuclear test ban. But the Russians quickly rejected the offer.

The U.S. plan, presented in the 17-nation disarmament conference by U.S. Ambassador Charles C. Stelle, would have provided that:

1. On-site inspection to determine whether a suspicious underground disturbance was an earthquake or a nuclear explosion would cover a maximum of 500 square kilometers — 193 square miles, instead of the 700 to 800 square kilometers the West has been demanding.

2. Each inspected country could exclude sensitive defense installations from areas subject to inspection, though any abuse of this right would leave the other side free to consider the treaty void and resume testing.

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin turned down the proposals as another device to "sabotage the discussion of a test ban by bringing up technical matters."

British Agree On NATO Navy Nuclear Force

LONDON (AP)—U.S. Ambassador Livingston T. Merchant won British support Wednesday for a North Atlantic Treaty Organization navy manned by crews of mixed nationalities and armed with the latest Polaris missiles.

In exchange, Merchant voiced the U.S. government's backing for a British plan for early creation of a NATO nuclear force built from separate national contingents, which could go into operation before the U.S.-proposed fleet.

A communique, issued after Merchant had two days of talks with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, Foreign Secretary Lord Home and other British leaders, pledged the two governments to move forward on both projects.

Both have the same goal: to give all the members of NATO a greater feeling of participation in nuclear strategy and to head off the organization of independent national nuclear forces by the West Germans and others.

Italian Troopers Capture "The Wolf"

AVELLINO, Italy (AP)—The law has caught up with Vito Nardiello, who spread terror for 17 years in the bleak hill country near Naples.

A posse of 200 Italian federal troopers captured the bandit at dawn Wednesday as he was slipping into a little house on the outskirts of Volutrara Irpini.

Nardiello, who commanded a partisan execution platoon in wartime was wanted for seven slayings and 19 holdups. His career of violence earned him the name of "The Wolf of the Irpines"—from the region where the Irpini tribes lived in pre-Roman times.

Reds Claim Plane Launched Missile

LONDON (AP)—The Soviet Union has a plane-launched missile that can be delivered to any point in the globe by a long-range bomber, Moscow radio reported Wednesday. The broadcast described the missile as shaped like a swept-wing fighter and called it "invulnerable to antiaircraft defense because of its speed and ceiling."

Bishop Oxnam, Age 71, Dies In White Plains

Was Exponent Of Christian Unity Movement

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP)—Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, militant Methodist liberal who once figured in a dramatic clash with congressional investigators, died Tuesday night at the age of 71.

Until his retirement three years ago, he was one of the nation's foremost Protestant leaders.

He had suffered recently from Parkinson's disease, and underwent surgery last December. Death came at the Burke Rehabilitation Foundation here.

An exponent of the Christian unity movement, Bishop Oxnam was one of the first presidents of the World Council of Churches, and figured prominently in the formation of the National Council of Churches.

However, it was his vigorous role in the arena of social justice that claimed the widest attention. He defended labor, civil rights of minorities and was an early advocate of racial integration.

Christianity, he once declared, must be "prepared to grapple with contemporary injustice and to die, if need be, that Christ may live."

He was successively the bishop of Omaha, Boston, New York and Washington, D.C. A decade ago, he carried on a running dispute with the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, and challenged the senator's methods.

McCarthy had claimed wide Communist influences in the churches.

However, it was before the House Committee on Un-American Activities that the conflict came to a showdown.

A committee member at the time, former Rep. Donald L. Jackson, California Republican, had accused the bishop in a 1953 speech in Congress of serving "the Lord on Sunday and Communist fronts the rest of the week."

Bishop Oxnam demanded a chance to answer the "false allegations."

The hearing was a tense, 10-hour affair, with a packed room of spectators frequently applauding the bishop and jeering the committee.

At the close, near midnight, the committee unanimously adopted this statement: "That the records of this committee show that this committee has no record of any Communist party membership or affiliation of Bishop Oxnam."

The "harsh results of those decisions are still with us," he said.

All of these decisions were taken in the name of fiscal responsibility, Kennedy said, "but if that high-sounding label is intended to refer primarily to budget and balance of payments surpluses, it was a name taken in vain."

"I am hopeful," he said, "that the lessons of history will be remembered by us all—by those of us in the administration and the Congress, and those in this audience who are leaders of opinion in the business community."

Leopold devoted himself to study and helping other prisoners. A brilliant man with a prison recorded I.Q. of 208—genius is 160—Leopold mastered 28 languages and became an authority in mathematics and several sciences.

Albert Einstein, with whom Leopold corresponded, once said Leopold could have made important contributions to science had he been a free man.

Wartime work on malaria research resulted in a reduction of his kidnap sentence and made him eligible for parole.

Leopold, determined to dedicate what remained of his life to public service, became a $10-a-week hospital orderly in the Church of the Brethern Hospital at Castaner, Puerto Rico. He then earned a masters degree in social medicine at the University of Puerto Rico and went to work for the Puerto Rican Board of Health.

Leopold married Trudi Garcia de Quevedo last year and they live quietly in San Juan.

Willis Rowe Files Appeal

SALISBURY (AP) — Willis C. Rowe, 45-year-old Silver Spring research writer, has appealed his murder conviction and 18-year prison sentence.

Rowe was sentenced in Wicomico County Circuit Court on Feb. 27. He was convicted earlier in the month in the fatal shooting of Bronza Parks in a boathouse at Wingate, Dorchester County, on May 13, 1958.

He had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity, but the jury of six men and six women ruled that while he was insane at the time of the trial, he was sane when Parks was shot. The victim had been building a boat for Rowe at the time of the slaying.

The appeal, prepared by Rowe and mailed to the clerk of the Wicomico County Circuit Court, claims the 18-year sentence is excessive and "contrary to decency." He pointed out that he had already been incarcerated five years.

Another Body Found In W.Va. Flooded Area

LOGAN, W. Va. (AP)—The body of another flood victim was found Wednesday as the mopping up of one of southern West Virginia's most costly floods began in earnest.

The body of Andrew Roberson, about 65, was found in a home in Logan's Mt. Gay area. He apparently drowned Tuesday while fleeing the raging Guyandotte River.

Two other persons drowned and three were victims of heart attacks suffered in rescue efforts or trying to escape from flooding the Guyandotte, the Tug Fork of the Big Sandy River and their tributaries.

The muddy streams were back within their banks and continued to recede, leaving in their wake thousands of homeless, hundreds of wrecked houses, damaged highways and other debris that will take days to clear away.

Col. Harrington Cochran, chief of the Huntington, W. Va. District of the Army Engineers, said the damage along the Guyandotte alone would be about $7.2 million.

There was no immediate estimate of the loss along the tributaries and the Tug Fork.

President Kennedy declared the stricken zone a disaster area, making federal financial help available.

The allocation of funds to rehabilitate public facilities will be made after a complete report is submitted by the federal Office of Emergency Planning.

The Ohio River in the Huntington area was going up and was expected to go one foot over flood stage of 50 feet in that city about 7 a.m. Thursday.

The Red Cross and other relief agencies continued to care for the homeless. Fifteen shelters were being operated in 13 counties, including 7 in the city of Logan.

U.S. 119 leading into Logan County was reopened Wednesday afternoon.

All other Logan County primary roads, in addition to those in Mingo County, remained blocked as did a number in scattered southern counties.

Maryland First In Fluoridation

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—For teeth's sake, the nation's dentists are pulling out all stops in an effort to pass the facts on water fluoridation.

By act of Congress, the District of Columbia's 100 per cent fluoridated.

But the American Dental Association (ADA) operates on arguments more scientific than one appealing to status seekers itching to drink the same kind of water gulped by their congressmen and senators.

In the maiden edition of "The Fluoridation Reporter," the ADA argues this way:

"The fluoridation of public water supplies is a safe, economical and effective measure to prevent dental caries. It has received the unqualified approval of every major health organization in the United States and of many other countries.

'Acceptance Lagging'

"Two thousand communities in this country are presently enjoying its benefits. In terms of its potential usefulness in improving the dental health of the nation, however, public acceptance of fluoridation is lagging.

"Eighteen thousand communities have yet to institute the procedure—and 40 million children are being denied its benefits."

Among the states, Maryland leads, with 92.3 per cent of its population on central supplies using fluoridated water. The top 10 states include also Rhode Island, New Mexico, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Illinois, West Virginia, Colorado, Iowa.

What happens when children drink fluoridated water?

The association answers that question by citing the Philadelphia experience:

"Tooth decay in Philadelphia school children has been reduced 75 per cent after seven years of water fluoridation."

Dental exams show "definite and conclusive evidence that fluoridated water is the greatest instrument today in preventive dentistry," said Dr. Abram Cohen, supervisor of dental services for the school district of Philadelphia.

'Status Symbol'

The ADA reported that fluoridation by nature and fluoridation by man are both proclaimed on signs by proud citizens living as far apart as Tennessee and Alberta, Canada.

Fluoridated towns in Tennessee boast of the properties of their public water supplies by placing signs at the city limits informing everyone of their status.

The first city in Tennessee to erect a sign was Milan, fluoridated in 1951. The ADA said about 60 communities in Tennessee have initiated fluoridation of water supplies and will erect signs.

No decision on whether or not to fluoridate was ever necessary in the little town of Alix in Alberta, Canada.

The town has placed the following sign at its boundary to announce that fluoridation was taken care of by a higher authority:

"Welcome to Alix
"Pop. 650; Elev., 2614
"We Love Our Children; 25 MPH
"Water fluoridated by God."

Famed Stone Falls

LONDON (UPI)—A 26-ton stone from the outer ring at Stonehenge apparently was blown down by a gale early Sunday, a Ministry of Public Building and Works spokesman disclosed Tuesday. He said the stone, a broad, flat-sectioned one, would be put back in position as soon as possible. It originally was one of 30 upright stones in the ancient ring.

Ten vice presidents of the United States have gone on to become President.

Hodges Attacks Misleading Ads

NEW YORK (UPI) — Commerce Secretary Luther H. Hodges said Tuesday there is still much advertising "which is highly offensive, misleading, and unworth of the advertisers. . .which produce it."

He said the offense becomes "especially great" when such advertising is beamed into the family circle from the television screen.

"If the industry itself fails to stamp out advertising which is deceptive and offensive to public morality, it runs the risk of strict government regulation," the secretary added.

Reports On Refugees

PARIS (UPI) — The Ministry for Refugees announced this week that 678,000 persons, all but 30,000 of them Europeans, moved from Algeria to France between Jan. 1, 1962, and Feb. 24 of this year. It said 542,000 of them were receiving government financial support.

Investigators Challenge Broadcast Rating Surveys

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators have challenged the validity of broadcast audience measuring surveys conducted by a Midwest company, Robert S. Conlan Associates.

The Kansas City outfit was accused of selling radio audience surveys based on field interviews that apparently never took place.

One interviewer named by Conlan as conducting a survey was found to have been in traction in a hospital at the time, and no interviewers could be found for four other surveys Conlan said it had made, a House Commerce subcommittee was told.

Chairman Oren Harris, D-Ark., after hearing testimony from Conlan's co-owners, Robert E. West and Hallie Jones, told them, "That's not a very good picture, I must say."

He suggested the radio industry "give some attention to the record developed here."

The subcommittee, which last week heard broadcasters describe the great influence of the rating services, is calling in the services themselves this week in its inquiry into service operations.

The examples of invisible interviewers were given to the subcommittee by Robert Richardson, one of a staff of investigators who have been gathering evidence for nearly 18 months.

Richardson said interviewers listed by Conlan as having made telephone surveys in Tucson, Ariz., and St. Petersburg, Fla., had given him sworn statements denying they had.

Pair Arrested 13 Minutes After Holdup

WASHINGTON (AP)—An auto chase, gunfire and a foot race marked the arrest Wednesday of two men accused of holding up a branch bank in Washington.

The men, one of them wounded in the leg by a police bullet, were arrested 13 minutes after the branch was robbed of an estimated $3,000 to $4,000.

They were identified by police as John Thomas Crawford, 34, and Clarence W. McFarland, 28. Crawford suffered a bullet wound in the right calf as he and his companion, police said, fled down an alley, leaving a trail of paper money.

The FBI said both men were charged with violation of the federal bank robbery statute.

The men were caught after they abandoned their car near Connecticut Avenue and R Street, NW, roughly four miles from the bank, ran down an alley and broke into a house.

Honor Long-Time State Employes

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes presented watches and certificates Wednesday to state employes who have completed 40 and 45 years service.

Honored for 45 years state service was Miss Helen I. Maisack, Hagerstown, University of Maryland.

Safety Inspector Indicted After Cave-In Probe

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP)—Prince Georges County's chief building inspector, a corporation and four others were indicted Wednesday in connection with a construction cave-in at Greenbelt in which five men were killed Dec. 28.

Building Inspector Chris Sondberg was charged with violating the duty of his office. The Hurd Corp., Laurel, which was excavating at the site of a shopping center, and four of its officers were indicted for violations of state safety regulations.

Corporation officers indicted were Leon H. Hurd, president; Arthur Hurd, vice president; Eugene M. Feinblatt, secretary, and Sander L. Wise, treasurer.

The indictments, and 99 others, were released Wednesday by State's Atty. Arthur A. Marshall Jr.

An eight-count indictment against Sondberg alleges he permitted an excavation without any safeguard or protection. Another specific allegation was that he failed to insure compliance with safety code requirements.

Continuing To Garden

HUGO, Okla. (AP)—Mrs. C. D. Nease lost her wedding ring in 1938 while gathering beans in her garden.

She and a friend, Mrs. Tom Hunter, were picking greens this week when they found the ring, "just sticking up out of the dirt, shining as bright as could be."

Union Of Seventh Day Adventists Oppose Sunday Closing Legislation

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The Columbia Union of Seventh-Day Adventists voiced strong opposition Wednesday to Sunday closing laws. Some 800 delegates approved a resolution calling for continued resistance to "blue laws."

Cyril M. Miller of Tacoma Park, Md., secretary of the Religious Liberty Department of the conference, said Adventist opposition to Sunday closing bills stemmed primarily from the denomination's stand on separation of church and state.

"Many of the suggested laws provide for the exemption of our own church members from the provisions," Miller said. "Our opposition comes from a deep-rooted convictin that the church and state should be completely separate. Any breach of this constitutional guarantee is a step in the wrong direction."

The Adventists observe Saturday as their Sabbath.

Miller said that the Adventists would be against any legislation requiring special Saturday observance.

Mrs. Kennedy Plans Weekend At Camp David

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced Wednesday that Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her children will spend the weekend at Camp David, Md., while the President goes to Palm Beach, Fla.

Mrs. Kennedy plans to drive Saturday to the Catoctin Mountain retreat which is operated for the first family by the Navy. She expects to make use of Camp David for weekends, the White House said, until sometime in April when the Kennedy's new home is completed on Rattlesnake Mountain near Middleburg, Va.

Up to now, the Kennedy's have been using Glen Ora, a Virginia hunt country estate they rented in Middleburg since February 1961. They are now in the process of moving out of Glen Ora, the spokesman said.

Pair Arrested 13 Minutes After Holdup

WASHINGTON (AP)—An auto chase, gunfire and a foot race marked the arrest Wednesday of two men accused of holding up a branch bank in Washington.

The men, one of them wounded in the leg by a police bullet, were arrested 13 minutes after the branch was robbed of an estimated $3,000 to $4,000.

They were identified by police as John Thomas Crawford, 34, and Clarence W. McFarland, 28. Crawford suffered a bullet wound in the right calf as he and his companion, police said, fled down an alley, leaving a trail of paper money.

The FBI said both men were charged with violation of the federal bank robbery statute.

The men were caught after they abandoned their car near Connecticut Avenue and R Street, NW, roughly four miles from the bank, ran down an alley and broke into a house.

Building Inspector Chris Sondberg was charged with violating the duty of his office. The Hurd Corp., Laurel, which was excavating at the site of a shopping center, and four of its officers were indicted for violations of state safety regulations.

Corporation officers indicted were Leon H. Hurd, president; Arthur Hurd, vice president; Eugene M. Feinblatt, secretary, and Sander L. Wise, treasurer.

The indictments, and 99 others, were released Wednesday by State's Atty. Arthur A. Marshall Jr.

An eight-count indictment against Sondberg alleges he permitted an excavation without any safeguard or protection. Another specific allegation was that he failed to insure compliance with safety code requirements.

Union Of Seventh Day Adventists Oppose Sunday Closing Legislation

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The Columbia Union of Seventh-Day Adventists voiced strong opposition Wednesday to Sunday closing laws. Some 800 delegates approved a resolution calling for continued resistance to "blue laws."

Cyril M. Miller of Tacoma Park, Md., secretary of the Religious Liberty Department of the conference, said Adventist opposition to Sunday closing bills stemmed primarily from the denomination's stand on separation of church and state.

"Many of the suggested laws provide for the exemption of our own church members from the provisions," Miller said. "Our opposition comes from a deep-rooted convictin that the church and state should be completely separate. Any breach of this constitutional guarantee is a step in the wrong direction."

The Adventists observe Saturday as their Sabbath.

Miller said that the Adventists would be against any legislation requiring special Saturday observance.

American Coin Dealers Start Treasure Hunt In Bermuda

By ROY FERGUSON

HAMILTON, Bermuda (UPI)—American coin dealers, waving fistfuls of money at Bermudians and shouting invectives at one another, have started a fanatical treasure hunt on this semi-tropical island.

They have sent everyone scurrying for 1950 and 1951 pennies, which were minted in relatively small numbers exclusively for Bermuda and Nassau. The dealers are buying them by the thousands for as much as $1.75 for each 1951 copper — with prices still going up.

Only recently, a British penny was a cumbersome nuisance. Ten of them in each pocket would make a person bow-legged. Shopkeepers often told customers to "keep the copper" if purchases totaled with an odd cent.

Now Bermudians are so eager to get their hands on these coins that the banks have been forced to stop exchanging bills for penny rolls. One taxi driver handed a teller $150 in notes in exchange for pennies.

And shop owners and restaurateurs report the number of pennies that cross their counters has dropped by about 75 per cent since the penny craze started.

While Bermudians dig in their pockets, bureau drawers and cookie jars for the coins, the American dealers urge them on with frantic promises to pay them "top prices" for each '50 and '51.

A 23-year-old New York coin-dealer, Robert Bashlow, set up headquarters in the lobby of the Kenwood Hotel in Hamilton and announced through radio, television and newspapers that no one could match his prices.

And other U.S. coin dealers were suggesting that the valuable pennies be mailed to them.

Meanwhile, the man who started the penny madness was desperately trying to keep up with "the big boys from New York."

He is amateur coin collector Lloyd G. Bishop, a Texas-born U.S. Immigration officer stationed at the Bermuda Air Terminal.

It was Bishop who discovered early in January that only 240,000 of the 1950 and 120,000 of the 1951 pennies were minted in Great Britain and that all were sent to Bermuda and Nassau. Bermuda received nearly all the 1951 dates.

Bishop, who says he has no permanent U.S. home, offered 12 cents each for the pennies. A few other collectors, who undoubtedly had noticed in K. E. Bressett's 1962-63 Guide Book of English Coins that a 1951 penny might sell for any price between $3.50 and $11, depending on condition, started topping Bishop's offer.

Then the American professionals took over.

One local coin collector estimated there still are some 20,000 of the sought-after currency pieces in Bermuda. By 1973, several Bermuda numismatists have estimated, a 1951 British penny will be worth no less than $150.

WAC Colonel Emily C. Gorman Likely Prospect For Shoulder Stars

By H. J. HELLER

NEW YORK (UPI)—There are no women generals in the Pentagon.

But a likely prospect for shoulder stars is Col. Emily C. Gorman.

Colonel Gorman, director of the 10,000 members of the Women's Army Corps (WAC) is the only WAC officer entitled to wear the "eagles" of the rank of full colonel.

She was appointed to the top WAC post last Aug. 1, 20 years after she enlisted in what was then the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps (WAAC).

The corps itself is not much older than Colonel Gorman's length of service.

It came into existence May 14, 1942, only two-and-a-half months before Emily Gorman, then a school teacher, decided to do something more for the war effort than talk about it.

As she said in an interview during a trip to New York:

"I enlisted for the duration and six months, but stayed for a career."

The career has been a fabulous one involving her in a variety of assignments, in this country and in such far-away places as Hong Kong, Saigon and a number of South American cities.

During all this time the petite, trim colonel never has forgotten that WACs are women as well as soldiers.

"WACs," she said, "should not be less feminine than any other women. We expect everyone to look as personable as possible."

Colonel Gorman saw no conflict between a military career for women and the possibility of romance and marriage. She said about 11 per cent of the WAC officers were married and as far as she could observe the marriages were happy ones.

Recently Colonel Gorman was guest of honor at a luncheon given at the U.S. Army Information School Center, Fort Slocum, N.Y.

The respect for the WAC commander was evident.

One WAC lieutenant colonel said, "We have been trying to get Colonel Gorman as director for, it seems, about 200 years. We always thought she would make a great director.

"And do you know what? She hasn't disappointed us one little bit."

Ceramic tile is particularly suitable for powder rooms, since it is available in more than 250 decorator colors and an infinite number of designs.

Kids No Longer Get Thrill From Organ Carousel

By DAVID ZARKIN

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI)—One of the nation's oldest and largest brass ring organ-type carousels may be moved from its home of 54 years to a smaller town a hundred miles away because city kids no longer thrill to a simple ride on a merry-go-round.

"To my knowledge there isn't another carousel like it," said Lloyd Vogel, owner of the machine and former proprietor of Natatorium Park, where it is located here. Vogel has sold the amusement park to El Katif Shrine, which will convert it to lodge use.

Vogel said the 1909 carousel is one of the nation's oldest and is exceeded in size on the West Coast only by one in San Francisco, which was built in 1914 by the Loos Co. of Germany.

The Spokane merry-go-round with its 54 hand-carved wooden horses ranks high among the nation's thoroughbred machines.

The Central Park carousel in New York city boasts 57 horses and San Francisco's has 56 moving animals, 6 stationary ones, two carriages and two chariots.

The Natatorium carousel, like the other great hand-carved beauties is a remnant of another era, a symbol of the turn-of-the century amusement park that provided a Sunday outing for many families.

Vogel hopes to take his merry-go-round and other rides from Natatorium to Pasco, Washington, where he hopes children in the smaller town will enjoy them.

At one time it was estimated that nearly 100,000 persons a year rode the great carousel. In the early days, rides were five cents for children and 10 cents for adults. Now it costs 10 and 15 cents to mount a stalwart stallion and try to catch the brass ring for a free ride.

But a free ride on a wooden horse to a now "corny" tune apparently holds little appeal for a generation attuned to jet planes and men in space. So Natatorium is closing and, with it, an era, as the once regal carousel goes looking for a home.

Output per production worker in the pulp and paper industry increased by 59 per cent between 1947-60, the Labor Department reports.

Spreading Catholic Faith To Outer World Doubtful

ROME (UPI)—If man one day conquers the outer world and new planets, should the Catholic Church try to spread the Gospel there, if they are inhabited?

This may look at first sight like an idle academic question such as that which raged among medieval theologians on the sex of angels.

But it is not, and eminent Catholic students already have faced it—with answers no less controversial than those which featured the greatest doctrinal issues of the church.

One of the more than 3,000 bishops who contributed suggestions for preparing the Ecumenical Council even suggested including it in the council's agenda.

The council, called by Pope John XXIII to bring the church into step with modern times, congregated last October for a two-month working session. It will reconvene Sept. 8, hopefully to complete work by Christmas.

It may well be then, that the seemingly platonic question as to whether the church should evangelize other worlds will come up for debate and the opinion of the theologians, will have a decisive weight on the answer.

The latest Popes all have shown keen interest in man's effort to conquer the outer world. Pius XII more than once in the last year of his life expressed pleasure over the orbiting of the first satellites.

Pope John XXIII in his year-end message expressed his wish that 1963 "may register new peaceful conquests due to the genius of man" and applauded man's increased mastering of the forces of nature.

In short, the church's leadership seems inclined to an extensive interpretation of the biblical "multiply yourselves and take possession of the earth." Even the usually cautious Jesuits went so far as to state in their magazine "La Civilta Cattolica" that "Catholics are free to believe or not to believe, according to their views, that life exists in other world."

Theologians are split on this issue. They are agreed only on one thing—on the necessity for the church to continue its ministry among men who may possibly emigrate to other planets. But on the question of evangelization of "natives" of other planets the opinions are varied.

Msgr. Roberto Mari, a noted Italian theologian, firmly believes the church should confine its mission to world mankind on grounds that nothing in the Revelation authorizes the church to go beyond.

Apart from the limits set by the Revelation, Msgr. Masi contends that any "natives" of other worlds may have a completely different "status" than men such as, for example, a status of "elevated nature." The status of "elevated nature" was that of Adam and Eve.

Another noted theologian, Father Domenico Grasso, shares the opinion of Msgr. Masi but with different arguments.

In his opinion, the "order of Providence" in which mankind presently lives is dominated by two fundamental events—the Original Sin and the Redemption. The solidarity of mankind in the sin and redemption is based on the common nature as humans. In other worlds there may be other natures and the divine "order" may therefore be different. Hence the church should limit its mission to world humans.

Thoughtful people are pondering these problems and it may not be just idle thinking at the present stage of human scientific knowledge.

Ankle Cuffed Himself

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Patrolman Thomas Doherty knows a boy who just can't stay out of trouble. The boy and some friends were at the police station for questioning when he stole Doherty's unguarded handcuffs. Later, he snapped them onto his ankle and damaged them in an unsuccessful attempt at getting them off.

The boy finally went back to the police station for help. In a Juvenile Court session, he and his parents were ordered to make restitution of $17 and the boy was placed on probation.

Easter Seals To Be Mailed

Approximately 23,000 packets of Easter Seals will be mailed out the end of this week as the 1963 campaign for funds gets underway by Allegany County League for Crippled Children.

The campaign will end April 14, Easter Sunday.

George M. Schwarzenbach, Seal Sale chairman, expressed his appreciation to League staff members and volunteer workers who have worked many days in preparing the Seals and placing them in envelopes for mailing.

"As we are dependent upon voluntary contributions to carry on our work here in Allegany County and the area, so are we dependent upon our volunteers who assist us in the campaign and during our clinics and other activities during the year," he said.

The League hopes that this year's Easter Seal drive returns will start coming in early, in fact, Schwarzenbach urges that those receiving them get their contributions in the next mail.

"If we, by our contributions of a few dollars, can assure proper treatment and services for a handicapped child which will enable him to take his rightful place in the world, certainly it will be the best investment you can make," Schwarzenbach said.

Farm Group To Meet Today

The annual vegetable growers meeting of Allegany County farmers will be held today at 7 p.m. at the Court House.

Talks will be given by Herman A. Hunter, vegetable specialist at the University of Maryland, T. L. Bissell, entomologist at the university, and various farmers on weed control, use of insecticides and types of vegetables grown in this section.

Virginia Ave. PTA To Meet Today

The Parent-Teacher Association of Virginia Avenue School will meet today at 7:30 p.m. at the school. Room visitation is scheduled at 7 p. m.

The program will feature a talk by Charles W. Waltman, physical education instructor for elementary schools, and a film on "Physical Fitness." Refreshments will be served.

County Delegation Gives Approval To Bills Concerning Zoning Unit, Teachers

Three Allegany County bills were given favorable reports by the six delegates from this county at a meeting Tuesday in Annapolis.

One, House Bill 679, gives the County Commissioners power over the spending and appointments of the County Planning and Zoning Commission. Under the present law, the commissioners do not have this authority, just merely to pass on the budget.

Another, according to Del. Charles M. See, delegation chairman, regulates the repair of voting machines on election days.

No adjustments can be made except by custodians, who under the bill, must be sent to the factory and receive training in repairs. If an adjustment is necessary, a statement must be filed with the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors.

The third, House Bill 746, requires custodians of voting machines in Allegany County to take a course of instruction at the factories where the devices are made.

Del. See also said the delegation has removed Allegany County from the statewide bill calling for a doe or antlerless deer hunting season. The delegation feels that this would cut down the size of the deer herd, the chairman reported.

The delegation reported out favorably five Senate bills sponsored by Sen. George R. Hughes Jr. that clear up some obsolete provisions of various Allegany County laws.

The House has enacted a bill sponsored by Sen. Hughes, SB 204, that provides for the appointment of an official court stenographer for Allegany and Garrett counties.

The bill also provides for the payment of stenographer by the judges of the Fourth Judicial Circuit and also sets the amount which may be charged by him for any copies of court proceedings.

The House has passed two bills pertaining to school teachers. Delegation-sponsored, HB 636 increases the daily amount to be paid public school teachers who are disabled or incapacitated up to 80 days in any school year. This money comes from the Allegany County Teachers Relief Fund, which is raised by the teachers themselves. There are no public funds in it.

House Bill 637 increases the amount of supplemental payments by the Allegany County Commissioners for certain retired public school teachers. This brings the lower paid ones up to $200 a month.

Another bill passed in the House and sponsored by HB 616 that authorizes the county commissioner to supervise and control electrical businesses engaged in installing, erecting or repairing electric wires or conductors. This bill also provides for the appointment of an electrical administrative board by the county commissioners to generally supervise this business. There are certain exceptions.

The New York State Thruway, which opened in 1954, is the longest toll expressway system.

George M. Schwarzenbach, Seal Sale chairman, expressed his appreciation to League staff members and volunteer workers who have worked many days in preparing the Seals and placing them in envelopes for mailing.

"As we are dependent upon voluntary contributions to carry on our work here in Allegany County and the area, so are we dependent upon our volunteers who assist us in the campaign and during our clinics and other activities during the year," he said.

The League hopes that this year's Easter Seal drive returns will start coming in early, in fact, Schwarzenbach urges that those receiving them get their contributions in the next mail.

"If we, by our contributions of a few dollars, can assure proper treatment and services for a handicapped child which will enable him to take his rightful place in the world, certainly it will be the best investment you can make," Schwarzenbach said.

Farm Group To Meet Today

The annual vegetable growers meeting of Allegany County farmers will be held today at 7 p.m. at the Court House.

Virginia Ave. PTA To Meet Today

The Parent-Teacher Association of Virginia Avenue School will meet today at 7:30 p.m. at the school. Room visitation is scheduled at 7 p. m.

The program will feature a talk by Charles W. Waltman, physical education instructor for elementary schools, and a film on "Physical Fitness." Refreshments will be served.

County Delegation Gives Approval To Bills Concerning Zoning Unit, Teachers

Three Allegany County bills were given favorable reports by the six delegates from this county at a meeting Tuesday in Annapolis.

One, House Bill 679, gives the County Commissioners power over the spending and appointments of the County Planning and Zoning Commission. Under the present law, the commissioners do not have this authority, just merely to pass on the budget.

Another, according to Del. Charles M. See, delegation chairman, regulates the repair of voting machines on election days.

No adjustments can be made except by custodians, who under the bill, must be sent to the factory and receive training in repairs. If an adjustment is necessary, a statement must be filed with the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors.

The third, House Bill 746, requires custodians of voting machines in Allegany County to take a course of instruction at the factories where the devices are made.

Del. See also said the delegation has removed Allegany County from the statewide bill calling for a doe or antlerless deer hunting season. The delegation feels that this would cut down the size of the deer herd, the chairman reported.

The delegation reported out favorably five Senate bills sponsored by Sen. George R. Hughes Jr. that clear up some obsolete provisions of various Allegany County laws.

The House has enacted a bill sponsored by Sen. Hughes, SB 204, that provides for the appointment of an official court stenographer for Allegany and Garrett counties.

The bill also provides for the payment of stenographer by the judges of the Fourth Judicial Circuit and also sets the amount which may be charged by him for any copies of court proceedings.

The House has passed two bills pertaining to school teachers. Delegation-sponsored, HB 636 increases the daily amount to be paid public school teachers who are disabled or incapacitated up to 80 days in any school year. This money comes from the Allegany County Teachers Relief Fund, which is raised by the teachers themselves. There are no public funds in it.

House Bill 637 increases the amount of supplemental payments by the Allegany County Commissioners for certain retired public school teachers. This brings the lower paid ones up to $200 a month.

Another bill passed in the House and sponsored by HB 616 that authorizes the county commissioner to supervise and control electrical businesses engaged in installing, erecting or repairing electric wires or conductors. This bill also provides for the appointment of an electrical administrative board by the county commissioners to generally supervise this business. There are certain exceptions.

The New York State Thruway, which opened in 1954, is the longest toll expressway system.

County Jail Deteriorating

The rapid deterioration of Allegany County jail from natural causes is cited in the annual report of the Maryland Board of Correction.

The inspection was conducted by J. B. Dellinger, executive director of the Prisoners Aid Association of Maryland, and he reports the deterioration makes it difficult for the sheriff and his deputies to properly maintain the jail.

Dellinger also recommended that there be a full-time warden at the jail, thereby freeing the sheriff and his deputies for their peace-time duties. He added that the lockup should be under the direct supervision of the sheriff, although manned by personnel not required to do the road patrol and other work of deputies.

The report said the county should consider building a new jail at great cost, renovate the present facility, or use another jail structure.

Dellinger added that it has been suggested in previous reports that Allegany and Garrett authorities consider using the new jail in Oakland to house sentenced prisoners for both counties, and retain the Cumberland lockup for those awaiting trial in this county.

In his report, Dellinger states that it is his considered opinion the renovation of the county jail would be nothing better than a short-term, stop-gap operation, and would be nearly as expensive as building a new jail.

He also points out that by prorating the cost of a regional jail, located at Oakland, both Allegany and Garrett counties would materially benefit in the long run.

Dellinger concluded his report by pointing out that the distance between Cumberland and Oakland, some 55 miles, should not present any insurmountable obstacle to a regional jail operation.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Button says a compensation may be paid by a county board of supervisors to a chicken owner who lost 399 birds, suffocated when they were frightened by a dog and piled up into a big bunch.

State law provides that the owner of poultry or livestock killed or injured by a dog, not his own, is entitled to reasonable compensation from his county.

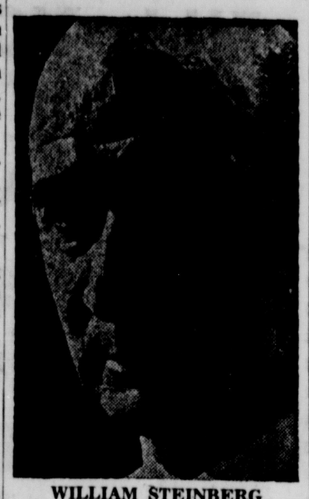
Program Set For Concert By Symphony



WILLIAM STEINBERG

Music director William Steinberg has selected a well-balanced program for the Cumberland concert of the Pittsburgh Symphony Wednesday, April 3, chairman R. Finley Thompson announced yesterday.

He said the world-famous conductor, building on his recollection of Cumberland audience reaction since the first concert in 1957, has produced an evening of music that will be an unusual treat for local music lovers.

Steinberg will open with a Beethoven Overture, "King Stephen." It will be followed by the soloist's performance, violist Godfrey Layefsky playing Handel's Concerto for Viola and Orchestra in b minor.

Then the orchestra will return with a Richard Strauss selection, "Death and Transfiguration," followed by the intermission.

Thompson said the second section of the program will be a complete symphony, Tschaikowsky's "Symphony No. 4 in f minor." This elaborate and tuneful work will be the principal item of the evening's program, varied enough to give concert-goers a demonstration of the entire orchestra's complete resources.

Hospital Staff Saved Life Of Injured Man

The Iowa man said he was on his way to Harrisburg, Pa., to visit his daughter when the accident occurred. He plans to go to his daughter's when he is released from the local hospital.

The first life insurance company was established in 1759 and remained the only one until 1770.

Memorial Hospital set a record yesterday when its morning census reached 300 persons, the largest number of persons ever housed at the institution at one time.

John A. Moberly, superintendent, noted that the hospital has a bed capacity of 252. Today the hospital had all beds filled, 19 patients in the halls and 29 babies in the maternity department.

The hospital superintendent said the pediatrics department was the most critical.

Visiting remains restricted at the hospital.

"Cooks Rings Around the Rest"

Buy Her An Electric Range ...and be her HERO

Wives who have had the good fortune of switching to a flameless electric range say it "cooks rings around the rest."

That's because automatic flameless electric cooking has a way with food like no other. Steak, for instance. Comes out broiled just right because radiant electric heat seals in the fine steak flavor and natural juices. Eggs, for instance. Come out fried the way everybody wants them because electric heat is so accurately controlled.

Wives have other reasons for liking electric cooking. They find it's more fun to cook electrically because it's so convenient, so dependable and the kitchen stays so cool. It's cleaner cooking, too, because there's no flame to tarnish pots and pans or to begrime walls and curtains.

FREE! STANDARD ELECTRIC INSTALLATION

Now there's an added incentive for Potomac Edison System customers for buying her that electric range. Your electric company will provide a free standard electric installation when you buy an electric range.

Getty Praises Work Of Frostburg Police

State's Attorney James S. Getty yesterday praised the work of the Frostburg Police Department and informed Mayor Joseph James that action is being taken against "bottle clubs" being operated in the Mountain City.

Getty in a letter to Mayor James stated:

"In the past two weeks, I have been in close contact with several members of the Frostburg Police Department regarding enforcement of the criminal laws in your community.

"I wish to commend the Mayor and Council, the chief of police and the officers for the conscientious effort presently being made to enforce the laws, particularly with reference to alcoholic beverages.

"I think you will agree that the presence of so many college students necessitates rigid enforcement of the law and I wish to extend to you and the members of the council the full support of the facilities of this office in furthering your enforcement program. I have requested the Allegany County Delegation to the Legislature to amend the law, outlawing so-called "bottle clubs" and I sincerely hope that favorable action will be made as the result of my request.

"I am sure that Mr. Hardesty (R. Bowen Hardesty, president of Frostburg State Teachers College), the parents and other responsible citizens of your community and Allegany County are deeply concerned and favorably impressed with your efforts to provide a wholesome atmosphere for all of your young people."

In a public statement yesterday, State's Attorney Getty announced a "crackdown" on so-called "bottle-clubs" operating in the county.

Getty proposed an amendment to the current liquor laws which would plug a loophole which gives one without a license greater latitude than those who operate taverns and clubs with licenses.

The state's attorney also announced that he intends to bring the matter to the attention of the April grand jury and hopes by that time the General Assembly will have acted favorably in amending the law to eliminate the situation.

Getty Praises Work Of Frostburg Police

State's Attorney James S. Getty yesterday praised the work of the Frostburg Police Department and informed Mayor Joseph James that action is being taken against "bottle clubs" being operated in the Mountain City.

Getty in a letter to Mayor James stated:

"In the past two weeks, I have been in close contact with several members of the Frostburg Police Department regarding enforcement of the criminal laws in your community.

"I wish to commend the Mayor and Council, the chief of police and the officers for the conscientious effort presently being made to enforce the laws, particularly with reference to alcoholic beverages.

"I think you will agree that the presence of so many college students necessitates rigid enforcement of the law and I wish to extend to you and the members of the council the full support of the facilities of this office in furthering your enforcement program. I have requested the Allegany County Delegation to the Legislature to amend the law, outlawing so-called "bottle clubs" and I sincerely hope that favorable action will be made as the result of my request.

"I am sure that Mr. Hardesty (R. Bowen Hardesty, president of Frostburg State Teachers College), the parents and other responsible citizens of your community and Allegany County are deeply concerned and favorably impressed with your efforts to provide a wholesome atmosphere for all of your young people."

In a public statement yesterday, State's Attorney Getty announced a "crackdown" on so-called "bottle-clubs" operating in the county.

Getty proposed an amendment to the current liquor laws which would plug a loophole which gives one without a license greater latitude than those who operate taverns and clubs with licenses.

The state's attorney also announced that he intends to bring the matter to the attention of the April grand jury and hopes by that time the General Assembly will have acted favorably in amending the law to eliminate the situation.

Club Plans For Spring Picnic

The Senior Citizens Club of the City Recreation Department will meet at 2 p.m. today in the Elks Home here.

The program will include several readings pertaining to St. Patrick's Day and two games, Arithmetic and Monte Carlo.

Final plans will be made for the rummage sale to be held by the club in preparation to the spring picnic, according to Mrs. Eva Hogan, adviser.

The picnic will be held June 13 at the Kiwanis Sunshine Camp.

Transportation will be arranged by the Community Service committee of the Woman's Civic Club.

The group has also donated $10 for prizes at the club's coming games party. Mrs. Norman Geatz Sr. is chairman for the project.

Procrastinators Procrastinate

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Les Waas, president of the Procrastinators' Club of America, proclaimed this "National Procrastination Week."

He urged members to put off celebrations until next week.

Don't try to disguise fleshy arms with draped styles. Re-contour them with this sure routine!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Slimming Fleshy Arms

A new routine, devised in my lab, not only tapers the upper arm but re-contours the entire arm to give it a lovely new line. This one utilizes a strap as an exercise partner, thus multiplying the value of your efforts materially.

Any leather strap about sixty inches long will do, or else you can just buckle two leather belts together and you are ready to begin. Take the strap in your hands and stand in your best posture with feet together. With each hand out near an end of the strap, raise your arms upward and outward at shoulder level. Straighten your elbows and pull the strap taut.

Now describe a large semi-circle with the left arm by reaching as far upward and over to the right as possible and then sweeping downward so your arm comes to rest diagonally across your abdomen. By reversing the movement, return to starting position. Pull the strap taut.

Next draw a semi-circle to the left with the right arm, return to starting position and pull the strap taut.

Got those two steps? Now, perform them both at once. Do this by alternating the crossing of your arms with your left arm first on top and then under the right. Try it a couple of times and you'll quickly get the hang of it.

Make each movement as brisk as possible and work without any pause during a count of ten. At the outset, ten times per day is enough, but increase at your own speed to thirty, relaxing after each count of ten.

Be faithful. Be patient. Reducing and toning the arm is a slow procedure but with the strap adding direction and force to your motions, a steady effort will produce definite results within a few weeks.

BONE-WEARY? CROSS? NEVER FUN TO BE WITH? Perk up your spirits and restore your charm-quotient now! "Personality Through Diet," a teen-slanted diet guide and personality builder, may be just the thing to pep up your flagging charm. A quarter and your name and address sent to "Secrets of Charm," c/o this newspaper, will bring you your handy copy.

County Hears Road Workers

Another dispute concerning the Allegany County Roads Department developed at Tuesday's meeting of the county commissioners.

A roads unit worker, who said he represented about 15 members of the department, appeared before the board to air various grievances which he said he and the other men have.

Among the items cited by the roads worker was the transfer of snow plow crews from one section of the county to another for no apparent reason. The man stated that after a roads worker learns the roadways in the section he has been assigned, it is difficult to familiarize himself with another section.

The man said that he could "take all day" to recount the grievances but thought it would be best to have a meeting of the roads workers and the county board to thrash out the problems he and the men seek to have corrected.

Commissioner Russell Carder, who has jurisdiction over the Roads Department, said he had received complaints recently along the same lines.

Commissioners Robert Little Ebert and Carder said they would arrange a meeting with the men as soon as Commissioner Louis V. Shinnamon returns from a trip.

FALSE TEETH
That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two years ago Mom and Dad were divorced. Some kids get to choose the parent they want to live with, but nobody asked me. I'm 15, my brother is 16. Mom divorced Dad for another man who changed his mind about marrying her. Now she has another boy friend who is mostly out of work.

Dad gives Mom $550 a month which is supposed to be support money for my brother and me. She hasn't bought us one stitch of clothes since the divorce — only two pairs of shoes in two years. If I didn't earn some money sitting and if Dad and Grandma didn't send us Christmas and birthday money we'd be in rags. My brother is in worse shape than I am because he has grown a lot and nothing fits him.

We get $1 a week for milk money (we carry lunch) and that's it. Yesterday Mom bought her boy friend some new clothes and a second-hand car because he needs it for a job, she said.

We don't think she is being fair and we would like your advice. —RAGGEDY ANN AND ANDY

DEAR ANN AND ANDY: Your Dad should be told immediately. Your mother is involved in a sordid mess and he is the one who should straighten it out.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I suspect I am not the only physician who reads your column every day. I seldom disagree with you, but I did recently. Please reconsider your advice to "Horrified."

She wrote about a gossipy nurse who had discussed her medical file with friends. You advised the patient to "Change doctors, and if the question is ever raised as to why, explain—leaving out all names, of course."

If the patient takes your advice, who suffers? First, the patient, because he risks less effective care which results from a loss in continuity of medical history. Second, the physician, because he loses a patient.

The real culprit — the gossipy nurse — loses nothing.

rse should be re-orted to the County Medical Society or the physician should be told directly.

FORT WORTH M. D.

DEAR DOCTOR: You are so right. I was wrong. I accept two hard swats with an old ether mask.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I and another couple (also married about 10 years) went to a movie last night. This movie was for adults only. There were six teenagers sitting in the row ahead of us. They looked about 16.

The movie was beautifully done but it was not for 16-year-old kids. What could have been a delightful evening for us was ruined by these kids giggling, punching each other and laughing in the wrong places.

Please tell me, Ann, why do teenagers laugh during the most tender and meaningful parts of a movie? I can't for the life of me figure it out. Our children will be teenagers in a few years and I would like to be able to understand this. Thanks for whatever help you can give. —EVANSTON

DEAR EVANSTON: Laughter, particularly the giggly type, is the result of self-consciousness. When teenagers are embarrased they often react with giggles. (P. S. Some adults do too.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO AFRAID OF GOSSIPS: So, if they talk what will they say? Probably, "How wonderful that two nice people got together." By all means accept his invitation and have a good time.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

War Reminder Urged In Use Of Battleship

TOKYO (UPI) — An American artist in Tokyo says the battleship USS Missouri, on which Japan surrendered in World War II, should be anchored permanently in Tokyo Bay to remind Japanese of the folly of military adventures.

"Remember the Missouri" is the catch phrase coined by artist Walt Keane, whose pictures of mournful, big-eyed slum children won him an international reputation.

The 44-year-old artist recently was in Tokyo to supervise publication of a portfolio of his paintings.

Keane tells Japanese friends the battleship should be anchored right on the spot where the surrender took place.

"As in the joke about the guy who tries to kiss every girl he meets, I get a lot of cool stares," Keane conceded. "But you'd be surprised at the number of affirmative nods."

The Missouri now is berthed in Bremerton, Wash., with the U.S. mothball fleet.

Suggestions have been made for its enshrinement at San Francisco, St. Louis, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Pearl Harbor.

Keane said most of his support for the idea comes from younger Japanese, who think the older generation needs a permanent reminder of the disaster to which Japanese militarists led the country.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I suspect I am not the only physician who reads your column every day. I seldom disagree with you, but I did recently. Please reconsider your advice to "Horrified."

She wrote about a gossipy nurse who had discussed her medical file with friends. You advised the patient to "Change doctors, and if the question is ever raised as to why, explain—leaving out all names, of course."

If the patient takes your advice, who suffers? First, the patient, because he risks less effective care which results from a loss in continuity of medical history. Second, the physician, because he loses a patient.

The real culprit — the gossipy nurse — loses nothing.

rse should be reported to the County Medical Society or the physician should be told directly.

FORT WORTH M. D.

DEAR DOCTOR: You are so right. I was wrong. I accept two hard swats with an old ether mask.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I and another couple (also married about 10 years) went to a movie last night. This movie was for adults only. There were six teenagers sitting in the row ahead of us. They looked about 16.

The movie was beautifully done but it was not for 16-year-old kids. What could have been a delightful evening for us was ruined by these kids giggling, punching each other and laughing in the wrong places.

Please tell me, Ann, why do teenagers laugh during the most tender and meaningful parts of a movie? I can't for the life of me figure it out. Our children will be teenagers in a few years and I would like to be able to understand this. Thanks for whatever help you can give. —EVANSTON

DEAR EVANSTON: Laughter, particularly the giggly type, is the result of self-consciousness. When teenagers are embarrased they often react with giggles. (P. S. Some adults do too.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO AFRAID OF GOSSIPS: So, if they talk what will they say? Probably, "How wonderful that two nice people got together." By all means accept his invitation and have a good time.

To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

War Reminder Urged In Use Of Battleship

TOKYO (UPI) — An American artist in Tokyo says the battleship USS Missouri, on which Japan surrendered in World War II, should be anchored permanently in Tokyo Bay to remind Japanese of the folly of military adventures.

"Remember the Missouri" is the catch phrase coined by artist Walt Keane, whose pictures of mournful, big-eyed slum children won him an international reputation.

The 44-year-old artist recently was in Tokyo to supervise publication of a portfolio of his paintings.

Keane tells Japanese friends the battleship should be anchored right on the spot where the surrender took place.

"As in the joke about the guy who tries to kiss every girl he meets, I get a lot of cool stares," Keane conceded. "But you'd be surprised at the number of affirmative nods."

The Missouri now is berthed in Bremerton, Wash., with the U.S. mothball fleet.

Suggestions have been made for its enshrinement at San Francisco, St. Louis, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Pearl Harbor.

Keane said most of his support for the idea comes from younger Japanese, who think the older generation needs a permanent reminder of the disaster to which Japanese militarists led the country.

Plans Call For Moving London Church To U.S.

LONDON (UPI) — If all goes well, plans to move one of London's most historic churches to the United States as a memorial to Sir Winston Churchill will get under way by the end of the year.

The church is St. Mary Aldermanbury, located in the City the heart of London's financial and trading district.

Today it is a bombed-out shell. Only the walls, the tower and the interior pillars remain standing as a result of a German air raid in World War II.

It still is beautiful.

The simple but powerful lines given the building in 1670 by the master Sir Christopher Wren, who also designed nearby St. Paul's Cathedral, still can be seen.

Experts say that with the help of contemporary drawings St. Mary could be fully restored as Wren originally planned it.

The plan is to move the church block - by - block to Westminister College, Fulton, Mo., where Sir Winston made his famous "Iron Curtain" speech in 1946.

Parliamentary approval for the move is needed because St. Mary Aldermanbury on the street of that name is owned by the Church of England and is therefore state property.

Bills giving permission for the project will be filed in parliament later this year. If they pass, as seems likely, the work of moving the estimated 655 tons of masonry by ship will begin.

If St. Mary Aldermanbury does get to Westminister, it will serve as a chapel for the school's 650 students.

Part of the proposed restoration would include a window showing the Churchill coat of arms.

There it would stand as a memorial to Anglo-American friendship and to the man who called in 1946 for a closer union between American and Britain to stem Soviet expansion. He also named the post-war era when he said:

"From Stettin in the Baltic to Irieste in the Adriatic an iron curtain has descended across the continent."

The whale has a gestation period of 10 months.

New Weather Tool To Aid Airline Pilots

SUDBURY, Mass. (UPI)—The weatherman has a new tool—a revolutionary digital device that spots storms, tornadoes, hurricanes and hailstorms "instantly" and can speed data to airline pilots and air traffic controllers and give advance warnings on flash floods.

The "instant" weather tool can drastically reduce the time required to interpret and report storm conditions anywhere in the United States and allow the weatherman to update storm conditions two or three times an hour in rapidly developing situations.

Known as STRADAP—Storm Radar Data Processor—the device has been successfully tested by the Air Force Cambridge Research Laboratories' Weather Radar Branch here.

Dr. David Atlas, chief of the Air Force branch, said a network of approximately 100 long-range radars and Storm Processor units could provide automatic mapping for the entire country. Atlas, who conceived the idea, said a complete national network is feasible by 1967 if appropriations are forthcoming.

The Storm Processor unit built by Budd Electronics of Long Island City, N.Y., is designed to replace the time-consuming inter-radar storm images by human observers.

It operates automatically in producing two storm maps made up entirely of numerals, one showing storm intensity, and the other height. On the first map, numerals from one to 7 indicate the degree of storm intensity. The height map numerals indicate the storm tops in 10,000 feet categories.

New College Admission Policy To Aid Students

By JOHN F. McDONOUGH

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — High school seniors who have cringed at the thought of cramming for college board examinations will be encouraged by a new admissions program being tested at Brown University.

Ten per cent of each freshman class for four years will consist of students who are considered "academic risks." The program, financed by a $155,000 Ford Foundation grant, is designed to determine if there are standards which might be used to predict undergraduate or post-graduate success despite certain academic shortcomings in high school.

Officials at this Ivy League school said they have found it increasingly important to look beyond a student's academic record and his college entrance test scores in considering his application.

University officials pointed out, however, that they already admit certain sub-par freshmen who show signs of promise.

"At the present time," said Dr. Barnaby C. Keenedy, university president, "we deliberately admit a number of students who are not objectively qualified, but who have strong desirable characteristics."

"This is done intuitively at least in part," he said. "And qualms of conscience are raised since their admission excludes obvious qualified applicants. However, their performance has been so good that the qualms are quieted."

Admissions director Charles H. Doebler IV said in picking freshmen, attention must be paid to "those immeasurable intangibles of originality, humor, vigor, maturity, enthusiasm and loyalty, all of which have considerable bearing on the ultimate product."

The study will begin with a poll of all Brown alumni from the years 1947 through 1952 to see how the academic risks of those years are doing now. A similar look will be taken at the current student body.

House Vote Extends Draft Law 4 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed 387-3 Monday a bill extending the draft law for another four years.

First, it rejected amendments to slice the extension period and lower the average age at which men are inducted.

Most members indicated they don't like the idea of a permanent peacetime draft, but conceded the country can't get along without it now.

The Armed Services Committee had labeled the measure "essential to national defense."

Let's Keep Public Interest In Mind

A White House commission has presented a report which suggests "guidelines" for railroad and airline mergers. The report is open to question on several points.

The commission recommends that if a merger proposal doesn't benefit the public by providing lower fares and freight rates and more frequent service, it should be rejected. That seems reasonable.

But then the commission blithely observes that the problems of a railroad or airline in financial difficulties might better be solved through bankruptcy reorganization or "dissolution."

What this seems to mean is that if, for any reason, a merger couldn't produce better and cheaper service, then the preferable alternative would be no service at all.

Then there is the question whether the report does not constitute improper influence. It attempts to set policy in an area Congress has assigned to agencies not under the jurisdiction of the Executive Branch. Railroad and airline mergers are the responsibility, respectively, of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Civil Aeronautics Board. They were made independent so they could reach decisions based on facts, not political expediency.

There is more than a trace of such expediency in the committee's report. It emphasizes the "public interest" in mergers, which is undeniable, but the public interest is diverse and embraces conflicting elements. The interests of passengers or freight shippers are not necessarily the same as the interests of the railroad brotherhoods or the airline unions.

Commuters, air travelers and shippers might prefer somewhat lessened competition to complete elimination of competition which "dissolution" could bring.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Nobody Has A Right But Me

Businessmen, so I am convinced, are the salt of the earth. They assume all the risks that go with creating the goods and providing the jobs that keep people alive. They accept crushing taxes, and they dutifully fill out reams of onerous forms. Whenever a businessman is called a "robber baron," I automatically bridle at the insult. There are times, however, when specific businessmen desert their own free enterprise philosophy, and when they do this it is hard to speak up convincingly in defense of the system which has made the whole nation prosper.

If there is one thing a businessman should bend over backward to do, it is to give his competitor a free field with the expectation that no favors will be asked either way. The philosophy of competition demands it; the business system as a whole needs it if it is to put up any convincing argument against socialism. Yet every day, it seems, the newspapers are spotted with accounts of the attempts of a few businessmen to get a law or a regulation adopted which would make it more difficult for their rivals to bid for the customers' trade.

There are the truckers, for example — not all the truckers, but some of them. Through their trade association truckers have been calling upon the federal government to prevent railroad mergers. The railroads rightly retort that government regulation has already stacked the cards against them in their efforts to compete for the carrying trade of the country. They argue quite correctly that mergers should be permitted in order to help them stay alive. But just when I have worked up some indignation against the truckers and a corresponding measure of sympathy for the railroads, my eye lights on a speech or a resolution put forth by some railway spokesman calling for the suppression of coal slurry pipelines.

The coal men, of course, insist upon the right to pulverize coal and ship it through pipes in a liquefied form. Well, they certainly should have the right: pipelines are part of a free enterprise economy, and the railroads have no call to try to use legal force to sabotage them. But just when I am about to mount the intellectual barricades in behalf of the coal slurry men, my roving eye encounters a news story about coal men who are demanding that the government tighten up the regulations against the importation of foreign residual fuel oil.

So it goes, ring-around-the-rosy. Everybody seems to be demanding free trade for himself and the suppression of everybody else. Theatre owners march on Washington to testify against the licensing of pay-as-you-see TV systems. The free lance dealers in commercial credit call upon the Department of Justice to force General Motors to divest itself of its big car credit affiliate, the General Motors Acceptance Corporation. Labor unions interpose no objections when the anti-trust enforcers go after the manufacturers of brass goods or electrical equipment. But their spokesmen descend as a body on Washington to lobby against any proposition that might put industry-wide unions under the same anti-trust regulations that apply to everyone else.

Not so many years ago Hans Isbrandtsen, the Danish-American ship line operator, had the bright idea of putting the United States, his adopted country, back into the whaling business. He bought an old U.S. Navy vessel and had it converted into a floating whale oil rendering factory. Unfortunately, he let a foreign oil tanker replenish his ship's fuel supply off the coast of Antarctica. The foreign oil tanker, to enable Isbrandtsen's crew to stay longer on the whaling grounds, loaded up in turn with some of Mr. Isbrandtsen's American-processed whale oil and tried to bring it into an American port. Whereupon spokesmen for the domestic lard and fish oil industries seized upon the technicality to claim that the Isbrandtsen whale oil, though it had originated in an American-owned operation, was "foreign" because it had been transported by a foreigner. They insisted that the oil must be taxed at the full rate for "alien blubber." With such an attitude to contend with, Isbrandtsen got out of the whaling business—and America was left without a whale ship on the Seven Seas.

Thus it goes when one industry invokes the power of the government to suppress another. But with everybody invoking the "law" to clobber his competitors, just who is safe? The truckers try to ambush the railroads, the railroads attack the coal slurry men, the coal slurry men proceed to smack the residual oil men, the oil men, in turn, clobber each other, depending on whether their wells are in America or overseas. And trade as a whole shrinks, and everybody gets clobbered in the end.

Is Exercise Of National Rights An 'Act Of War'?

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — When is a blockade an "act of war," and when is it just a pacific exercise of national rights President Kennedy has said a blockade of Cuba would be an "act of war," but his use of the word "blockade" is too broad.

The answer is to be found in "Corpus Juris Secundum," an authoritative compilation of law based on judicial decisions. This book is often used for reference in our federal courts in considering cases, including those that involve seizure of or damage to property when a "blockade" occurs.

Under the heading, "Forcible Measures of Redress Short of War," the following definition is given:

"Certain measures of redress taken by one nation against another are regarded as short of war, although they may involve an exercise of force. Such acts are usually classified as retorsion, reprisal, pacific blockade, and embargo.

"The mere suspension of the relations of peace usually subsisting between two nations, and the taking by one of them of such measures of redress against the other, does not of itself constitute war.

"Severance of relations, while not involving actual force, is nevertheless coercive. A severance of diplomatic relations is a non-amicable measure, and there is a possibility that at any time one government or the other may engage in various methods of retortion or retaliation without state of war resulting therefrom. . . ..

"The so-called 'pacific blockade' is a means of coercion, ordinarily treated as falling short of war, consisting in the interruption of commercial intercourse with certain ports or coasts of a state to secure redress for an international wrong.

"The accepted position is that pacific blockades should not bear on third states except as they are affected by the constraint directly applied to the port or ports blockaded."

It is added that, if the blockade requires the seizure of the vessels of a third state, then a "regular blockade" might become necessary and this could involve a state of war.

But the main point is that "measures short of war" are a recognized right of redress in international law. The United States in 1940, during the administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, engaged in several such measures, including the "leasing" of several destroyers to Great Britain for use in her war with Germany, into which this country had not yet entered.

Under the Kennedy administration, the U. S. Navy intercepted some foreign vessels last autumn when events reached a climax in Cuba. It was called a "quarantine," but it was in fact a form of "blockade." This could have been construed by other governments as an "act of war" in the accepted sense, but Mr. Kennedy took that chance. He implied in his latest press conference, on March 6, that he would do the same thing again if he felt it necessary.

So the argument turns on what steps it is necessary to take to keep armament and shipments of oil and other products from reaching Cuba. A "pacific blockade" is a legitimate measure of reprisal for the hostile acts committed by the Castro government, such as the seizure of American property without compensation and the acceptance from the Soviet government of offensive weapons, including missiles and airplanes capable of being used to injure American citizens in the southeastern part of the United States.

As a matter of fact, the United States could choose to regard the landing of "offensive weapons" in Cuba as a hostile act by Russia directed at this country and could hold the Soviet government to accountability. Certainly there is no question but that the Castro government committed an act of war when it allowed Soviet troops and armament to land on its soil for the purpose of preparing for an attack on the United States.

Thus, "blockade" and an "act of war" are words that depend for their real meaning on what interpretation a government chooses to give them. A course of "watchful waiting" can always be adopted until some overt act removes all doubt as to what is an "act of war." Economic pressure, however, can be exerted at any time by means of a boycott and by other "measures short of war," including "pacific blockade" These steps would be "defensive" and would be designed to weaken the Castro government's power to injure this country or the peoples of other countries in this hemisphere.

CONFUSED — The word "disarray" has been used frequently of late to describe the state of affairs in the Atlantic Alliance following French leader Charles de Gaulle's actions on such matters as atomic weapons and Britain's entry into the European Common Market. And apparently the New Frontier is a bit confused as to whether the word's use is correct.

Under Secretary of State George W. Ball recently denounced use of the word as being "journalistic," apparently in the belief that it draws too gloomy a picture of the state of the Alliance.

But some newsmen with long memories recalled that President Kennedy used the word in his first State of the Union message when he talked about "some disarray" in America's alliances.

The very same day that Ball denounced the use of the word, William C. Foster, director of U. S. Arms Control and Disarmament, spoke before a college audience. He remarked: "I am aware, of course, as you are, that the Atlantic community stands in some disarray at this moment in time."

All of this has prompted some observers of the Washington scene to comment that "there appears to be some disarray on the New Frontier on the use of the word disarray."

TVA's 28 Years: Norris Dam And The Clinch River Valley Revisited

By Drew Pearson

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — If you want to understand progress in the United States, sometimes you have to look backward.

In 1935, this column reported on the early beginnings of the Tennessee Valley Authority—the drill crew attacking the hillside of dolomite above Norris Dam like puppets in a pantomime, the giant mortar and pestle grinding boulders with the slow force of some prehistoric monster masticating; the tilting buckets, the conveyor belts, the sandwashers, as hour after hour, one shift after another, the puny persistence of mere man attacked the complacent hills above the River Clinch.

Those were the days when the TVA was a very hotly debated subject. Gathered round Tom Keck's store down the canyon of the Clinch, you could hear sermons preached about the iniquity of permitting man to despoil the Lord's work.

"This TVA is like the seven-headed monster that rose up out of the sea and had dominion over man and beast," proclaimed Squire John Keck around the stove in his cousin's store. "Genesis, Eight, Twenty-One. The Lord made a covenant with Noah never again to destroy the earth with water.

"Them TVA men is all guilty. Their punishment shall be a violent storm or earthquake that'll engulf them all, them and the dam and all their wilful machinations."

Even The Dead Moved

But high up on the hills, the compressors continued to drill into the dolomite rock and the buckets of concrete continued to pour cold lava into the great form which was to become Norris Dam. Even the graves were desecrated by the onward march of the bulldozers and the steam shovels — another sore point with Squire John.

"They'll be punished," he declared. "It's profanation to dig from the Lord's holy ground the bodies that's been given to his care. There's not a man among us who would tread upon a human grave, and here's the TVA with picks and shovels turnin' up the bones of the dead and leavin' graves yawnin' like the Judgment Day."

That was a quarter of a century ago.

This week as I traveled along the River Clinch, the march of progress had not slowed. New dams were being built to meet the industrial thrist for electric power, and even a giant steam plant is going up on the River Clinch at Bull's Run. It will be one of the biggest steam plants in the world with a smoke stack nearly twice as high as the Washington Monument, and almost as high as the Eiffel Tower without its television antenna. It will stand 900 feet high in those Tennessee hills, the highest structure ever made there by man.

The steam plant at Bull's Run means that the surge of industry to take advantage of cheap power has outstripped the capabilities of Norris Dam and the other dams, and the coal miners who once opposed the TVA as a curse upon their product now find TVA their best customer.

No, the march of progress has not slowed; and along with the new industries have come new superhighways, new modern schools, and new ranch houses nestling in the hillsides.

And if there are any Squire Kecks around to invoke the wrath of the Lord against the TVA men, I could not find them. I could only find that when Rep. Bruce Alger, the pioneer Republican from Texas, came to east Tennessee to criticize TVA at a Lincoln's birthday rally, his fellow Republican, Howard Baker, who has to live and get re-elected in that district, found it wise to stand up and defend the TVA.

Dempster-Dumpster

One industry which has thrived on TVA power is a family firm dedicated to keeping America clean. The head of the firm, George R. Dempster, calls himself "Dempster the Dumpster," and, with his five nephews, is the biggest manufacturer of garbage and trash disposal containers in the world.

Dempster, who used to be the mayor of Knoxville, has a passion not only for keeping cities clean, but at the greatest possible saving of labor. His trucks can slip long mechanical arms under huge containers of trash, hoist them on the truck body, and cart them off to the city dump without the truck driver even getting out of the cab.

Newest Dempster invention is an aluminum container which will slide from a truck to a railroad flatcar in a period of one minute and 30 seconds, again without the truck driver getting out of his cab. Railway Express is adopting these from coast to coast in a streamlining operation which will probably put the railroads back as tough competitors to long-distance trucking.

Tennessee Merry-Go-Round

Politicians are speculating whether Gov. Frank Clement, Tennessee's spellbinding orator, will run for the Senate against Sen. Estes Kefauver or Sen. Albert Gore. Kefauver is considered unbeatable. Gore is also strong. Both are among the most courageous members of the Senate . . . When the crack Carson-Newman College (Baptist) basketball team arrived in Kansas City for the annual basketball runoffs, its members dropped in to see former President Harry Truman. "I'm one of those damned Baptists too," he remarked . . . Carson-Newman College is barred by its regional Baptist conference from accepting federal money or even federal loans for new buildings. This is the same policy adopted by the Lutherans, and illustrates why so much interest is focused on the higher education bill in Congress which calls for huge amounts in loans and grant sto private and church colleges. The bill as passed by the House last year permitted church colleges to get outright grants for buildings not used for chapels or religious instruction. Congressmen argued that this got around the constitutional provision for separation of church and state. Senators disagreed, and the House bill was never adopted. Catholic leaders in the House refuse dto accept the Senate version . . . Refusal of many Protestant colleges to accept even federal loans has stiffened Protestant opposition to this bill.

Millions Of Widows Prove The Male Is Frail

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The frailty of the American male frequently is judged by the number of widows in this country. There is no doubt that the woods are full of them (8½ million) as a result of the higher mortality among men. In 1961, according to Metropolitan Life's Statistical Bulletin, 550,000 wives became widows. Somewhat half the total were under age 60.

But this is only part of the story. Statistical studies show that the survivors may anticipate many years of widowhood. Three of every four women who are widowed at age 45 can expect to live 15 years or longer. This information is of practical value because the survivor must prepare for a long life after the death of her spouse. This increase in longevity reflects the good health of the average woman.

The Bulletin says more than two-thirds of all widows maintain a household of their own and a large proportion have children or other relatives living with them. Serious economic problems occur, especially among the younger women with children under 18.

Many seek gainful employment and 2½ million widows are said to be working full or part time. Some have trouble finding a job because of age or lack of skill. In my opinion, there is no better insurance for a young woman than to learn a profession such as nursing or secretarial work. She may never need this training after marriage but it would become a valuable asset should the death of the breadwinner break up the family.

Adequate insurance is helpful but the best solution to the problem is to keep that husband of yours healthy. Stress moderation in all things, normal weight, a balanced diet, exercise, adequate sleep, and an annual vacation.

All work and no play may make Jack a dull boy. But it is more likely to make his wife a rich young widow.

VARICOSE ULCER

H. M. writes: I have varicose veins and bumped one of them. An ulcer developed which heals for a while but breaks open again. Can these sores be cured?

REPLY

Yes. Temporary improvement can be obtained by remaining in bed with the leg elevated 4 to 6 inches or by wearing elastic stockings or bandages. Permanent relief follows elimination of the causative varicose vein.

FAINTNESS AFTER SMOKING

J. M. writes: I just started smoking a short time ago. Could this be the cause of spells of faintness and shortness of breath? I had a medical checkup recently and the doctor did not find anything wrong.

REPLY

This is a good possibility, if you are sensitive to nicotine. Stop smoking. If symptoms disappear, you have the answer.

FLASH BULBS

Mrs. B. writes: Is it harmful to an infant's eyes to face a camera while taking pictures indoors with flash bulbs?

REPLY

No, but it is advisable to use a screen, in case the bulb explodes.

EFFECTS OF SMOKING

L. writes: I know that smoking affects the nervous system and lungs but wonder if it has an ill effect upon the eyes.

REPLY

Yes. Smoke may irritate the outer layers of the eyes and the nicotine may affect circulation to the retina. Overindulgence may disturb the optic nerve, leading to toxic amblyopia.

HOMESICKNESS

Mrs. D. writes: Is there any way to cure homesickness? Whenever I go away I keep thinking of home and cannot enjoy my vacation.

REPLY

Homesickness is a healthy disease and does not require treatment unless it interferes seriously with your opportunity to travel or go away on vacation.

WON'T MELT FAT

J. K. writes: I have very large hips and bust. Will applying a heating pad to these parts to lose weight be harmful or helpful?

REPLY

Neither. The only way to lose weight is via a low calorie diet.

ANIMAL RINGWORM

J. B. writes: If a horse has ringworm, can its rider contract the infection?

REPLY

Certain types of animal ringworm are transmissible to man but this is unusual.

CLUBFOOT

Mrs. A. writes: Two of my grandchildren were born with clubfoot. Does this disorder run in families?

REPLY

Yes, but the condition is hereditary in less than 20 per cent of the cases.

TOMORROW: Research on the thymus gland.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

In Santa Barbara, they're talking about a millionaire who wanted an expensive violin for his son. He was shown a Stradivarius, allegedly made in 1748, and priced at a cool hundred thousand dollars. The millionaire turned it down—not because of the price, however. "The firm that made that fiddle in 1748," he explained, "must have been out of business for years. What would we do for spare parts?"

A kind-hearted farmer recoiled at the thought of using a hatchet on the fat turkey his wife had singled out for the family's Thanksgiving dinner. He decided to shoot the gobbler.

The wife listened carefully, but heard no shot. She called to her son, who had gone out to witness the execution, "Hasn't your father killed that turkey yet?"

"Not yet," corroborated the son. "It won't get in the way!"

One of Noel Coward's Jamaica acquaintances was bemoaning the fact that the rank of his old friends was being depleted at an alarming accelerated rate. "Two funerals this week alone," he sighed. Coward assured him grimly, "Personally, I'm delighted now if they last through nch!"

Getting There Is Fun?

By John Crosby

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland

St. Moritz is a mervelous place to be. Nestled in the beautiful sunlit Engadin Valley, surrounded by 12,000-foot mountains to ski down. Bobsled runs. Curling on the lakes. Beautiful women, great food. You can't beat the living, it's just getting here that's hell.

Earlier this winter I was in Geneva, just a couple of hundred miles away and I called a friend in St. Moritz and said I thought I'd come up for a day or two.

"Look," said my friend, "you can get to New York from where you are quicker." He was right, too.

New York to Geneva is eight hours. Geneva to St. Moritz—God knows. People have taken days.

Getting to St. Moritz in this day of the jet plane from anywhere takes stamina, patience, and lots of time. You take a plane from Paris to Zurich. Then you change your skis and luggage to a taxi.

Then you put all that stuff on a train, then you put all that gear on another train. When people arrive here, they're ready. Bobsledding, skiing, skiing, parties. L'amour.

Each of these amusements requires special equipment. A woman arrived yesterday with 30 pieces of luggage which ought to get her through to next Thursday. After that, she'll be running short of ski pants. (You can't use the same pair twice. Not here.)

The most painless way to get here from Paris is to take the night sleeper, leaving Paris at 10 p. m. and getting here, with only one change of train, around lunchtime the next day. Fourteen hours. (You can get from San Francisco to Tahiti in eight hours.)

You'd think that hotel keepers would agitate for faster direct service, in order to lure more people. Yes, you would, wouldn't you? Well, you'd be wrong. Part of the charm of St. Moritz is that it's damn hard to get to. Also, it's damn hard to go home. One doesn't go home lightly. You sit and think it over. Some people have sat and mulled this thing over for as long as four months, running up quite a hotel bill.

St. Moritz was the first place to use snow and ice as an attraction. Before St. Moritz snow and ice was considered a nuisance, something to flee from, not something to flee to.

The first winter visitors here were four Englishmen who were thought to be slightly nutty. They came here in 1864 on a bet with a canny Swiss innkeeper named Johannes Badrutt. The English arrived by sleigh just before Christmas and left just after Easter. That set the pattern.

"For decades, we would fill the hotel just once, in December, and have the same people with us the following spring," said Andrea Badrutt, the great-grandson of the man who made that bet, and the proprietor of the Palace Hotel. "When this hotel was built by my great-grandfather, it had a bathroom on every floor and was the most luxurious hotel in Europe."

"How did people manage to stay here four months with only one bathroom to a floor?" I asked.

He threw up his hands. "Everyone knew everyone then. It was a society international. Hungarians, Poles, English, Americans, Germans, Italians. They all knew each other before World War I. It was a big house party. All international, all cousins.

"The Hungarians and Poles used to be fabulous spenders. Well, the Liechtensteiners, too. Then, of course, the maharajahs. The Maharajah of Hyderabad would arrive with 17 cooks." (Awful strain on that one bathroom.)

"How about the Russians?" I asked.

He shrugged: "Yes, the Russians came to St. Moritz, but they brought more servants than we could house. My father wouldn't have those people in this hotel. They were too crazy. They'd arrive with 40 servants for five people. They'd give parties and smash the glasses, smash up the rooms, smash everything."

And long before the loony English and the rich maharajahs and the crazy Russians and the big spending Poles, there were Romans quartered here. (The Chesa Veglia restaurant has a couple of Roman columns built into one of its dining rooms.) And before the Romans there were Etruscans and before them there were Druids—all of them toiling their way up 7,500 feet of mountain. It's been a tough climb for more than 2,000 years and we keep making the trip.

"What on earth were the Romans doing here?" I asked.

"Bathing," said Andrea Badrutt's wife, Cappy.

And another thing, they didn't even have one bathroom to a floor.

Let's Keep Public Interest In Mind

A White House commission has presented a report which suggests "guidelines" for railroad and airline mergers. The report is open to question on several points.

The commission recommends that if a merger proposal doesn't benefit the public by providing lower fares and freight rates and more frequent service, it should be rejected. That seems reasonable.

But then the commission blithely observes that the problems of a railroad or airline in financial difficulties might better be solved through bankruptcy reorganization or "dissolution."

What this seems to mean is that if, for any reason, a merger couldn't produce better and cheaper service, then the preferable alternative would be no service at all.

Then there is the question whether the report does not constitute improper influence. It attempts to set policy in an area Congress has assigned to agencies not under the jurisdiction of the Executive Branch. Railroad and airline mergers are the responsibility, respectively, of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Civil Aeronautics Board. They were made independent so they could reach decisions based on facts, not political expediency.

There is more than a trace of such expediency in the committee's report. It emphasizes the "public interest" in mergers, which is undeniable, but the public interest is diverse and embraces conflicting elements. The interests of passengers or freight shippers are not necessarily the same as the interests of the railroad brotherhoods or the airline unions.

Commuters, air travelers and shippers might prefer somewhat lessened competition to complete elimination of competition which "dissolution" could bring.

These Days

Nobody Has A Right But Me

Businessmen, so I am convinced, are the salt of the earth. They assume all the risks that go with creating the goods and providing the jobs that keep people alive. They accept crushing taxes, and they dutifully fill out reams of onerous forms. Whenever a businessman is called a "robber baron," I automatically bridle at the insult. There are times, however, when specific businessmen desert their own free enterprise philosophy, and when they do this it is hard to speak up convincingly in defense of the system which has made the whole nation prosper.

If there is one thing a businessman should bend over backward to do, it is to give his competitor a free field with the expectation that no favors will be asked either way. The philosophy of competition demands it; the business system as a whole needs it if it is to put up any convincing argument against socialism. Yet every day, it seems, the newspapers are spotted with accounts of the attempts of a few businessmen to get a law or a regulation adopted which would make it more difficult for their rivals to bid for the customers' trade.

There are the truckers, for example — not all the truckers, but some of them. Through their trade association truckers have been calling upon the federal government to prevent railroad mergers. The railroads rightly retort that government regulation has already stacked the cards against them in their efforts to compete for the carrying trade of the country. They argue quite correctly that mergers should be permitted in order to help them stay alive. But just when I have worked up some indignation against the truckers and a corresponding measure of sympathy for the railroads, my eye lights on a speech or a resolution put forth by some railway spokesman calling for the suppression of coal slurry pipelines.

The coal men, of course, insist upon the right to pulverize coal and ship it through pipes in a liquefied form. Well, they certainly should have the right: pipelines are part of a free enterprise economy, and the railroads have no call to try to use legal force to sabotage them. But just when I am about to mount the intellectual barricades in behalf of the coal slurry men, my roving eye encounters a news story about coal men who are demanding that the government tighten up the regulations against the importation of foreign residual fuel oil.

So it goes, ring-around-the-rosy. Everybody seems to be demanding free trade for himself and the suppression of everybody else. Theatre owners march on Washington to testify against the licensing of pay-as-you-see TV systems. The free lance dealers in commercial credit call upon the Department of Justice to force General Motors to divest itself of its big car credit affiliate, the General Motors Acceptance Corporation. Labor unions interpose no objections when the anti-trust enforcers go after the manufacturers of brass goods or electrical equipment. But their spokesmen descend as a body on Washington to lobby against any proposition that might put industry-wide unions under the same anti-trust regulations that apply to everyone else.

Not so many years ago Hans Isbrandtsen, the Danish-American ship line operator, had the bright idea of putting the United States, his adopted country, back into the whaling business. He bought an old U.S. Navy vessel and had it converted into a floating whale oil rendering factory. Unfortunately, he let a foreign oil tanker replenish his ship's fuel supply off the coast of Antarctica. The foreign oil tanker, to enable Isbrandtsen's crew to stay longer on the whaling grounds, loaded up in turn with some of Mr. Isbrandtsen's American-processed whale oil and tried to bring it into an American port. Whereupon spokesmen for the domestic lard and fish oil industries seized upon the technicality to claim that the Isbrandtsen whale oil, though it had originated in an American-owned operation, was "foreign" because it had been transported by a foreigner. They insisted that the oil must be taxed at the full rate for "alien blubber." With such an attitude to contend with, Isbrandtsen got out of the whaling business—and America was left without a whale ship on the Seven Seas.

Thus it goes when one industry invokes the power of the government to suppress another. But with everybody invoking the "law" to clobber his competitors, just who is safe? The truckers try to ambush the railroads, the railroads attack the coal slurry men, the coal slurry men proceed to smack the residual oil men, the oil men, in turn, clobber each other, depending on whether their wells are in America or overseas. And trade as a whole shrinks, and everybody gets clobbered in the end.

But high up on the hills, the compressors continued to drill into the dolomite rock and the buckets of concrete continued to pour cold lava into the great form which was to become Norris Dam. Even the graves were desecrated by the onward march of the bulldozers and the steam shovels — another sore point with Squire John.

"They'll be punished," he declared. "It's profanation to dig from the Lord's holy ground the bodies that's been given to his care. There's not a man among us who would tread upon a human grave, and here's the TVA with picks and shovels turnin' up the bones of the dead and leavin' graves yawnin' like the Judgment Day."

That was a quarter of a century ago.

This week as I traveled along the River Clinch, the march of progress had not slowed. New dams were being built to meet the industrial thrist for electric power, and even a giant steam plant is going up on the River Clinch at Bull's Run. It will be one of the biggest steam plants in the world with a smoke stack nearly twice as high as the Washington Monument, and almost as high as the Eiffel Tower without its television antenna. It will stand 900 feet high in those Tennessee hills, the highest structure ever made there by man.

The steam plant at Bull's Run means that the surge of industry to take advantage of cheap power has outstripped the capabilities of Norris Dam and the other dams, and the coal miners who once opposed the TVA as a curse upon their product now find TVA their best customer.

No, the march of progress has not slowed; and along with the new industries have come new superhighways, new modern schools, and new ranch houses nestling in the hillsides.

And if there are any Squire Kecks around to invoke the wrath of the Lord against the TVA men, I could not find them. I could only find that when Rep. Bruce Alger, the pioneer Republican from Texas, came to east Tennessee to criticize TVA at a Lincoln's birthday rally, his fellow Republican, Howard Baker, who has to live and get re-elected in that district, found it wise to stand up and defend the TVA.

Dempster-Dumpster

One industry which has thrived on TVA power is a family firm dedicated to keeping America clean. The head of the firm, George R. Dempster, calls himself "Dempster the Dumpster," and, with his five nephews, is the biggest manufacturer of garbage and trash disposal containers in the world.

Dempster, who used to be the mayor of Knoxville, has a passion not only for keeping cities clean, but at the greatest possible saving of labor. His trucks can slip long mechanical arms under huge containers of trash, hoist them on the truck body, and cart them off to the city dump without the truck driver even getting out of the cab.

Newest Dempster invention is an aluminum container which will slide from a truck to a railroad flatcar in a period of one minute and 30 seconds, again without the truck driver getting out of his cab. Railway Express is adopting these from coast to coast in a streamlining operation which will probably put the railroads back as tough competitors to long-distance trucking.

Tennessee Merry-Go-Round

Politicians are speculating whether Gov. Frank Clement, Tennessee's spellbinding orator, will run for the Senate against Sen. Estes Kefauver or Sen. Albert Gore. Kefauver is considered unbeatable. Gore is also strong. Both are among the most courageous members of the Senate . . . When the crack Carson-Newman College (Baptist) basketball team arrived in Kansas City for the annual basketball runoffs, its members dropped in to see former President Harry Truman. "I'm one of those damned Baptists too," he remarked . . . Carson-Newman College is barred by its regional Baptist conference from accepting federal money or even federal loans for new buildings. This is the same policy adopted by the Lutherans, and illustrates why so much interest is focused on the higher education bill in Congress which calls for huge amounts in loans and grant sto private and church colleges. The bill as passed by the House last year permitted church colleges to get outright grants for buildings not used for chapels or religious instruction. Congressmen argued that this got around the constitutional provision for separation of church and state. Senators disagreed, and the House bill was never adopted. Catholic leaders in the House refuse dto accept the Senate version . . . Refusal of many Protestant colleges to accept even federal loans has stiffened Protestant opposition to this bill.

Millions Of Widows Prove The Male Is Frail

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The frailty of the American male frequently is judged by the number of widows in this country. There is no doubt that the woods are full of them (8½ million) as a result of the higher mortality among men. In 1961, according to Metropolitan Life's Statistical Bulletin, 550,000 wives became widows. Somewhat half the total were under age 60.

But this is only part of the story. Statistical studies show that the survivors may anticipate many years of widowhood. Three of every four women who are widowed at age 45 can expect to live 15 years or longer. This information is of practical value because the survivor must prepare for a long life after the death of her spouse. This increase in longevity reflects the good health of the average woman.

The Bulletin says more than two-thirds of all widows maintain a household of their own and a large proportion have children or other relatives living with them. Serious economic problems occur, especially among the younger women with children under 18.

Many seek gainful employment and 2½ million widows are said to be working full or part time. Some have trouble finding a job because of age or lack of skill. In my opinion, there is no better insurance for a young woman than to learn a profession such as nursing or secretarial work. She may never need this training after marriage but it would become a valuable asset should the death of the breadwinner break up the family.

Adequate insurance is helpful but the best solution to the problem is to keep that husband of yours healthy. Stress moderation in all things, normal weight, a balanced diet, exercise, adequate sleep, and an annual vacation.

All work and no play may make Jack a dull boy. But it is more likely to make his wife a rich young widow.

VARICOSE ULCER

H. M. writes: I have varicose veins and bumped one of them. An ulcer developed which heals for a while but breaks open again. Can these sores be cured?

REPLY

Yes. Temporary improvement can be obtained by remaining in bed with the leg elevated 4 to 6 inches or by wearing elastic stockings or bandages. Permanent relief follows elimination of the causative varicose vein.

FAINTNESS AFTER SMOKING

J. M. writes: I just started smoking a short time ago. Could this be the cause of spells of faintness and shortness of breath? I had a medical checkup recently and the doctor did not find anything wrong.

REPLY

This is a good possibility, if you are sensitive to nicotine. Stop smoking. If symptoms disappear, you have the answer.

FLASH BULBS

Mrs. B. writes: Is it harmful to an infant's eyes to face a camera while taking pictures indoors with flash bulbs?

REPLY

No, but it is advisable to use a screen, in case the bulb explodes.

EFFECTS OF SMOKING

L. writes: I know that smoking affects the nervous system and lungs but wonder if it has an ill effect upon the eyes.

REPLY

Yes. Smoke may irritate the outer layers of the eyes and the nicotine may affect circulation to the retina. Overindulgence may disturb the optic nerve, leading to toxic amblyopia.

HOMESICKNESS

Mrs. D. writes: Is there any way to cure homesickness? Whenever I go away I keep thinking of home and cannot enjoy my vacation.

REPLY

Homesickness is a healthy disease and does not require treatment unless it interferes seriously with your opportunity to travel or go away on vacation.

WON'T MELT FAT

J. K. writes: I have very large hips and bust. Will applying a heating pad to these parts to lose weight be harmful or helpful?

REPLY

Neither. The only way to lose weight is via a low calorie diet.

ANIMAL RINGWORM

J. B. writes: If a horse has ringworm, can its rider contract the infection?

REPLY

Certain types of animal ringworm are transmissible to man but this is unusual.

CLUBFOOT

Mrs. A. writes: Two of my grandchildren were born with clubfoot. Does this disorder run in families?

REPLY

Yes, but the condition is hereditary in less than 20 per cent of the cases.

TOMORROW: Research on the thymus gland.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

In Santa Barbara, they're talking about a millionaire who wanted an expensive violin for his son. He was shown a Stradivarius, allegedly made in 1748, and priced at a cool hundred thousand dollars. The millionaire turned it down—not because of the price, however. "The firm that made that fiddle in 1748," he explained, "must have been out of business for years. What would we do for spare parts?"

A kind-hearted farmer recoiled at the thought of using a hatchet on the fat turkey his wife had singled out for the family's Thanksgiving dinner. He decided to shoot the gobbler.

The wife listened carefully, but heard no shot. She called to her son, who had gone out to witness the execution, "Hasn't your father killed that turkey yet?"

"Not yet," corroborated the son. "It won't get in the way!"

One of Noel Coward's Jamaica acquaintances was bemoaning the fact that the rank of his old friends was being depleted at an alarming accelerated rate. "Two funerals this week alone," he sighed. Coward assured him grimly, "Personally, I'm delighted now if they last through nch!"

Getting There Is Fun?

By John Crosby

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland

St. Moritz is a mervelous place to be. Nestled in the beautiful sunlit Engadin Valley, surrounded by 12,000-foot mountains to ski down. Bobsled runs. Curling on the lakes. Beautiful women, great food. You can't beat the living, it's just getting here that's hell.

Earlier this winter I was in Geneva, just a couple of hundred miles away and I called a friend in St. Moritz and said I thought I'd come up for a day or two.

"Look," said my friend, "you can get to New York from where you are quicker." He was right, too.

New York to Geneva is eight hours. Geneva to St. Moritz—God knows. People have taken days.

Getting to St. Moritz in this day of the jet plane from anywhere takes stamina, patience, and lots of time. You take a plane from Paris to Zurich. Then you change your skis and luggage to a taxi.

Then you put all that stuff on a train, then you put all that gear on another train. When people arrive here, they're ready. Bobsledding, skiing, skiing, parties. L'amour.

Each of these amusements requires special equipment. A woman arrived yesterday with 30 pieces of luggage which ought to get her through to next Thursday. After that, she'll be running short of ski pants. (You can't use the same pair twice. Not here.)

The most painless way to get here from Paris is to take the night sleeper, leaving Paris at 10 p. m. and getting here, with only one change of train, around lunchtime the next day. Fourteen hours. (You can get from San Francisco to Tahiti in eight hours.)

You'd think that hotel keepers would agitate for faster direct service, in order to lure more people. Yes, you would, wouldn't you? Well, you'd be wrong. Part of the charm of St. Moritz is that it's damn hard to get to. Also, it's damn hard to go home. One doesn't go home lightly. You sit and think it over. Some people have sat and mulled this thing over for as long as four months, running up quite a hotel bill.

St. Moritz was the first place to use snow and ice as an attraction. Before St. Moritz snow and ice was considered a nuisance, something to flee from, not something to flee to.

The first winter visitors here were four Englishmen who were thought to be slightly nutty. They came here in 1864 on a bet with a canny Swiss innkeeper named Johannes Badrutt. The English arrived by sleigh just before Christmas and left just after Easter. That set the pattern.

"For decades, we would fill the hotel just once, in December, and have the same people with us the following spring," said Andrea Badrutt, the great-grandson of the man who made that bet, and the proprietor of the Palace Hotel. "When this hotel was built by my great-grandfather, it had a bathroom on every floor and was the most luxurious hotel in Europe."

"How did people manage to stay here four months with only one bathroom to a floor?" I asked.

He threw up his hands. "Everyone knew everyone then. It was a society international. Hungarians, Poles, English, Americans, Germans, Italians. They all knew each other before World War I. It was a big house party. All international, all cousins.

"The Hungarians and Poles used to be fabulous spenders. Well, the Liechtensteiners, too. Then, of course, the maharajahs. The Maharajah of Hyderabad would arrive with 17 cooks." (Awful strain on that one bathroom.)

"How about the Russians?" I asked.

He shrugged: "Yes, the Russians came to St. Moritz, but they brought more servants than we could house. My father wouldn't have those people in this hotel. They were too crazy. They'd arrive with 40 servants for five people. They'd give parties and smash the glasses, smash up the rooms, smash everything."

And long before the loony English and the rich maharajahs and the crazy Russians and the big spending Poles, there were Romans quartered here. (The Chesa Veglia restaurant has a couple of Roman columns built into one of its dining rooms.) And before the Romans there were Etruscans and before them there were Druids—all of them toiling their way up 7,500 feet of mountain. It's been a tough climb for more than 2,000 years and we keep making the trip.

"What on earth were the Romans doing here?" I asked.

"Bathing," said Andrea Badrutt's wife, Cappy.

And another thing, they didn't even have one bathroom to a floor.

Capitol Comment

by Rep. Charles Mathias

The Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives, to which I have been assigned, has cognizance over constitutional amendments, the federal courts, various other matters relating to legal procedures, and it has jurisdiction over naturalization and immigration. A unique naturalization bill was passed upon by the Committee during the past week. This was the bill which would confer Honorary United States Citizenship upon one of the world's greatest leaders and statesmen, Sir Winston Churchill, of Great Britain.

It is peculiarly appropriate that we should confer citizenship upon Winston Churchill for a number of reasons. One that is foremost is, of course, the magnificent leadership that he exercised during World War II when he kept the flame of freedom alive when by his eloquence and by his moral example he stimulated the British people to their own defense and to the defense of democracy in Western Europe, until the time that the United States entered the conflict and carried the war on to victory.

In addition, of course, there are his own American ties which make the grant of citizenship a fit distinction to confer on Churchill. The personal relationships, for example, which led him to be very proud of the fact that he was, by blood, one-half American. His Mother was an American citizen who married an Englishman, and he is said to have commented on the fact that he was in himself an English Speaking Union.

It is obvious that in his childhood he was familiar with American history and American literature. This is very well told in his own Memoirs of World War II. During the War on one of the occasions when he was staying with President Franklin D. Roosevelt at the White House, the official party decided to egt away from the heat of Washington by going to "Shangri-La." This presidential retreat is now called "Camp David" and is located in our own Sixth Congressional District in Frederick County, Maryland. On the way back from Shangri-La, Prime Minister Churchill said that he would like to see the famous house from which Barbara Fritchie is reported to have defied Confederate troops during a Southern occupation of the City of Frederick.

He tells the story very engagingly because he says that as a child when he first read the Ballad of Barbara Fritchie, he always imagined that the heroic dame must have defied Stonewall Jackson from a great height of three or four stories. When he went to Frederick and actually visited the Barbara Fritchie House, he observed that the famous window was less than twelve feet from the level of the street, and concluded that "Jackson's men must have taken great care to avoid doing her harm."

This war time anecdote illustrates Churchill's knowledge about America and his interest in American history. It also illustrates his sense of humor and his appreciation of the human element in great events. This perhaps is one of the reasons that Churchill has been able to equate throughout the years the need for great acts with the capacity of people to perform great acts and the element of leadership which is needed to stimulate them to perform such deeds.

I am very plesaed to support the bill to provide Honorary Citizenship to Sir Winston Churchill and intend to vote for it when it is brought before the House of Representatives. We should be pleased to greet him as a new citizen of the United States in recognition of his great services to the Free World throughout many long years.

Irish Tradition

On special holidays it's fun to set a table in keeping with the occasion. On St. Pat's Day, decorations of bright green shamrocks will add real sparkle to your meal. Of course you'll want the menu to be Irish, too. An Irish lamb stew would be an ideal main dish.

Boneless lamb for stew is quite economical and recommends long slow cooking for best flavor.

Lamb Stew With Green Limas

2 pounds boneless lamb for stew
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons lard or drippings
½ teaspoon dill seed
2 cups water
4 medium potatoes, cut in fourths
4 carrots, sliced ½ inch thick
12 small onions
1 package (10 ounces) frozen lima beans
Water
Flour for gravy

Dredge lamb with seasoned flour. Brown slowly in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add dill seed and water. Cover tightly and cook slowly for 30 minutes. Add potatoes, carrots and onions and cook 30 minutes longer. Add lima beans, cover tightly and continue cooking for 30 minutes or until meat is tender and vegetables are done. Remove meat and vegetables to a hot serving platter. Add enough water to make 2 cups liquid. Thicken the liquid with 3 tablespoons of flour for gravy. 4 to 6 servings.

Oven Fried Chicken

1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving pieces
¼ cup flour
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon paprika
½ cup butter or margarine
2 tomatoes, halved
3 cups hot mashed potatoes

Mix together flour, salt, pepper, and paprika; roll chicken in flour mixture. Melt butter in a 9x13 inch baking dish in a moderately hot oven (400° F.). Place chicken, skin side down, in melted butter. Bake 30 minutes. Turn chicken pieces; push to center of baking dish. Add tomato halves; brush cut surface with drippings. Spoon potatoes around edge, or force through pastry tube. Return to oven and bake 15 minutes longer. YIELD: 4 servings.

Corned Beef Is Simmered, Then Glazed

The day we honor St. Patrick is a perfect day to prepare the old standard, corned beef and cabbage. It's been a special favorite of the Irish for centuries. This March 17, try serving corned beef in an out-of-the-ordinary way by topping it with a brown sugar glaze and whole cloves.

Long-simmered meats will always find a place in the menu as long as families appreciate variety in good food. The popularity of quick meat dishes is on the increase, but they certainly haven't taken over meat cookery.

Corned beef brisket is an example of one of the many meat cuts where slow, moist heat cooking is really the most important factor in preparation.

Glazed Corned Beef Brisket

3 to 4-pound corned beef brisket
Water to cover
½ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon dry mustard
¼ cup vinegar
Whole cloves

Cover corned beef with water. Cover tightly and simmer 3 to 4 hours or until tender, allowing about 1 hour per pound. When tender remove from liquid and place in a shallow roasting pan. Combine brown sugar, flour, mustard and vinegar. Spread mixture over meat. Decorate with whole cloves. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 15 minutes or until glaze is set. 6 to 8 servings.

Handy Smoked Butt

A smoked pork shoulder butt is always a good buy. This handy, compact piece of boneless, rolled pork, sometimes called "cottage roll," is economical, easily prepared and similar to ham both in flavor and appearance. A boneless butt is meat from the pork shoulder which has been smoked and cured, the American Meat Institute explains. It usually weighs two to three pounds.

Capitol Comment

by Rep. Charles Mathias

The Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives, to which I have been assigned, has cognizance over constitutional amendments, the federal courts, various other matters relating to legal procedures, and it has jurisdiction over naturalization and immigration. A unique naturalization bill was passed upon by the Committee during the past week. This was the bill which would confer Honorary United States Citizenship upon one of the world's greatest leaders and statesmen, Sir Winston Churchill, of Great Britain.

It is peculiarly appropriate that we should confer citizenship upon Winston Churchill for a number of reasons. One that is foremost is, of course, the magnificent leadership that he exercised during World War II when he kept the flame of freedom alive when by his eloquence and by his moral example he stimulated the British people to their own defense and to the defense of democracy in Western Europe, until the time that the United States entered the conflict and carried the war on to victory.

In addition, of course, there are his own American ties which make the grant of citizenship a fit distinction to confer on Churchill. The personal relationships, for example, which led him to be very proud of the fact that he was, by blood, one-half American. His Mother was an American citizen who married an Englishman, and he is said to have commented on the fact that he was in himself an English Speaking Union.

It is obvious that in his childhood he was familiar with American history and American literature. This is very well told in his own Memoirs of World War II. During the War on one of the occasions when he was staying with President Franklin D. Roosevelt at the White House, the official party decided to egt away from the heat of Washington by going to "Shangri-La." This presidential retreat is now called "Camp David" and is located in our own Sixth Congressional District in Frederick County, Maryland. On the way back from Shangri-La, Prime Minister Churchill said that he would like to see the famous house from which Barbara Fritchie is reported to have defied Confederate troops during a Southern occupation of the City of Frederick.

He tells the story very engagingly because he says that as a child when he first read the Ballad of Barbara Fritchie, he always imagined that the heroic dame must have defied Stonewall Jackson from a great height of three or four stories. When he went to Frederick and actually visited the Barbara Fritchie House, he observed that the famous window was less than twelve feet from the level of the street, and concluded that "Jackson's men must have taken great care to avoid doing her harm."

This war time anecdote illustrates Churchill's knowledge about America and his interest in American history. It also illustrates his sense of humor and his appreciation of the human element in great events. This perhaps is one of the reasons that Churchill has been able to equate throughout the years the need for great acts with the capacity of people to perform great acts and the element of leadership which is needed to stimulate them to perform such deeds.

I am very plesaed to support the bill to provide Honorary Citizenship to Sir Winston Churchill and intend to vote for it when it is brought before the House of Representatives. We should be pleased to greet him as a new citizen of the United States in recognition of his great services to the Free World throughout many long years.

Irish Tradition

On special holidays it's fun to set a table in keeping with the occasion. On St. Pat's Day, decorations of bright green shamrocks will add real sparkle to your meal. Of course you'll want the menu to be Irish, too. An Irish lamb stew would be an ideal main dish.

Boneless lamb for stew is quite economical and recommends long slow cooking for best flavor.

Lamb Stew With Green Limas

- 2 pounds boneless lamb for stew
- ¼ cup flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons lard or drippings
- ½ teaspoon dill seed
- 2 cups water
- 4 medium potatoes, cut in fourths
- 4 carrots, sliced ½ inch thick
- 12 small onions
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen lima beans
- Water
- Flour for gravy

Dredge lamb with seasoned flour. Brown slowly in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add dill seed and water. Cover tightly and cook slowly for 30 minutes. Add potatoes, carrots and onions and cook 30 minutes longer. Add lima beans, cover tightly and continue cooking for 30 minutes or until meat is tender and vegetables are done. Remove meat and vegetables to a hot serving platter. Add enough water to make 2 cups liquid. Thicken the liquid with 3 tablespoons of flour for gravy. 4 to 6 servings.

Oven Fried Chicken

- 1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving pieces
- ¼ cup flour
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon paprika
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 2 tomatoes, halved
- 3 cups hot mashed potatoes

Mix together flour, salt, pepper, and paprika; roll chicken in flour mixture. Melt butter in a 9x13 inch baking dish in a moderately hot oven (400° F.). Place chicken, skin side down, in melted butter. Bake 30 minutes. Turn chicken pieces; push to center of baking dish. Add tomato halves; brush cut surface with drippings. Spoon potatoes around edge, or force through pastry tube. Return to oven and bake 15 minutes longer. YIELD: 4 servings.

Corned Beef Is Simmered, Then Glazed

The day we honor St. Patrick is a perfect day to prepare the old standard, corned beef and cabbage. It's been a special favorite of the Irish for centuries. This March 17, try serving corned beef in an out-of-the-ordinary way by topping it with a brown sugar glaze and whole cloves.

Long-simmered meats will always find a place in the menu as long as families appreciate variety in good food. The popularity of quick meat dishes is on the increase, but they certainly haven't taken over meat cookery.

Corned beef brisket is an example of one of the many meat cuts where slow, moist heat cooking is really the most important factor in preparation.

Glazed Corned Beef Brisket

- 3 to 4-pound corned beef brisket
- Water to cover
- ½ cup brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- ¼ cup vinegar
- Whole cloves

Cover corned beef with water. Cover tightly and simmer 3 to 4 hours or until tender, allowing about 1 hour per pound. When tender remove from liquid and place in a shallow roasting pan. Combine brown sugar, flour, mustard and vinegar. Spread mixture over meat. Decorate with whole cloves. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 15 minutes or until glaze is set. 6 to 8 servings.

Lenten Fish 'N Seafood Dishes

BAKED CRAB BISQUE
(4 to 6 servings)

- 1 10½-ounce can undiluted condensed cream-of mushroom soup
- 1 10½ ounce can undiluted condensed tomato soup

- ¼ teaspoon dried basil, crumbled
- ¼ teaspoon seasoned salt
- Coarsely ground black pepper
- ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- 1 pound crab meat, cut into bite-size pieces
- 1 cup grated cheese
- Cooked rice, spaghetti or macaroni

Combine cream - of - mushroom soup, tomato soup, milk, basil, seasoned salt, pepper, Worcestershire and lemon juice, blending well. Stir in crab meat. Spoon into a 1½-quart baking dish; sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake at 325 degrees, 35 to 45 minutes, or until bubbly. Serve over cooked rice, spaghetti or macaroni.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI) — Most grain futures closed with substantial losses today on the Chicago board of trade.

Wheat finished off ⅛ to ¾, corn off ⅛ to ⅜, oats unchanged to off 1⅜, rye off ¼ to up ⅛, soybeans off ⅝ to 1⅜, and drummed lard off 15 points.

Most grains started steadier and gradually worked down.

Only soybeans opened lower, partially recovered on claims that some U. S. ships fired on a Russian fishing vessel and then declined again. The weak cash market and slow domestic and export demand influenced soybeans.

A commission house sold May beans and stop-loss orders appeared around $2.62½. The board of trade reduced down payment requirements for trading in beans from 15 cents a bushel to 10 cents, effective today.

Favorable moisture conditions over the winter wheat area discouraged most buying of wheat. Scheduled purchases of hard and red wheat by Turkey caused some late scattered buying.

Hedge selling depressed corn. A large elevator house and local traders were on the selling side of corn, while an industry and northwest brokers bought.

A commission house sold a large quantity of March oats, weakening the market. Northwest brokers bought March on the declines and a mill bought May oats.

Short covering steadied rye prices until they eased on last minute selling.

Britain reportedly bought 480,000 bushels of corn, Japan 400,000 bushels and Holland 400,000 bushels for shipment before the end of May. West Germany took 100,000 bushels of soybeans and Holland 300,000 bushels.

Outside markets were mixed.

Science and engineering doctorates in the nation rose from about 400 in 1920 to 6,600 in 1960. By 1970, the National Science Foundation predicts, the total will be 13,000.

The actual flowers of the poinsettia are the tiny, yellow rosettes at the center. The poinsettia's botanical family, Euphorbia, is characterized by surrounding inconspicuous flowers with flashy leaves.

College graduates accounted for 7.7 per cent of the adult population in 1960, census figures show. This is almost a 25 per cent increase from 1950.

Nearly 80 per cent of the Princeton University Class of 1963 will go on to graduate study, according to the prediction of Dean J. Merrill Knapp.

The consumer's beef dollar goes 53 cents to the farmer, two cents to the hauler, 16 cents to packer-wholesaler, and 29 cents to the retailer.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI) — Most grain futures closed with substantial losses today on the Chicago board of trade.

Wheat finished off ⅛ to ¾, corn off ⅛ to ⅜, oats unchanged to off 1⅜, rye off ¼ to up ⅛, soybeans off ⅝ to 1⅝, and drummed lard off 15 points.

Most grains started steadier and gradually worked down.

Only soybeans opened lower, partially recovered on claims that some U. S. ships fired on a Russian fishing vessel and then declined again. The weak cash market and slow domestic and export demand influenced soybeans.

A commission house sold May beans and stop-loss orders appeared around $2.62½. The board of trade reduced down payment requirements for trading in beans from 15 cents a bushel to 10 cents, effective today.

Favorable moisture conditions over the winter wheat area discouraged most buying of wheat. Scheduled purchases of hard and red wheat by Turkey caused some late scattered buying.

Hedge selling depressed corn. A large elevator house and local traders were on the selling side of corn, while an industry and northwest brokers bought.

A commission house sold a large quantity of March oats, weakening the market. Northwest brokers bought March on the declines and a mill bought May oats.

Short covering steadied rye prices until they eased on last minute selling.

Britain reportedly bought 480,000 bushels of corn, Japan 400,000 bushels and Holland 400,000 bushels for shipment before the end of May. West Germany took 100,000 bushels of soybeans and Holland 300,000 bushels.

Outside markets were mixed.

Senate Cloakroom

by Sen. J. Glenn Beall

The billions pour out — and the deficit grows. Any child knows that when you waste money, when you spend more than you earn, you go broke. If you could spend yourself rich, every park bench panhandler would be a millionaire." — From an advertisement by Warner & Swasey, machinery makers since 1880.

Farmers generally do not believe it's right to take money from the Government for not raising crops, but other farmers have weakened, and nearly all of them now go along. Farmers aren't the only ones demonstrating this kind of contradiction. There are businessmen who warn of the dangers of Big Government, but work for Federally subsidized projects. There are educators who deplore the growth of Government-financed programs at universities in general but who do not turn away Federal grants for their own schools. Rare indeed is the persons, regardless of how economy-minded, who opposes Government spending for dubious local projects. That so many weakened is not wholly due to inherent opportunism. It's also that Washington, in the process of distributing largess in every conceivable political direction, has set a sorry example of profligacy. When almost everybody seems to be getting something, it's hard for anyone to restrain his acquisitive instincts, especially when the Government makes it so clear that the money is going to be wasted one way or another. And so, the watchword is, "Ask only what your Government can do for you!" Some people seem to ignore the fact that Federal "aid" costs them more than they get.

Far too many of our people have come to believe that the Government is the only power capable of maintaining them. We might as well face this truism: If one hopes to get benefits from the Government for which he does not fully pay, then he wants to enjoy thef ruits of other men's labor.

Those who insist that the President's proposed budget cannot be reduced are deceiving themselves. The budget contains much fat. It appears that every spending idea, regardless of how impractical or how ridiculous, was thrown into some part of the budget. Senator Harry Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia, after examining the proposed budget, said, "The children are trying to take over the candy store." Virtually every item in the budget could be reduced without danger to our security or well-being. Every day our attention is called to unnecessary spending proposed in the budget.

For instance, more Federal fellowships are proposed, although a group of distinguished scientists testified before a Congressional committee that there are now more Federal fellowships available than there are competent graduate students to fill them and that no more Federal funds are necessary for this purpose. The Administration has asked approval for construction of 74 new Federal buildings in 31 States at an estimated most of $246,291,100. One town of 1800 population has sent word to Washington that it does not need the new Post Office proposed for it — to cost $177,000. Senator Frank Lausche, Democrat, of Ohio, has called attention to the fact that the proposed Domestic Peace Corps is scheduled to pay salaries in the $10,000 to $14,000 range. Senator Stephen Young, Democrat, of Ohio, added: "We already have enough Federal programs that are nothing more than havens for high-salaried bureaucrats." Without doubt, cuts can be made in the budget up and down the line.

The Fort Lauderdale (Florida) News a few days ago carried an editorial containing these rousing words:

"It has become frighteningly clear that the Administration no longer believes in the philosophy that progress and prosperity for our Nation can be achieved through the sound principles of a balanced budget. Instead, the White House has surrendered to the Keynesian philosophy that prosperity can only be achieved by spending what we don't have for things we don't truly need in the hope this reckless spending binge will produce an artificial kind of prosperity that will keep us afloat in a sea of red ink. It is time more Americans woke us to what is going to happen to their country if we don't get some sanity back in Washington."

Senator Mike Mansfield, Democrat, of Montana, Senate Majority Leader and recognized spokesman for the Kennedy Administration in the Upper Chamber, has announced that he favors an "orderly" curtailment of foreign aid. A bipartisan group of investigating Senators, headed by Senator Mansfield, have looked particularly at the aid program in Southeast Asia, and call it much too wasteful for our taxpayers to stomach any longer. In Laos, our outlay of millions of dollars to aid the government in preventing a Communist takeover was a total waste because the people of Laos refused to fight for their own country. Investigators are right now trying to persuade our foreign-aid spenders in Viet Nam to abandon a worthless and utterly impractical river-water-supply project and repair the country's deep-well-pipline system, and thereby save the American taxpayers some $22,000,000. The Mansfield report deals in particulars, but it also points up the root of the trouble. We have been give-away minded, and this is what has cost us so much. Too many people have been willing to close their eyes to the maladministration of foreign-aid dollars.

An honorable government cannot squander our dollars. Our taxpayers are carrying too heavy a load, and much of the load is foreign aid. Nearly 1 in every 12 Federal tax dollars goes for foreign aid spending. The 15-year foreign-aid bill exceeds $100,000,000,000, an amount which is about one-third of our national debt.

With the Mansfield report and the expected similar recommendations of the Clay Committee, now reviewing foreign aid, and the expected concurrence of the new Administrator of foreign aid, one of the great tides of postwar history is slowly beginning to reverse itself — the almost indiscriminate sending of massive financial aid to foreign countries. The postwar emergency period is now past, and a more economical and efficiently used aid can now accomplish better results. Furthermore, aid projects whose benefits spread both ways are in order. One-sided aid is not a solid basis for mutual respect. There are reasons enough for starting to use less aid more intelligently.

The basic concept of aid should be to help people to help themselves. Some of our aid to other countries has been extended with no thought given to the principle that individuals and nations should be self-reliant. No person and no nation should have its vital tasks of growth and defense indefinitely and preponderantly done for it. There is something debilitating about too much aid, or blind giving which does not exact responsibility in return.

Then too, it is time that well-to-do Western allies of the United States carried their share of the common load.

This is not to say that we should use the meat-ax approach, which possibly would cause panic and instability in many places, but a "cautious curtailment", to use Senator Mansfield's words, plus every effort to involve the Western allies and turn onesided aid into mutual exchange, seems to be the logical road to travel.

Once when Calvin Coolidge was Vice President and was presiding over the Senate, an argument arose between two Senators. Tempers flared, and one Senator told the other to "Go straight to Hades!" The offended Senator stormed down the aisle and stood before the presiding officer, who was silently leafing through a book. "Mr. President," the Senator demanded, "did you hear what was said to me?" Silent Cal looked up from his book and said, "I've been looking through the rule book. You don't have to go."

Buckwheats For Zero Morning

Paul Bunyan knew how to face the chilling winter mornings in the Great North Woods. How? Why, he ate a big, hearty breakfast of buckwheats! Here's a breakfast which will give you the energy to step outdoors on a sub-zero morning — Sausage Strip Buckwheats. Made quickly and easily with your favorite buckwheat pancake mix, they'll be ready in a jiffy. And baked inside each buckwheat is half a pork sausage link! Mmm — top them with butter and honey for quick energy that will last all morning.

SAUSAGE STRIP BUCKWHEATS

1 cup milk
1 egg
1 tablespoon melted or liquid shortening
1 cup buckwheat pancake mix
6 pork sausage links, cooked

Place milk, egg and shortening in a shaker. (If melted shortening is used, add after buckwheat mix.) Add buckwheat mix; shake vigorously 10 times or until batter is fairly smooth.

Slice each cooked pork sausage link in half lengthwise. For each buckwheat, place a slice of sausage on a hot, lightly greased griddle. Pour batter over each sausage half to form a long pancake. Bake to a golden brown, turning only once.

For each serving, overlap three sausage strip buckwheats. Serve with butter and honey.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — My friend Joe Levine, who likes nothing better than to bait me about filming the controversial novel, "The Carpetbaggers," tells me that he and Jack Karp, of Paramount, have signed Edward Dmytryk to direct it, starting in June. And adds Joe, tongue in cheek!

"The screen adaptation turned in by John Michael Hayes is as white as snow!"

"If it is," I said, "you wouldn't be half as interested in filming it." Mr. Levine likes the sensational in movie fare — and it has done well by him at the box-office.

"Carpetbaggers," which had three separate stories when Harold Robbins wrote it, has been boiled down to a straight story line and so far, there's no cast. But, Joe, I'm sure they'll all be white as snow.

The horrifying revelation that the Nazis were well on their way to creating the first atomic bomb in a secret plant in Norway during World War II is the chilling theme of "The Unknown Battle" which Anthony Mann will produce and direct.

During the war years the world leaders "in" on this secret were Franklin D. Roosevelt, Winston Churchill and Gen. Eisenhower. And it was this Allied War Command which sent a secret group into Norway to demolish the Nazis' plant as we worked to get our bomb perfected. So large is the scope of this secret espionage thriller that Tony Mann had to work for months with government officials to get permission to make this picture. The star he seeks is Paul Newman. Isn't everyone?

Audrey Meadows (Mrs. Robert Six, of Denver Colo.) planned in over the weekend to supervise the new home she and her aviation executive husband are building in the Trousdale Estates, and wound up with a movie job.

Audrey was offered and accepted the role of Jimmy Stewart's wife and mother of Sandra Dee in "Take Her She's Mine" at 20th Century-Fox. It's a very good role and she's pleased about being directed by Henry Koster.

It's 99½ per cent set for Robert Stack's picture "The Caretakers" to be an entry at the Berlin Film Festival June 21. Officials of the festival have already approached Bob to see if he's available to attend, and he would like nothing more, especially since he owns 25 per cent of this movie, which is reported to be headed for large profits.

Bob completes his last segment of "The Untouchables" TV series March 29, and he and Rosemarie (Mrs. S.) would like nothing better than to spend a vacation at the film festival.

Peggy Ann Garner, whose wistful child role in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" some years ago made her a star, has requested her attorney, Eugene Trope, to demand an increase in alimony from her ex-husband, Albert Salmi.

Salmi will contest the action, claiming Peggy Ann waived alimony in their original settlement. But she needs it now, she will plead.

Talked with Patti Page after her thrilling opening at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas. Jack Entratter was so pleased with the business Patti and George Gobel are doing he wants to extend their original two weeks engagement to four.

He succeeded with Patti, but Gobel had already committed himself to headline at the Palmer House in Chicago after his Sands' engagement.

HOLLYWOOD — Interesting cross-country lecture tour producer Robert Lippert has planned for himself. He's taking his latest film "The Yellow Canary" starring Pat Boone. And when Lippert faces the ladies clubs, he's asking point blank:

"All right. You say you want clean, family entertainment. Here it is. Now we'll see whether you want something that can be shown to your children — or if you really want sex and sensationalism." Guess that's putting it on the line at the place where it counts.

After lecturing his way to New York, Lippert meets Richard Conte, and together they go to London where Richard stars in, and Bob produces, "The Eyes of Annie Jones." Lippert's a busy man. He also signed Miriam Colon to co-star in "Harbor Lights" with Jeff Morrow and Kent Taylor, which starts in Puerto Rico March 15.

It's coming up love and marriage for Helen Winston, lady producer of the charming low-budget movie, "Hand in Hand." And the gentleman Helen's going with hand-in-hand is very rich Sam Goldstein, New York advertising and merchandising executive. In his suite at the Sportsmen's Lodge, they announced they'll be married within five or six weeks.

The bridegroom-to-be is not insisting that Helen give up her career, which has turned to TV production since leaving Columbia Studios. "I'm not interested in asking Helen to give up anything—I'm just interested in making her happy," he says. Sounds like a nice husband-to-be.

A strange thing has befallen Maureen O'Hara's beautiful daughter, Bronwyn. A red head from birth, Bronwyn is now black haired, and not via the dye pots. She was a very sick girl two years ago, and following surgery, everyone was amazed when her red hair started coming in jet black. She says her doctor believes she is a rare case of anesthesia changing the color pigment of the hair.

But brunette or red head, Bronwyn is a beauty and very serious about her career. In order to call herself to the attention of producers who may have overlooked her Bronwyn is sending out perfumed portraits of herself with the tagline: "Whatever happened to Maureen O'Hara's baby Bronwyn?"—and the portrait of her in a glamor pose answers that query.

Many rare birds, found in New Zealand, cannot fly. One species flies only for pleasure.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — My friend Joe Levine, who likes nothing better than to bait me about filming the controversial novel, "The Carpetbaggers," tells me that he and Jack Karp, of Paramount, have signed Edward Dmytryk to direct it, starting in June. And adds Joe, tongue in cheek!

"The screen adaptation turned in by John Michael Hayes is as white as snow!"

"If it is," I said, "you wouldn't be half as interested in filming it." Mr. Levine likes the sensational in movie fare — and it has done well by him at the box-office.

"Carpetbaggers," which had three separate stories when Harold Robbins wrote it, has been boiled down to a straight story line and so far, there's no cast. But, Joe, I'm sure they'll all be white as snow.

The horrifying revelation that the Nazis were well on their way to creating the first atomic bomb in a secret plant in Norway during World War II is the chilling theme of "The Unknown Battle" which Anthony Mann will produce and direct.

During the war years the world leaders "in" on this secret were Franklin D. Roosevelt, Winston Churchill and Gen. Eisenhower. And it was this Allied War Command which sent a secret group into Norway to demolish the Nazis' plant as we worked to get our bomb perfected. So large is the scope of this secret espionage thriller that Tony Mann had to work for months with government officials to get permission to make this picture. The star he seeks is Paul Newman. Isn't everyone?

Audrey Meadows (Mrs. Robert Six, of Denver Colo.) planned in over the weekend to supervise the new home she and her aviation executive husband are building in the Trousdale Estates, and wound up with a movie job.

Audrey was offered and accepted the role of Jimmy Stewart's wife and mother of Sandra Dee in "Take Her She's Mine" at 20th Century-Fox. It's a very good role and she's pleased about being directed by Henry Koster.

It's 99½ per cent set for Robert Stack's picture "The Caretakers" to be an entry at the Berlin Film Festival June 21. Officials of the festival have already approached Bob to see if he's available to attend, and he would like nothing more, especially since he owns 25 per cent of this movie, which is reported to be headed for large profits.

The Four Keys To Cancer Control

By PAT McGRADY
Science Editor
American Cancer Society

An estimated 815,000 Americans today are living with or dying of cancer.

An even greater number today are alive and cured of cancer.

During the last decade or so, substantially more than one million have been cured of cancer. Cancers are being cured now at the rate of 177,000 a year.

One in three cancer patients now is being saved.

More than one-half of the fortunate ones were cured solely by surgery. They had good sense to have regular checkups and to call cancer's symptoms to the doctor's attention without delay. They also had the good luck to have their cancers still localized when the surgeon removed them.

The rest were cured by X-rays or a combination of surgery and X-rays. Their cancers were of the kind that shrink up and go away under the still-mysterious effects of radiation.

Scientists and doctors by no means are complacent with the progress made against cancer. With two of every three patients still dying of the disease — and, indeed, with the cancer toll still increasing despite rising cure rates — one cannot be satisfied with the course of the war against cancer, a disease which is second only to heart and circulatory ailments as a killer.

The curable cancers are mostly in accessible sites. For the hidden tumors — in such organs as the lung, stomach, pancreas and liver — the salvage rates still are deplorable.

Operative Mortality Down

Only a generation ago a substantial risk attached to even the removal of an appendix.

Today, fine surgeons can remove a cancerous lung, stomach, liver lobes, spleen or other major organs with negligible mortality. Major operations, like total removal of the stomach, which 30 years ago commanded a 30 or 40 per cent mortality now have a two or four per cent mortality.

In some cases, where cancer is widespread throughout the pelvis, a few surgeons do a subtotal evisceration — removing virtually every abdominal organ to which the cancer might have spread; the patient is on his or her feet the next day and out of the hospital within a week or so.

Moreover, convalescence is smooth. Modern medicine has learned to anticipate the profound changes in electrolytes and other body chemicals which often accompany major surgery and to compensate for them.

Many things have contributed to the success and safety of surgery — among them, more and better anesthetics, transfusions, antibiotics and methods of overcoming surgical shock.

Older patients, if they are in fairly good shape, can withstand operations almost as well as younger ones.

Preventing Cancer's Spread

One of the unresolved problems of surgery is the disseminations of cancers during the operation.

Surgeons have learned not to handle tumors or to cut through them, lest they release cancer cells into the blood stream; these cells might then set up cancer colonies elsewhere in the body.

The surgeons also tie off all the veins and arteries which might offer the cells a means of escape to seed the system; and now they are learning that certain anti-cancer drugs — sometimes used to douse the operative field and injected after surgery — can be insurance against stray cells which cause recurrence of the disease.

A spectacular technique of removing entire organs for variable periods and restoring them to the host has been developed in experiments on animals ranging from rats to baboons. Kidneys, lungs and livers have been taken out of the body and refrigerated — or blood saturated with drugs has been pumped through them with the aid of a heart-lung machine.

These procedures, it is hoped, are a forerunner to the day when human organs, shot through with cancer, can be taken out, the cancers removed or killed and the repaired organs restored to the patient.

At this point, the best insurance against the development of a serious cancer is an intelligent awareness of cancer's seven danger signals. These symptoms may not mean cancer; but is wise to call them to the doctor's attention without delay:

1. Unusual bleeding or discharge.
2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere.
3. A sore that does not heal.
4. Change in bowel or bladder habits.
5. Hoarseness or cough.
6. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.
7. Change in a wart or mole.

(NEXT WEEK: Radiation Raises the Cancer Cure Rate).

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) —More than 1,000 varieties of birds, including the almost-extinct whooping crane, are found in Texas. The whooping cranes make their winter home at the Arkansas national wildlife sanctuary. At last report, there were about 32 of them.

Bill To Curb Demonstrators Is Protested

BALTIMORE (AP)—The chairman of a Baltimore integrationist group charged Wednesday that a bill before the Maryland Senate would stifle the freedom of college students to protest unjust laws.

The bill would force colleges and universities receiving state funds to expel any student convicted of violating Maryland's trespass act.

"This bill cuts at the very heart of the freedom to protest and negates the time honored right to refuse to cooperate with an unjust law," the Rev. Marion C. Bascom, chairman of the Civic Interest Group assistance committee, said.

Bascom said the bill would serve to stifle the freedom of students and added, "This is the same technique used by Hitler in the 30s which resulted finally in burning their (the students') books."

The Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee gave the bill a favorable report and the measure is slated to come before the Senate Friday.

The legislation was introduced by Sen. Robert P. Dean, D-Queen Annes, and would compell the state universities and college to expell a student convicted of violating the trespass act. If a private college receiving state funds would refuse to expell the student, state funds would be cut off.

Maryland's trespass act makes it illegal for an individual to enter another person's property without that person's consent. The act has been used to arrest sit-in demonstrators at some of Maryland's segregated places of public accommodations.

The Maryland legislature passed a public accommodations law this session, but 11 counties, including Dean's Queen Annes, exempted themselves from the legislation.

"The colleges and universities have historically served to goad the community to social change," Bascom said.

"We call upon the communities to send messages to city senators to protest this overt action, to break the spirit of peaceful protest by students in our state colleges," Bascom urged.

Interest Rate Control Bill Gets Backing

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A bill to include fees charged borrowers as part of the legal interest rate was given a favorable report Wednesday by the House Judiciary Committee.

The measure, sponsored by the committee chairman, Del. Thomas Hunter Lowe, D-Talbot, was supported by a 9-7 vote after a motion for an unfavorable report was defeated.

At a public hearing on the proposal, Lowe told representatives of savings and loan associations he wanted to "knock out point systems, service charges, discount fees and any method used to get around the usury laws."

The present usury law limits the legal interest rate at 6 per cent.

Another bill introduced in the Senate would increase the legal rate to 8 per cent. The measure was given an unfavorable report last week by the Banking and Insurance Committee by a 4-3 vote.

Lowe's bill would count any fee or expense changed to a borrower in connection with a loan as interest "unless such fee or charge does not in fact go to the lender."

Carl Gottschalk, executive secretary of the Maryland Savings and Loan League, said the industry has been charging a so-called entrance or service fee at the time a loan is made for the past 70 years.

"We don't tolerate point galloping," he said. "But if it were not for the service charge many of our organizations would find it difficult to pay a competitive rate of dividend to savers."

Woods Says He Quit Two S&L Board Posts

BALTIMORE (AP) — A former president of the Security Financial Insurance Corp. testified Wednesday he resigned as a director of two savings and loan associations to avoid possible conflict of interest in his SFIC post.

David F. Woods told U.S. District Court Judge Harrison L. Winter he attended two of seven board meetings of First Union and Monumental City S. & L. before resigning.

Woods was the third director called by the government in the criminal mail-fraud trial of three Baltimore County lawyers.

J. Thomas Ellicott, Lewis L. Fleury and Harvey C. Jones II were charged with trying to defraud depositors of the savings and loan firms and of obtaining money under false pretenses.

All three have pleaded innocent to the charges.

Bill To Curb Demonstrators Is Protested

BALTIMORE (AP)—The chairman of a Baltimore integrationist group charged Wednesday that a bill before the Maryland Senate would stifle the freedom of college students to protest unjust laws.

The bill would force colleges and universities receiving state funds to expel any student convicted of violating Maryland's trespass act.

"This bill cuts at the very heart of the freedom to protest and negates the time honored right to refuse to cooperate with an unjust law," the Rev. Marion C. Bascom, chairman of the Civic Interest Group assistance committee, said.

Bascom said the bill would serve to stifle the freedom of students and added, "This is the same technique used by Hitler in the 30s which resulted finally in burning their (the students') books."

The Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee gave the bill a favorable report and the measure is slated to come before the Senate Friday.

The legislation was introduced by Sen. Robert P. Dean, D-Queen Annes, and would compell the state universities and college to expell a student convicted of violating the trespass act. If a private college receiving state funds would refuse to expell the student, state funds would be cut off.

Cassius Clay Misses Prediction In Beating Jones By Decision

Louisville Lip Had Prophesied 4th Round KO

Decision Booed By Sellout Crowd; Fans Cheer Loser

By JACK CUDDY
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Unbeaten Cassius Clay failed to knock out Doug Jones in his predicted fourth round or any round Wednesday night but his long-armed jabs and straight rights did win him an unpopular, unanimous 10-round decision in their heavyweight contenders' fight.

The jammed crowd of 18,732 booed Clay for more than five minutes after the verdict in Madison Square Garden was announced. And they cheered to the girders when New Yorker Jones' handlers raised his arms as a sign that they thought he should have won.

Clay, 21 and known as the "Louisville Lip" because of his loud boasts of his prowess, registered his 18th straight victory as a professional. However, the fight not only broke his knockout string at nine straight, but it robbed him of much of his prestige as a puncher and particularly as a prophet of the round in which he would score the kayo.

Weighing 202½ pounds to Jones 188, Clay apparently lost all chance of getting a summer shot at the heavyweight crown.

Jones of New York at six feet, three inches shorter than the highly touted Clay, gave Clay the hardest fight of his professional career and forced much of the action in every round.

Lands Most Blows

But Cassius, with his long arms and side to side maneuvers, landed the most blows. Each was knocked back onto his heels several times during the excellent fight, and Cassius' nose was trickling blood at the finish.

Clay went into the ring favored at 3-1. Both he and his handlers were positive he would score his 13th round - picked knockout Wednesday night on March 13; but the double 13 proved a double jonah.

Early in the fight it seemed that Clay might get knocked out himself.His knees were buckled by a right to the jaw in the first round and again in the second. Then Clay increased his own pace and did well until late in the fourth round when his knees again were buckled by Jones' pressing but countering straight lefts and rights.

Clay took the third, ninth and 10th rounds on the sheets of the three ring officials.

On the rounds basis they awarded Cassius the unanimous decision as follows: Referee Joe Loscolzo, 8-1-1; Judge Frank Forbes, 5-4-1, and Judge Artie Aidala, 5-4-1.

No Knockdowns Scored

There were no knockdowns as Jones suffered his fourth defeat in 26 bouts, on a night when it seemed he might score the big upset of 1963, just as he had

Hamilton's 26.6 Average Tops PVC; Turbin's 78.0 Heads Foul Shooters

TERRY TURBIN

Breinig And Wade Run 1-2 In Points With 298 And 288

Roland Hamilton, Paw Paw High School senior, posted the highest average of 26.6 and Keyser's Terry Turbin was the foul shooting champion of the Potomac Valley Conference for the 1962-63 basketball season.

Joe Breinig of Romney High School scored more points than any other player, a total of 298 in 17 contests. Don Wade, also of Romney, was the runner-up with 288, Turbin finished third with 276, Dwayne Schinzing, Petersburg, was fourth with 274 and Hamilton wound up in fifth place with 266 tallies.

Trailing Hamilton in the high average department was Bill Kopfle of Bayard with 22.1 and LaSalle's Joe Nolan came in third with 21.8.

Turbin's Average 78.0

Terry Turbin meshed 78 out of 100 free throws to head the conference foul shooters with a mark of 78.0 per cent. Runner-up honors in the free throw department went to Schinzing who posted a 77.0 by converting 94 of 122 shots. Keith Russell, of Piedmont High's Lions, finished in third place with 73.2. He hooped 52 out of 71 at the charity stripe.

Bill Kopfle, of Bayard, scored the most points in a single game —a total of 37—while Turbin's 10 for 10 was the best single game foul shooting performance. Russell and Schinzing each had 9 for 9 and Nolan had 8 for 8.

No Records Broken

No conference records were broken. Carl Hartman, of Ridgeley, scored 62 points in a single game in 1951, Bill Maphis, of Romney, scored the most points in a season—509 in 17 games in 1959, and also set the all-time conference high average of 29.9.

Baltimore Learns NBA Fate Today

Zephyr Owners Debating Offer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Zephyrs owners began debate Wednesday on whether to accept an "attractive rental offer" to move the team to Baltimore for the next National Basketball Association season.

Their decision was to be announced at 11 a.m. Thursday.

Club President Dave Trager indicated he expected a drawn-out period of discussion and said the vote to remain in Chicago or move to Baltimore would be "7-0 either way."

It was known that at least two of the owners favored remaining in Chicago, but Trager said that while he personally favored staying here, he would vote to move.

"We can't find a satisfactory place to play here," he said, "and Baltimore's Civic Auditorium is beautiful. I don't want to leave Chicago, but I can't see that we have any alternative."

General Manager Frank C. Lane who was not in the meeting of directors and owners even though he holds stock in the club, predicted the team would move due to lack of satisfactory facilities in Chicago.

The Baltimore Civic Auditorium has offered the Zephyrs the use of their facilities for $750 per night and in addition will give the club a percentage of concessions and will aid in selling radio-television rights.

In Chicago, Lane said, the best rental offer was $1,000 per night with no share of concessions. In addition, he said, there would be a problem in obtaining dates to play in most Chicago sites.

Foster Named Rutgers Coach

Had 45-11 Mark At Bloomsburg

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (UPI) —Bill Foster, whose teams have rolled up a 45-11 three-year record at Bloomsburg State College in Pennsylvania, was named head basketball coach at Rutgers University Wednesday.

Foster, 33, was selected by Rutgers after a year-long screening of almost 100 applicants.

Foster will succeed Don White, who served as interim coach this year following the retirement of Tony Kuolt. Kuolt took an administrative job at Montclair State College in New Jersey.

In announcing the appointment, Albert W. Twitchell, director of athletics at Rutgers, said Foster "comes to Rutgers highly recommended by some of the leading coaches in the East, including Lou Rossini of New York University, Harry Litwak of Temple, Jack McCloskey of Penn, Ben Carnevele of Navy and George Hunter of Army."

Foster played basketball four years at Elizabethtown College in Pennsylvania, scoring more than 1,100 points.

He joined the Bloomsburg staff in 1960 after six years as a high school coach at Chichester, Pa., and Abington, Pa., where he closed his final season with a 19-2 record.

At Rutgers he signed a three-year contract at an undisclosed salary.

Top Golfers Passing Up St. Pete Open

Florida Tourney Has Field Of 159

ST. PETERSBURG Fla,. (UPI) — A field of 149 pros and 10 amateurs will tee off over the Lakewood Country Club course Thursday in the 72-hole $25,500 St. Petersburg Open, but the top names of golfdom will be missing.

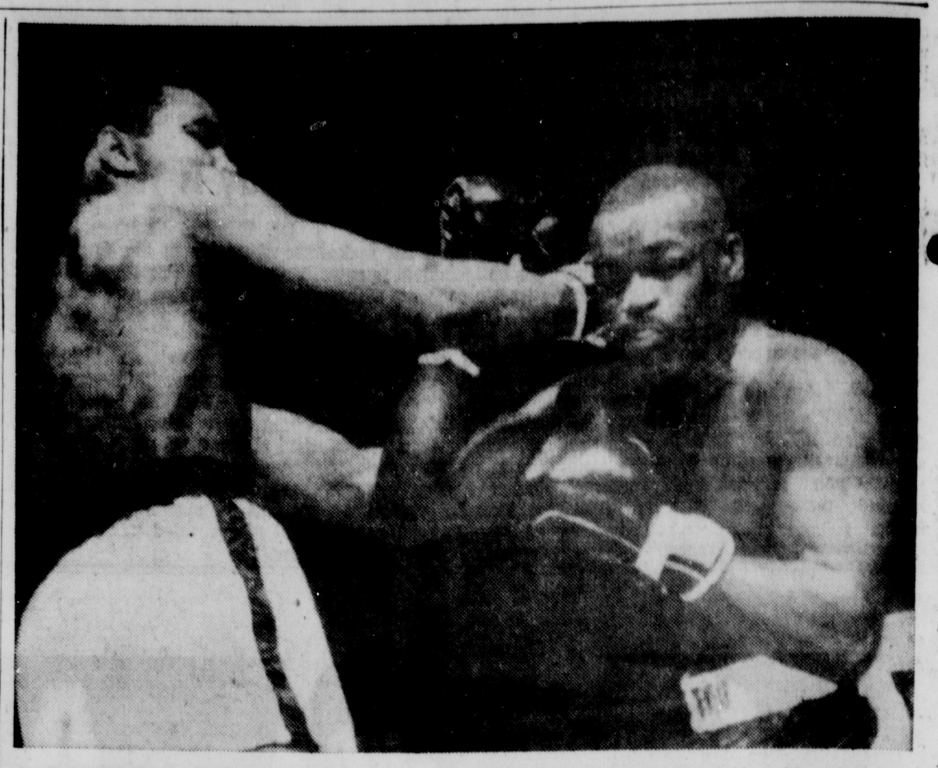
Apparently the top money winners on the 1963 Professional Golfers Association tour are passing up the St. Petersburg event to rest up for the richer Doral Tournament at Miami next week and for the Masters Tournament at Augusta, Ga., the first week of April.

But the gallery still will be treated to top-notch golf by the field which will include eight winners of the past nine St. Petersburg events. They are Bobby Nichols, Bob Goalby, George Bayer, Cary Middlecoff, Pete Cooper, Mike Fetchick, and Jim Ferrier. Middlecoff won the event in 1955 and 1959.

Other top pros entered this year include Dow Finsterwald, Julius Boros, Ed Furgol, Jack Fleck, Tommy Bolt, Jacky Cupit, Doug Sanders, Ken Venturi and Mason Rudolph.

Par for the Lakewood Country Club course is 72, but the course record is held by six persons at nine-under-par 63.

The end of the Caribbean tour Sunday swelled the list of hopefuls seeking the top prize money. One of the pros qualifying for the tourney was Charles Sifford of Los Angeles, who will become the first Negro ever to play in the St. Petersburg Open. Sifford was the fourth - ranking money winner through the first four tourneys on the Caribbean tour.



EAR-BENDER — Talkative Cassius Clay bends the ear of Doug Jones (right) with a lashing right toward the latter's head in the third round of their 10-round heavyweight bout in New York last night. A capacity crowd at Madison Square Garden viewed the fight, in which Clay scored a unamimous but unpopular decision after predicting he would win by a knockout in the fourth round. (AP Photofax)

Court Order Issued To Bar Miss. State From Tourney Play

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Chancellor L. B. Porter signed a temporary order Wednesday to prohibit Mississippi State University's basketball team from playing in the National Collegiate playoffs at East Lansing, Mich., Friday.

Porter signed the temporary injunction at Brandon and attorneys filed it with the Hinds County chancery clerk here.

It forbids spending State's money for mixed athletic activites outside the state and from breaching what it termed the public policy against integrated athletics.

State Sen. Billy Mitts of Enterprise and B. W. Lawson secured the injunction against the State College Board, its members and Mississippi State University officials.

In Starkville, Coach Babe McCarthy declined immediate comment. Other university officials were not available.

The State basketball team was scheduled to leave Thursday for the NCAA tournament and play Loyola of Chicago Friday night. Loyola has four Negro starters.

In the order signed by Judge Porter, the two men said the decision of the State College Board to permit the trip previously authorized by MSU President D. W. Colvard "is contrary to the public policy of the citizens in this state and the majority of the citizens of this state do not uphold the board."

Tom Heinsohn Paces Celtics To Victory

BOSTON (UPI) — Tom Heinsohn scored 37 points Wednesday night to pace the Boston Celtics to a 121-108 National Basketball Association win over the Chicago Zephyrs at Boston Garden.

Heinsohn, inserted just before the final three minutes of Boston's big second period, led the Celtics from a 50-45 deficit to a 58-58 tie. Rookie John Havlicek's 20-foot set shot then gave Boston a 60-58 halftime lead which it never relinquished.

Bob Cousy, the Celtics playmaker and captain who is retiring at the end of the season, scored seven points. He needs just 15 more to reach a season's total of 1,000 points for the 13th consecutive year.

Pistons Clinch NBA Playoff Spot

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Pistons clinched third place in the Western Division and a spot in the National Basketball Association's playoffs Wednesday night by downing the New York Knicks 112-89 on a nine-point outburst at the outset of the fourth period.

New York, which trailed by 11 points in both the second and third periods, rallied to cut the deficit to 72-71 at the end of three quarters.

A basket by Tom Gola put New York ahead 73-72 at the start of the fourth period but Detroit then rattled off nine straight points to walk away wih the win in its final home appearance of the regular season.

Cassius Clay Misses Prediction In Beating Jones By Decision

By JACK CUDDY
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Unbeaten Cassius Clay failed to knock out Doug Jones in his predicted fourth round or any round Wednesday night but his long-armed jabs and straight rights did win him an unpopular, unanimous 10-round decision in their heavyweight contenders' fight.

The jammed crowd of 18,732 booed Clay for more than five minutes after the verdict in Madison Square Garden was announced. And they cheered to the girders when New Yorker Jones' handlers raised his arms as a sign that they thought he should have won.

Clay, 21 and known as the "Louisville Lip" because of his loud boasts of his prowess, registered his 18th straight victory as a professional. However, the fight not only broke his knockout string at nine straight, but it robbed him of much of his prestige as a puncher and particularly as a prophet of the round in which he would score the kayo.

Weighing 202½ pounds to Jones 188, Clay apparently lost all chance of getting a summer shot at the heavyweight crown.

Jones of New York at six feet, three inches shorter than the highly touted Clay, gave Clay the hardest fight of his professional career and forced much of the action in every round.

Lands Most Blows

But Cassius, with his long arms and side to side maneuvers, landed the most blows. Each was knocked back onto his heels several times during the excellent fight, and Cassius' nose was trickling blood at the finish.

Clay went into the ring favored at 3-1. Both he and his handlers were positive he would score his 13th round - picked knockout Wednesday night on March 13; but the double 13 proved a double jonah.

Early in the fight it seemed that Clay might get knocked out himself.His knees were buckled by a right to the jaw in the first round and again in the second. Then Clay increased his own pace and did well until late in the fourth round when his knees again were buckled by Jones' pressing but countering straight lefts and rights

Clay took the third, ninth and 10th rounds on the sheets of the three ring officials.

On the rounds basis they awarded Cassius the unanimous decision as follows: Referee Joe Loscolzo, 8-1-1; Judge Frank Forbes, 5-4-1, and Judge Artie Aidala, 5-4-1.

No Knockdowns Scored

There were no knockdowns as Jones suffered his fourth defeat in 26 bouts, on a night when it seemed he might score the big upset of 1963, just as he had

TERRY TURBIN

Breinig And Wade Run 1-2 In Points With 298 And 288

Roland Hamilton, Paw Paw High School senior, posted the highest average of 26.6 and Keyser's Terry Turbin was the foul shooting champion of the Potomac Valley Conference for the 1962-63 basketball season.

Joe Breinig of Romney High School scored more points than any other player, a total of 298 in 17 contests. Don Wade, also of Romney, was the runner-up with 288, Turbin finished third with 276, Dwayne Schinzing, Petersburg, was fourth with 274 and Hamilton wound up in fifth place with 266 tallies.

Trailing Hamilton in the high average department was Bill Kopfle of Bayard with 22.1 and LaSalle's Joe Nolan came in third with 21.8.

Turbin's Average 78.0

Terry Turbin meshed 78 out of 100 free throws to head the conference foul shooters with a mark of 78.0 per cent. Runner-up honors in the free throw department went to Schinzing who posted a 77.0 by converting 94 of 122 shots. Keith Russell, of Piedmont High's Lions, finished in third place with 73.2. He hooped 52 out of 71 at the charity stripe.

Bill Kopfle, of Bayard, scored the most points in a single game —a total of 37—while Turbin's 10 for 10 was the best single game foul shooting performance. Russell and Schinzing each had 9 for 9 and Nolan had 8 for 8.

Baltimore Learns NBA Fate Today

Zephyr Owners Debating Offer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Zephyrs owners began debate Wednesday on whether to accept an "attractive rental offer" to move the team to Baltimore for the next National Basketball Association season.

Their decision was to be announced at 11 a.m. Thursday.

Club President Dave Trager indicated he expected a drawn-out period of discussion and said the vote to remain in Chicago or move to Baltimore would be "7-0 either way."

It was known that at least two of the owners favored remaining in Chicago, but Trager said that while he personally favored staying here, he would vote to move.

"We can't find a satisfactory place to play here," he said, "and Baltimore's Civic Auditorium is beautiful. I don't want to leave Chicago, but I can't see that we have any alternative."

General Manager Frank C. Lane who was not in the meeting of directors and owners even though he holds stock in the club, predicted the team would move due to lack of satisfactory facilities in Chicago.

The Baltimore Civic Auditorium has offered the Zephyrs the use of their facilities for $750 per night and in addition will give the club a percentage of concessions and will aid in selling radio-television rights.

In Chicago, Lane said, the best rental offer was $1,000 per night with no share of concessions. In addition, he said, there would be a problem in obtaining dates to play in most Chicago sites.

Foster Named Rutgers Coach

Had 45-11 Mark At Bloomsburg

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (UPI) —Bill Foster, whose teams have rolled up a 45-11 three-year record at Bloomsburg State College in Pennsylvania, was named head basketball coach at Rutgers University Wednesday.

Foster, 33, was selected by Rutgers after a year-long screening of almost 100 applicants.

Foster will succeed Don White, who served as interim coach this year following the retirement of Tony Kuolt. Kuolt took an administrative job at Montclair State College in New Jersey.

In announcing the appointment, Albert W. Twitchell, director of athletics at Rutgers, said Foster "comes to Rutgers highly recommended by some of the leading coaches in the East, including Lou Rossini of New York University, Harry Litwak of Temple, Jack McCloskey of Penn, Ben Carnevele of Navy and George Hunter of Army."

Foster played basketball four years at Elizabethtown College in Pennsylvania, scoring more than 1,100 points.

He joined the Bloomsburg staff in 1960 after six years as a high school coach at Chichester, Pa., and Abington, Pa., where he closed his final season with a 19-2 record.

At Rutgers he signed a three-year contract at an undisclosed salary.

Top Golfers Passing Up St. Pete Open

Florida Tourney Has Field Of 159

ST. PETERSBURG Fla,. (UPI) — A field of 149 pros and 10 amateurs will tee off over the Lakewood Country Club course Thursday in the 72-hole $25,500 St. Petersburg Open, but the top names of golfdom will be missing.

Apparently the top money winners on the 1963 Professional Golfers Association tour are passing up the St. Petersburg event to rest up for the richer Doral Tournament at Miami next week and for the Masters Tournament at Augusta, Ga., the first week of April.

But the gallery still will be treated to top-notch golf by the field which will include eight winners of the past nine St. Petersburg events. They are Bobby Nichols, Bob Goalby, George Bayer, Cary Middlecoff, Pete Cooper, Mike Fetchick, and Jim Ferrier. Middlecoff won the event in 1955 and 1959.

Other top pros entered this year include Dow Finsterwald, Julius Boros, Ed Furgol, Jack Fleck, Tommy Bolt, Jacky Cupit, Doug Sanders, Ken Venturi and Mason Rudolph.

Par for the Lakewood Country Club course is 72, but the course record is held by six persons at nine-under-par 63.

The end of the Caribbean tour Sunday swelled the list of hopefuls seeking the top prize money. One of the pros qualifying for the tourney was Charles Sifford of Los Angeles, who will become the first Negro ever to play in the St. Petersburg Open. Sifford was the fourth - ranking money winner through the first four tourneys on the Caribbean tour.

Court Order Issued To Bar Miss. State From Tourney Play

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Chancellor L. B. Porter signed a temporary order Wednesday to prohibit Mississippi State University's basketball team from playing in the National Collegiate playoffs at East Lansing, Mich., Friday.

Porter signed the temporary injunction at Brandon and attorneys filed it with the Hinds County chancery clerk here.

It forbids spending State's money for mixed athletic activites outside the state and from breaching what it termed the public policy against integrated athletics.

State Sen. Billy Mitts of Enterprise and B. W. Lawson secured the injunction against the State College Board, its members and Mississippi State University officials.

In Starkville, Coach Babe McCarthy declined immediate comment. Other university officials were not available.

The State basketball team was scheduled to leave Thursday for the NCAA tournament and play Loyola of Chicago Friday night. Loyola has four Negro starters.

In the order signed by Judge Porter, the two men said the decision of the State College Board to permit the trip previously authorized by MSU President D. W. Colvard "is contrary to the public policy of the citizens in this state and the majority of the citizens of this state do not uphold the board."

Tom Heinsohn Paces Celtics To Victory

BOSTON (UPI) — Tom Heinsohn scored 37 points Wednesday night to pace the Boston Celtics to a 121-108 National Basketball Association win over the Chicago Zephyrs at Boston Garden.

Heinsohn, inserted just before the final three minutes of Boston's big second period, led the Celtics from a 50-45 deficit to a 58-58 tie. Rookie John Havlicek's 20-foot set shot then gave Boston a 60-58 halftime lead which it never relinquished.

Bob Cousy, the Celtics playmaker and captain who is retiring at the end of the season, scored seven points. He needs just 15 more to reach a season's total of 1,000 points for the 13th consecutive year.

Pistons Clinch NBA Playoff Spot

DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Pistons clinched third place in the Western Division and a spot in the National Basketball Association's playoffs Wednesday night by downing the New York Knicks 112-89 on a nine-point outburst at the outset of the fourth period.

New York, which trailed by 11 points in both the second and third periods, rallied to cut the deficit to 72-71 at the end of three quarters.

A basket by Tom Gola put New York ahead 73-72 at the start of the fourth period but Detroit then rattled off nine straight points to walk away with the win in its final home appearance of the regular season.

Kuharich Quits Notre Dame Coaching Job To Join NFL Front Office

Devore Named Interim Coach Of Irish Squad

Duties With Pro League Include Supervising Refs

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—Joe Kuharich Wednesday quit as Notre Dame football coach, handing the job to assistant Hugh Devore, and then did "the toughest thing I've ever had to do in my life."

He stood in front of his football team, called to a special meeting after classes, and told them he was leaving to take a job with the National Football League.

"I wish I were twins," he said, "so I could handle both jobs."

He gave up one of college football's most highly regarded coaching posts to join the NFL in an administrative capacity, supervising the league officials and doing general administrative work.

"I have a high regard for the National Football League," he said, "and the owners and I have been very close. I think it will be an intriguing position."

Kuharich said it "was absolutely my own decision" to leave Notre Dame.

Kuharich said he would remain at Notre Dame until April 15 and would work with Devore and the other assistant coaches.

Discusses Resignation

He said he had discussed the resignation and the offer from the NFL with the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, executive vice president of the school, several times in the past several days.

"Today I made my final decision. I waited until today to go one way or the other, and down deep, I felt I made the right decision," Kuharich said.

Devore, the present freshman coach, was named "interim coach for 1963."

It was the second time that Devore has been an interim coach at Notre Dame. He was named to the same position in 1945 when Elmer Layden resigned and before the appointment of Frank Leahy.

To Replace Wilson

In New York, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Kuharich would replace Mike Wilson, who is retiring at the age of 66 on a pension, as supervisor of referees and would have other administrative duties.

Kuharich, who had 17 wins against 23 losses in four seasons at Notre Dame, had been under fire for the past two years. In fact when he took the job, he was regarded with suspicion since Notre Dame fired Terry Brennan as coach and picked Kuharich as his successor.

There have been rumors repeatedly for the past year that Kuharich would quit, even though he had four years to go on his Irish contract, and each time he denied that he planned any change in jobs.

Joining the National Football League staff will reunite Kuharich with Rozelle.

Kuharich's first college coaching job was with the University of San Francisco, when Rozelle was sports publicity director. Kuharich later became coach of the Chicago Cardinals, then shifted to coaching the Washington Redskins, the job he quit to return to Notre Dame.

Kuharich, 46, originally came to Notre Dame on a five-year contract, but after his worst season, in 1960, his contract was extended for five years in a vote of confidence by the administration.

Jackson Tabbed As 'Can't Miss' Prospect By Pros

By JOE SARGIS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Big Lucius Jackson of Pan American College was the overwhelming choice on Wednesday on the 1963 United Press International small college All-America basketball team, a well - balanced quintet boasting power, speed and scoring punch.

Roger Strickland of Jacksonville, Hershell West of Grambling, Al Thrasher of national small college champion Wittenberg and Jerry Sloan of Evansville are Jackson's teammates on the mythical five, picked for UPI by the 35 coaches to help rank the small colleges during the past season.

Jackson, a 6-foot-9-inch center from San Marcus, Tex., is the biggest man on the team, and even though he is a junior, professional scouts already have him tabbed as "can't miss" in the pro ranks. Big Luke averaged 24.3 points a game this season and more than held his own on defense by pulling down an average of 19.1 rebounds.

Strickland Only Repeater

Strickland, a playmaker and scorer who is equally at home up front or in the backcourt, is the only repeater on this year's team —the other members of the 1962 team all having graduated last June. Roger, a 21-year-old, 6-foot 5-inch senior from Jacksonville, Fla., had a scoring average of 24.4, second best on the All-America team.

Top-scoring honors on the mythical five went to the 21-year-old West of Rayville, La., who along with teammate Willis Reed carried Grambling to a 26-2 season. West, a smooth and graceful gunner at 6-foot-5-inch, is regarded by many observers as one of the most versatile players in the country. In his four years at Grambling Hershell, another pro prospect, scored 2,523 points.

Thrasher and Sloan are not nearly the scorers as Jackson, Strickland and West, but their value is summed up in all the other skills required of the complete player. Thraser, the backbone of Wittenberg's championship team, averaged better than 10 rebounds a game, even though he is only 6-feet 2-inches and scored at a 19.2 clip. He's a 20-year-old junior from Urbana, Ohio.

Sloan Tops Defensively

Sloan, a 6-foot 5-inch sophomore from McLeansboro, Ill., had a scoring average of only 14.6, but like Thrasher, was a lion on defense and showed exceptional ability as a playmaker.

As a unit, the All - America team averages nearly 6-feet 5-inches in height and boasts a 21.7 scoring average. In addition, it has three versatile players in Strickland, Thrasher and Sloan, and good scorers and rebounders in Jackson and West.

Keith Stroup of Pacific (Los Angeles), Reed, West's teammate at Grambling, Jim Reynolds of Abilene Christian, Tom Pearsall of Albright (Pa.) and Sandy Pomerantz of Washington (St. Louis) form the second team, while Waite Bellamy of Florida A&M, Bill Giessing of Southeast Missouri, Mike Carson of San Francisco State, Earl Glass of Mississippi Industrial and little Herb Magee of Philadelphia Textile are the members of the third teams.

Glass, even though he stands only six feet is the nation's top scorer this season — among both major and small colleges. He averaged 42.9 points per game to become only the third player in history to top the 40 mark.

NIT Opens Tonight For 26th Year; Wichita Heavy Favorite

Providence Quint Seeded Second In Garden Classic

By NORMAN MILLER
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Invitation Basketball Tournament, oldest of such post-season college events, starts its 26th annual show at Madison Square Garden Thursday night with some outlanders from Wichita big favorites to win.

The opening doubleheader program matches Villanova (17-8) against De Paul (15-7) and Fordham (18-7), one of the two New York City entries, against Memphis State (18-6).

A Saturday afternoon first-round doubleheader pits LaSalle (16-7) against St. Louis (15-11) in a game to be televised nationally by N.B.C., and Miami of Florida (22-4) against St. Francis of New York (16-6).

Seeded teams — Wichita, Providence, Canisius and Marquette—start play in the Saturday night and Tuesday night quarter final twin bills, with the semifinals scheduled for Thursday night, and the nationally-televised final Saturday afternoon, March 23.

NCAA Grabs Champs

Considering the fact that the NCAA tournament (which was initiated one year after the NIT) grabbed several of the leading independent schools, as well as the conference champions, the NIT managed to round up a respectable 12-team field. The combined won-and-lost record of this year's field is 212-81 for a surprisingly high 72.4 percentage.

Wichita, runnerup to Cincinnati in the tough Missouri Valley Conference and the No. 6 team in the United Press International ratings, is the most glamorous of this year's entries.

Coach Ralph Miller's Wheatshockers, with a 19-7 record, have defeated four teams that were ranked among the nation's top eight this season. They handed Cincinnati its only defeat and also beat Arizona State, Loyola (Ill.) and Ohio State.

Poor Tourney Showings

Wichita competed in the NIT twice before with little success, being eliminated in the first round in 1954 and last year. In this season's tournament, the Shockers start play Saturday night against the winner of the Villanova-De-Paul game.

Providence, which won this tournament two years ago, is seeded second behind Wichita. The Friars from Rhode Island, with a 21-4 record and the No. 13 national ranking, meet the Miami-St. Francis survivor Tuesday night.

Third - seeded Canisius (17-6) takes on the Fordham - Memphis State survivor in Saturday night's quarterfinals, while fourth-seeded Marquette (18-8) faces the La-Salle-St. Louis winner Tuesday night.

Villanova was favored to beat DePaul on Thursday night's opening program, but the Fordham-Memphis State game was rated a toss-up.

Racing Merger Bill Passed By Md. Senate

Measure Now Goes To House

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The horse racing merger bill finally made the halfway turn around the Maryland Senate Wednesday.

More dust will be kicked up in the House of Delegates before it is decided if the move will be successful on its second outing. It had failed to even break out of a Senate Finance Committee last year.

Only two of the 29 senators were recorded against it on their final vote Wednesday afternoon. One of them, Sen. George E. Snyder, D-Washington, said he could not "commit myself to legalized larceny."

The legislature is asked to approve the purchase of 48 days for nearly $3 million by four tracks. Bowie, Pimlico, and Laurel want to acquire 36 from Bel Air and Baltimore Raceway while Timonium takes 12 from Cumberland.

This would allow the three mile tracks 52 apiece and Timonium 24.

As a concession to harness interests, the senate tacked on an additional 6 more nights for tracks at Ocean City, Laurel and Oxon Hill, giving them 30 each.

There is sentiment among the delegates to provide even more days, particularly at Marlboro and Hagerstown. Otherwise, those two will remain at only 12.

Snyder, who lives in Hagerstown, based his protest on the fact that the sale of days had been negotiated before approval was sought from the legislature.

Several others had complained of the same procedure during the bill's course through the senate where it had been standing still for two months.

This was expressed in an amendment which spells out that the legislature must give prior approval to any future track mergers.

"I cannot vote to say to certain racing interests," Snyder stated, "yes, you have made a mistake, but we're going to forgive you and give you what you want, and at the same time say don't ever let it happen again."

ROOKIE WINS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ron Ferraro, an apprentice jockey for all but the final three weeks of the year, captured the 1962 national riding championship.

turned in the major boxing upset of 1962 when he knocked out Zora Folley in the same Garden ring last Dec. 15, in the seventh round. Folley was the third-ranking heavyweight contender at the time.

Going into the ring Wednesday night, Clay was ranked second and Jones third by The Ring magazine.

In the dressing room Clay stood on a rubbing table and declared triumphantly: "I want a title fight with Liston, the big bear, within six months. I won tonight without any trouble. What do they expect of me?"

Jones declared, "I think I won it by about 6-3-1. He never hurt me at all. His punches landed on my gloves a lot. He has an amateur style. I'd like to fight him again."

The gross gate was announced as $104,943 for the fight which was not televised nor broadcast to homes. It was sent to 37 arenas in 33 cities by closed-circuit TV, where the total possible seating was 150,000 seats.

Clay is guaranteed $20,000 or 30 per cent of all net receipts, including closed circuit. He will get more than the 20 grand.

Jones gets $15,000, with the privilege of 25 per cent. He also will receive more than his guarantee.

NIT Opens Tonight For 26th Year; Wichita Heavy Favorite

By NORMAN MILLER
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Invitation Basketball Tournament, oldest of such post-season college events, starts its 26th annual show at Madison Square Garden Thursday night with some outlanders from Wichita big favorites to win.

The opening doubleheader program matches Villanova (17-8) against De Paul (15-7) and Fordham (18-7), one of the two New York City entries, against Memphis State (18-6).

A Saturday afternoon first-round doubleheader pits LaSalle (16-7) against St. Louis (15-11) in a game to be televised nationally by N.B.C., and Miami of Florida (22-4) against St. Francis of New York (16-6).

Seeded teams — Wichita, Providence, Canisius and Marquette—start play in the Saturday night and Tuesday night quarter final twin bills, with the semifinals scheduled for Thursday night, and the nationally-televised final Saturday afternoon, March 23.

NCAA Grabs Champs

Considering the fact that the NCAA tournament (which was initiated one year after the NIT) grabbed several of the leading independent schools, as well as the conference champions, the NIT managed to round up a respectable 12-team field. The combined won-and-lost record of this year's field is 212-81 for a surprisingly high 72.4 percentage.

Wichita, runnerup to Cincinnati in the tough Missouri Valley Conference and the No. 6 team in the United Press International ratings, is the most glamorous of this year's entries.

Coach Ralph Miller's Wheatshockers, with a 19-7 record, have defeated four teams that were ranked among the nation's top eight this season. They handed Cincinnati its only defeat and also beat Arizona State, Loyola (Ill.) and Ohio State.

Poor Tourney Showings

Wichita competed in the NIT twice before with little success, being eliminated in the first round in 1954 and last year. In this season's tournament, the Shockers start play Saturday night against the winner of the Villanova-De-Paul game.

Providence, which won this tournament two years ago, is seeded second behind Wichita. The Friars from Rhode Island, with a 21-4 record and the No. 13 national ranking, meet the Miami-St. Francis survivor Tuesday night.

Third - seeded Canisius (17-6) takes on the Fordham - Memphis State survivor in Saturday night's quarterfinals, while fourth-seeded Marquette (18-8) faces the La-Salle-St. Louis winner Tuesday night.

Villanova was favored to beat DePaul on Thursday night's opening program, but the Fordham-Memphis State game was rated a toss-up.

Racing Merger Bill Passed By Md. Senate

Measure Now Goes To House

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The horse racing merger bill finally made the halfway turn around the Maryland Senate Wednesday.

More dust will be kicked up in the House of Delegates before it is decided if the move will be successful on its second outing. It had failed to even break out of a Senate Finance Committee last year.

Only two of the 29 senators were recorded against it on their final vote Wednesday afternoon. One of them, Sen. George E. Snyder, D-Washington, said he could not "commit myself to legalized larceny."

The legislature is asked to approve the purchase of 48 days for nearly $3 million by four tracks. Bowie, Pimlico, and Laurel want to acquire 36 from Bel Air and Baltimore Raceway while Timonium takes 12 from Cumberland.

This would allow the three mile tracks 52 apiece and Timonium 24.

As a concession to harness interests, the senate tacked on an additional 6 more nights for tracks at Ocean City, Laurel and Oxon Hill, giving them 30 each.

There is sentiment among the delegates to provide even more days, particularly at Marlboro and Hagerstown. Otherwise, those two will remain at only 12.

Snyder, who lives in Hagerstown, based his protest on the fact that the sale of days had been negotiated before approval was sought from the legislature.

Several others had complained of the same procedure during the bill's course through the senate where it had been standing still for two months.

This was expressed in an amendment which spells out that the legislature must give prior approval to any future track mergers.

"I cannot vote to say to certain racing interests," Snyder stated, "yes, you have made a mistake, but we're going to forgive you and give you what you want, and at the same time say don't ever let it happen again."

ROOKIE WINS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ron Ferraro, an apprentice jockey for all but the final three weeks of the year, captured the 1962 national riding championship.

Louisville Lip

turned in the major boxing upset of 1962 when he knocked out Zora Folley in the same Garden ring last Dec. 15, in the seventh round. Folley was the third-ranking heavyweight contender at the time.

Going into the ring Wednesday night, Clay was ranked second and Jones third by The Ring magazine.

In the dressing room Clay stood on a rubbing table and declared triumphantly: "I want a title fight with Liston, the big bear, within six months. I won tonight without any trouble. What do they expect of me?"

Jones declared, "I think I won it by about 6-3-1. He never hurt me at all. His punches landed on my gloves a lot. He has an amateur style. I'd like to fight him again."

The gross gate was announced as $104,943 for the fight which was not televised nor broadcast to homes. It was sent to 37 arenas in 33 cities by closed-circuit TV, where the total possible seating was 150,000 seats.

Clay is guaranteed $20,000 or 30 per cent of all net receipts, including closed circuit. He will get more than the 20 grand.

Jones gets $15,000, with the privilege of 25 per cent. He also will receive more than his guarantee.

Koufax's Finger Could Be Key To Dodgers' Fortune In Pursuit Of Flag That Just Evaded Them In 1962

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is another in a series on the major league teams. Others will follow on this page daily.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

VERO BEACH, Fla. — If you want to put your finger on the Los Angeles Dodgers' troubles last year—and the prospects for 1963—you could point right at the ailing digit on the pitching hand of Sandy Koufax.

Not that manager Walter Alston does that, but the finger ailment which hit Sandy in mid-July and kept him out the rest of the campaign until the final disastrous week played a role, if not the leading role.

A stone bruise started Sandy's trouble after a spectacular start in which he was striking 'em out by the dozens and hurled a no-hitter. The finger, the leadoff digit on the left hand, began to swell after he pitched and it puzzled many. And it failed to correct itself.

If Finger Is O. K.

"If Sandy's finger is okay," said Alston in camp here, "we could have a good pitching staff. It's hard to say that one man can make a difference but in our case he does. We're hoping the trouble won't return. It seems to be O.K. now but it looked O.K. last year until after he pitched.

"I can't go along completely that our troubles were all focused on one fellow's finger, for that isn't the truth. The rest of our pitchers did a fine job the rest of the season and I certainly can't say that Koufax lost the pennant for us."

"WE WEREN'T hitting — that's for sure," Alston admitted. "We went something like 35 innings without scoring a run. Our solid thumpers like Ron Fairly, Tommy Davis, Frank Howard and John Roseboro couldn't buy a hit. But I also have to look at it another way, for in the middle of the season we played great ball and the hits were coming in key spots."

Made Big Trade

The Dodgers made one big trade during the winter. They acquired Moose Skowron, the Yankee first baseman, for pitcher Stan Williams. And Moose figures to help this club a good deal.

"I think we got the help where we needed it, right-handed hitting" said Alston. Skowron himself is happy here, says that he has no back ailments and that contrary to what everyone believes he played all but 40 games in the last three years and some of them he was out because of doubleheaders.

The Dodgers of 1963 are a young club. The old guard which was here when Alston first took over in 1954 has gone with the exception of Duke Snider, Junior Gilliam and Johnny Podres.

Duke Has Had It

Snider has had it, Gilliam faces a real fight for the second base job from Nate Oliver, a .317 whacker at Spokane last year, while Podres still is part of the Dodgers' pitching corps and a good one.

Alston plans to play Tommy Davis, the major leagues' leading hitter at .346 last year, at third base where he has performed before. Of Davis at the hot corner Alston says: "He makes plays at times which makes me believe he's a grand third baseman. But other times you wonder."

Skowron will be at first, and the one and only artful Dodger, Maury Wills, at short. If Davis plays third and Skowron first, Fairly will go in the outfield along with the towering Frank Howard and Willie Davis with Wally Moon, Snider and Lee Walls in reserve.

Daryl Spencer and Don Zimmer are infield veterans, Zimmer having come back to the club after spending 1962 at New York and Cincinnati. A possible infield or outfield break-in is rookie Ken McMullen, a 20-year old who did a fine job at Omaha last season.

Doug Gets Chance

Young Doug Camilli, son of Dolph, did a fine job as the second receiver last year and Alston feels that "he deserves a shot at the catching spot." Roseboro was on the trading list but still is here. He has been No. 1 for several years.

"Camilli hit the ball with authority last year when Roseboro was out," said Alston, "but he has to improve on his catching."

The pitching, as always, could be very good. Don Drysdale, Podres and Koufax make quite a three-some and for the fourth starter Alston may go with Larry Sherry, the relief specialist who wants to be a starter.

Joe Moeller, one of the $50,000-plus bonus boys, who was 6-5 last year, is showing signs of better control and he could fit in. Others are Phil Ortega, Bob Miller (acquired from the Mets) and Pete Richert, who is in the service and will be out in April.

For relief Alston has Ron Perranoski, who led the league with 70 appearances on the mound for Omaha.

Young Hopefuls

Among young hopefuls are Norman Koch, who was 12-13 with Reno; Dick Calmus, a bonus kid who pitched for Midwest last year, and Dick Scott, who won 10 for Spokane. Also being looked at and not on the roster are several others, including Nick Wilhite, the top pitcher for Omaha last year.

Juan Marichal Ends Holdout

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Right-hander Juan Marichal signed an estimated $25,000 contract with the San Francisco Giants Wednesday, ending the National League champions' spring holdout woes.

Marichal had sought $30,000, an increase of $13,000.

He reached the compromise with Giants vice-president Chub Feeney after two days of negotiations. He signed less than 24 hours after Orlando Cepeda, the other principal Giants holdout.

Phils Buy Duren From LA Angels

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)—The Los Angeles Angels of the American League sold pitcher Rhyne Duren Wednesday to the Philadelphia Phillies of the National League for "a little above the waiver price." No other players were involved, the Angels said.

Duren, 34, appeared in 42 games with Los Angeles last season, winning two and losing nine. He had a 4.44 earned run average.

A right-hander, Duren joined the Angels in 1961 in a trade with the New York Yankees, along with Lee Thomas and John James in a swap for Bob Cerv and Tex Clevenger.

The waiver price is $25,000.

All Brandy Cops Bowie Feature

BOWIE, Md., March 13 (AP)—John A. Manfuso's All Brandy, showing her usual late burst of speed, caught Donald G. Ross' pacesetting Atlas approaching the furlong marker and drew away quickly to capture the featured Eastern Shore Stakes at Bowie Race Course today.

All Brandy, under Sammy Boulmetis' urging, maneuvered the 7 furlongs in 1.24 4/5 to earn the $7,003 winner's share of the $10,775 purse. It was the Double Brandy filly's second consecutive stakes score of the meeting.

Watson Elliott's Tuscanny Pomp, who prompted Alias' early pace to the far turn, tired through the straightaway to third, eight lengths farther back. George Sims' Yeauxdeoux, second choice in the wagering, was fourth.

All Brandy, representing the fourth favorite of the afternoon to get home in front, returned $3.40, $2.80 and $2.20 across the board. Alias paid $4.80 and $2.80 and Tuscanny Pomp returned $2.80 to show.

Marchaneta and Ruby Sag, both No. 4 on the program, produced a $25.80 daily double by winning the first and second races, respectively.

Koufax's Finger Could Be Key To Dodgers' Fortune In Pursuit Of Flag That Just Evaded Them In 1962

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is another in a series on the major league teams. Others will follow on this page daily.

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

VERO BEACH, Fla. — If you want to put your finger on the Los Angeles Dodgers' troubles last year—and the prospects for 1963—you could point right at the ailing digit on the pitching hand of Sandy Koufax.

Not that manager Walter Alston does that, but the finger ailment which hit Sandy in mid-July and kept him out the rest of the campaign until the final disastrous week played a role, if not the leading role.

A stone bruise started Sandy's trouble after a spectacular start in which he was striking 'em out by the dozens and hurled a no-hitter. The finger, the leadoff digit on the left hand, began to swell after he pitched and it puzzled many. And it failed to correct itself.

If Finger Is O. K.

"If Sandy's finger is okay," said Alston in camp here, "we could have a good pitching staff. It's hard to say that one man can make a difference but in our case he does. We're hoping the trouble won't return. It seems to be O.K. now but it looked O.K. last year until after he pitched.

"I can't go along completely that our troubles were all focused on one fellow's finger, for that isn't the truth. The rest of our pitchers did a fine job the rest of the season and I certainly can't say that Koufax lost the pennant for us."

"WE WEREN'T hitting — that's for sure," Alston admitted. "We went something like 35 innings without scoring a run. Our solid thumpers like Ron Fairly, Tommy Davis, Frank Howard and John Roseboro couldn't buy a hit. But I also have to look at it another way, for in the middle of the season we played great ball and the hits were coming in key spots."

Made Big Trade

The Dodgers made one big trade during the winter. They acquired Moose Skowron, the Yankee first baseman, for pitcher Stan Williams. And Moose figures to help this club a good deal.

"I think we got the help where we needed it, right-handed hitting" said Alston. Skowron himself is happy here, says that he has no back ailments and that contrary to what everyone believes he played all but 40 games in the last three years and some of them he was out because of doubleheaders.

The Dodgers of 1963 are a young club. The old guard which was here when Alston first took over in 1954 has gone with the exception of Duke Snider, Junior Gilliam and Johnny Podres.

Duke Has Had It

Snider has had it, Gilliam faces a real fight for the second base job from Nate Oliver, a .317 whacker at Spokane last year, while Podres still is part of the Dodgers' pitching corps and a good one.

Alston plans to play Tommy Davis, the major leagues' leading hitter at .346 last year, at third base where he has performed before. Of Davis at the hot corner Alston says: "He makes plays at times which makes me believe he's a grand third baseman. But other times you wonder."

Skowron will be at first, and the one and only artful Dodger, Maury Wills, at short. If Davis plays third and Skowron first, Fairly will go in the outfield along with the towering Frank Howard and Willie Davis with Wally Moon, Snider and Lee Walls in reserve.

Daryl Spencer and Don Zimmer are infield veterans, Zimmer having come back to the club after spending 1962 at New York and Cincinnati. A possible infield or outfield break-in is rookie Ken McMullen, a 20-year old who did a fine job at Omaha last season.

Doug Gets Chance

Young Doug Camilli, son of Dolph, did a fine job as the second receiver last year and Alston feels that "he deserves a shot at the catching spot." Roseboro was on the trading list but still is here. He has been No. 1 for several years.

"Camilli hit the ball with authority last year when Roseboro was out," said Alston, "but he has to improve on his catching."

The pitching, as always, could be very good. Don Drysdale, Podres and Koufax make quite a three-some and for the fourth starter Alston may go with Larry Sherry, the relief specialist who wants to be a starter.

Joe Moeller, one of the $50,000-plus bonus boys, who was 6-5 last year, is showing signs of better control and he could fit in. Others are Phil Ortega, Bob Miller (acquired from the Mets) and Pete Richert, who is in the service and will be out in April.

For relief Alston has Ron Perranoski, who led the league with 70 appearances on the mound for Omaha.

Young Hopefuls

Among young hopefuls are Norman Koch, who was 12-13 with Reno; Dick Calmus, a bonus kid who pitched for Midwest last year, and Dick Scott, who won 10 for Spokane. Also being looked at and not on the roster are several others, including Nick Wilhite, the top pitcher for Omaha last year.

NEXT — The New York Yankees

HIGH AVERAGE

BOSTON (UPI) — Bob Cousy has averaged 19 points per game in 12 seasons with the Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association.

Juan Marichal Ends Holdout

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Right-hander Juan Marichal signed an estimated $25,000 contract with the San Francisco Giants Wednesday, ending the National League champions' spring holdout woes.

Marichal had sought $30,000, an increase of $13,000.

He reached the compromise with Giants vice-president Chub Feeney after two days of negotiations. He signed less than 24 hours after Orlando Cepeda, the other principal Giants holdout.

Phils Buy Duren From LA Angels

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)—The Los Angeles Angels of the American League sold pitcher Rhyne Duren Wednesday to the Philadelphia Phillies of the National League for "a little above the waiver price." No other players were involved, the Angels said.

Duren, 34, appeared in 42 games with Los Angeles last season, winning two and losing nine. He had a 4.44 earned run average.

A right-hander, Duren joined the Angels in 1961 in a trade with the New York Yankees, along with Lee Thomas and John James in a swap for Bob Cerv and Tex Clevenger.

The waiver price is $25,000.

All Brandy Cops Bowie Feature

BOWIE, Md., March 13 (AP)—John A. Manfuso's All Brandy, showing her usual late burst of speed, caught Donald G. Ross' pacesetting Atlas approaching the furlong marker and drew away quickly to capture the featured Eastern Shore Stakes at Bowie Race Course today.

All Brandy, under Sammy Boulmetis' urging, maneuvered the 7 furlongs in 1.24 4/5 to earn the $7,003 winner's share of the $10,775 purse. It was the Double Brandy filly's second consecutive stakes score of the meeting.

Watson Elliott's Tuscanny Pomp, who prompted Alias' early pace to the far turn, tired through the straightaway to third, eight lengths farther back. George Sims' Yeauxdeoux, second choice in the wagering, was fourth.

All Brandy, representing the fourth favorite of the afternoon to get home in front, returned $3.40, $2.80 and $2.20 across the board. Alias paid $4.80 and $2.80 and Tuscanny Pomp returned $2.80 to show.

A strong sun penetrated the haze sufficiently to warm the 9,340 fans, who watched formful racing over a muddy racing strip.

Three Minutes Are Up

VICTORIA, B. C. (AP) — The "beeps" have done their duty and been retired.

But Provincial Works Minister William Chant warns they will be returned to the legislative building telephone system, if civil servants start talking too much again.

A machine sounding a "beep" every three minutes was installed in an attempt to cut down on the government's phone bill. The "beeps" reminded phone users to talk less on outside calls.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

4 Escape Death On RR Crossing

B&O Fast Freight Demolishes Stalled Automobile In Piedmont

A Rawlings woman, a daughter and two grandchildren escaped death or serious injury yesterday afternoon in Piedmont when their two-door car stalled on the B&O crossing and was demolished by a westbound fast freight.

The harrowing experience was related last night by Mrs. Pat Wilt, wife of Harvey C. Wilt, who had driven to Piedmont with a daughter, Mrs. Jackie Moore, also of Rawlings, and Bobby Moore, two, and his sister, Stephanie Moore, three.

As Mrs. Wilt approached the B&O crossing on Childs Avenue in Piedmont she slowed down because children were returning to school and were walking near the crossing.

She started across the crossing but the motor of her husband's car stalled. The crossing gates closed and the bell denoting an approaching train sounded its warning.

Flee Just In Time

Mrs. Wilt said she managed to get the right door open, shoved Mrs. Moore and Stephanie out and told her daughter to run.

About the same time Mrs. Wilt got out of the car and reached into the back seat where Bobby was playing with toys on the floor.

Mrs. Wilt said she could see the train bearing down on the car as she pulled the boy out of the stalled car and ran to the side of the crossing.

Within a matter of seconds the fast freight bore down on the car and hurled it into the air and off to the side of the crossing, demolishing it.

Mrs. Wilt said it was a miracle no one was injured in the crash, which occurred about 12:30 p.m. Volunteer firemen of Piedmont and Westernport were summoned to the scene to wash down gasoline which had spewed out onto the crossing.

Train Delayed

The St. Louian Time Saver, which was held up about half an hour, had been made up in Cumberland and was headed for St. Louis.

D. F. Davis, engineer on the fast freight, and L. F. Durst, conductor, are from Cumberland. The accident was investigated by Police Chief Charles Spiker and Patrolman Harold Evans.

Mrs. Wilt, who had gone to Piedmont to visit with another daughter, Mrs. Gerry Ashenfelter, Murphy Street, is employed at The Cow on McMullen Highway.

Mercury Hits Unofficial High Of 70 Degrees

Yesterday's spring-like weather —sunny skies and a temperature of 70 degrees—will be short-lived, as the forecast today calls for colder weather and a chance of snow flurries.

The mercury started an upward trend yesterday morning, and by 3 p.m. it reached an unofficial high of 70 degrees in downtown Cumberland.

Yesterday's warm trend was a welcome relief from the wet and cold weather experienced here recently, but the Weather Bureau says it will not last.

The high temperature today is expected to be in the 30s and the cold trend is expected to continue tomorrow.

Firm Is Named For County Mapping Job

$30,000 Planning Project Slated

Alster and Associates Inc. of Washington has been selected by the Allegany County Planning and Zoning Commission for the $30,000 county mapping project, according to C. Lee Renaud, county planning director.

The commission's recommendation will be forwarded to the State Planning Commission, which will award the contract. Four other proposals were considered from aerial mapping firms. They were submitted by Abrams Aerial Survey Corp., Pittsburgh, Pa.; American Air Survey, also of Pittsburgh; National Aerial Surveys Inc., Arlington, Va., and Maps, Inc., Baltimore.

This Allegany County mapping project is part of the planning program designed eventually to obtain accurate base maps and topography of the entire county. It is designed so that increments of mapping may be purchased periodically as the county grows. The project is being financed by the Housing and Home Finance Agency through an urban assistance planning grant, which was approved last December 4.

Two-Way Problem

Alster and Associates, Inc., is caught in a two-way problem. Flights for aerial mapping cannot be started until all the snow is off the ground, and it must be stopped when trees begin to bear foliage.

The county mapping project will provide base maps with physical features such as roads, structures, power and fence lines, wooded areas etc. and another set showing the topography at five-foot contour intervals, according to Mr. Renaud.

Funds available at this time will allow the purchase of mapping for approximately 50 square miles of the county. Priority will be given to those areas in which the commission anticipates the most growth. To get these maps with a high degree of accuracy, the mapping firm will fly the county and take low - altitude photography. Enlargements will be made in a reproduction form to allow maximum use of the photographs.

Purpose Of Flights

Mr. Renaud pointed out that many flights of Allegany County have been made to photograph it by other county, state and federal agencies but none for the specific purposes of establishing accurate mapping and topography. Highly accurate horizontal and vertical ground control as well as controlled flight lines are essential to achieve the high degree of accuracy needed.

Accurate maps are needed for most planning studies and all site development plans. Accuracy is essential in engineering details such as drainage, sanitary sewer lines, road grades and grading plans.

These maps will be invaluable for planning studies and will be helpful to many other agencies as the Sanitary Commission, tax maps and County Roads Department. These maps and photographs also will be available to the public for a nominal charge.

Representatives of utilities, industrial development agencies, real estate people, developers, engineers, surveyors and others interested in site developments.

James A. Perrin is chairman of the County Planning and Zoning Commission. Other members are Ralph M. Race, Carl O. Belt, Dr. Rudolph Steinberger and County Commissioner Robert Little Ebert.

Pogue To Get Hearing Today

James Eugene Pogue, 21, of 124 South Mechanic Street, who is presently serving a one-year sentence for a motor vehicle larceny charge, will be given a hearing this morning in Allegany County Circuit Court on a petition under the Post Conviction Procedure Act.

Pogue was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction last August by former Magistrate V. Browne Kooken of Westernport, who found the local man guilty of operating a motor vehicle without the consent of the owner. Pogue also was given 60 days for operating a vehicle without a license, but that sentence ran concurrently with the year term.

Pogue appealed the magistrate's ruling, but later withdrew the appeal and filed a petition for review.

Hugh A. McMullen was appointed to represent Pogue at the hearing which will be held at 10 a.m. before Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey. Deputy State's Attorney Donald W. Mason will represent the state.

Permit Issued

The City Engineering office yesterday issued a permit to Mrs. J. Homer Wilson, 105 Washington Street, for a building addition at 43-47 North Liberty Street.

The property is to be used for off-street parking and a warehouse. The warehouse will be a two-story concrete block and brick veneer building. Cost is estimated at $10,000.

Backbone Of Naval Reserve Division Here

Naval Reserve Chiefs Boast Long Service

With Local Unit Since Commissioning

Of the 179 men who are now a part of Cumberland Naval Reserve Surface Division 5-9, only the four chiefs were members of the division when the U. S. Naval and Marine Corps Reserves Training Center on McKaig's Hill was commissioned more than 14 years ago — on September 18, 1948.

The four chiefs are Chief Engineman Donald D. Wagoner, Springfield, W. Va.; Chief Shipfitter Lloyd E. Norris, 305 South Street; Chief Radioman Lewis D. Metz, 1308 Holland Street, and Chief Machinist Mate George E. Boore, 327 Fort Hill Avenue.

The careers of these four so-called "plank owners" of the Naval and Marine Corps Reserve Training Center are being emphasized because the division is now preparing for its annual inspection on April 3.

Surface Division 5-9 was activated on November 20, 1946, and reached its maximum authorized strength of 200 enlisted men, 10 division officers and five volunteer associate officers on June 27, 1947.

Center 15 Years Old

Ground was broken and construction started on the training center on July 24, 1947. Installation of equipment started on June 14, 1948. The installation was still incomplete at the time of the commissioning ceremonies on September 18, 1948.

Chief Metz, who is employed by the State Roads Commission, was a 1939 graduate of Allegany High School. He enlisted in the Navy on June 25, 1940, and was discharged exactly six years later.

The day after his discharge he enlisted in the U. S. Naval Reserve and in November 1946 joined the local reserve division. He was recalled to active duty during the Korean conflict from August 1950 until December 1951 and returned to the local division after this second period of active duty.

Chief Metz's wife, the former Miss Helen E. Noble, is a chief personnelman in the local surface division. Chief Metz belongs to B. P. O. Elks Lodge 63 and St. John's Lutheran Church.

Chief Is Restauranteur

Chief Wagoner, who is commander of Fort Ashby Post 6667, Veterans of Foreign Wars, owns and operates Wagoner's Ice and Restaurant on West Virginia Route 28, between Fort Ashby and Springfield.

The Springfield man had an active Navy career. He did convoy duty aboard the U. S. S. Apache in the Atlantic from September to December 1942. Then he was sent to the South Pacific where on patrol duty he participated in action at Guadalcanal, Treasury Island, Bougainville,

Two Supervisors Discuss Elementary Reading Plan

Presenting the explanation were Miss Elizabeth I. Flake and Miss Margaret E. Doak.

Miss Flake stressed at the beginning of their observations that reading is the most important single subject taught in the elementary schools because all other subjects are dependent upon the pupil's ability to read.

In each grade there is a basal reading program which all pupils are expected to complete. However, there are wide variations in the reading ability of children. Miss Flake commented that a typical third grade class was tested recently and children there varied from the first to the sixth grade level in ability to read.

As a consequence, an attempt is made to place pupils of comparable ability in the same classroom.

Miss Doak devoted much of her remarks to a comparison of individualized reading with ability-grouped reading methods. She cited the many advantages that are claimed for individualized reading.

Children choose what they read under this method. A wide variety and great number of books are needed. Reading occurs at the exact ability level of the child. Slow readers' choice of books is unnoticed because of the variety of books chosen. No child need hold up the whole group.

The elementary supervisors said most elementary classes complete their basal reading program for the school year by March. During the rest of the school year a good many teachers experiment with individualized reading.

Members of the school board were reminded by the supervisors that a nationally-recognized authority in the field of reading will be in Cumberland April 19 when the county teachers have their professional day program at Allegany High School. He is Dr. Harry Sartain of the University of Pittsburgh.

In closing their remarks, the elementary supervisors showed the school board members two charts showing the average scores of Allegany County third and sixth graders who recently took the Iowa test of basic skills.

Third graders of Allegany County averaged consistently above the national average. This was given at the end of the fourth month of the third grade and the county average was the equivalent of sixth months through the third grade.

Sixth graders of this county also averaged above the national mean although they fell below the national average in language usage and maps. The test measured language skills, work study skills and arithmetic skills.

Educators Give Strong Support To School Bill

By TOM SEPPY

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Educators reiterated their claim Wednesday that Maryland's emphasis for paying the cost of public education should be placed on pupils and not teachers.

Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, said he favored two bills before the General Assembly, one in the Senate and the other in the House, because "this is not a bill for teachers; it is a bill for children."

Pullen headed a list of 18 witnesses who testified before a joint public hearing of the Senate Finance and House Ways and Means committees in support of a program which would require an additional outlay of $14 million by the state.

Would Lower Exemptions

The program would be financed by lowering state income tax exemptions from $800 to $600.

Despite strong legislative backing—11 senators and 59 delegates sponsored the bills—Gov. Tawes said Sunday he could not lend his support to the program.

The governor said implementation of the program would require a substantial change in distribution of revenues to counties, which is now under study by the commission on state and county finances.

Robert Y. Dubel, associate executive secretary of the Maryland State Teachers Association, told the crowded House chamber that the legislation "carries an equitable tax feature which will fit into any pattern of finance devised by any commission."

Three Opponents

There were only three opponents to the measures, including Calvin W. Mowbray, president of the Maryland Municipal League.

Mowbray said his group was opposed to any program which would take money away from the muncipalities. He suggested that the legislators wait for the results of the study by the governor's commission before making any decision.

Present state aid is based on a complicated formula geared to a minimum salary program for teachers. It involves the number of classroom units in a county, the county's taxable wealth, and other factors.

The proposed program would base state aid on a minimum of $225 for each pupil unit which would be shared on a fifty-fifty basis by the state and the 23 counties and Baltimore City.

Tawes' Slots Bill Fails By 2 Votes

Lobbying Charged; Measure Could Be Reconsidered

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes' bill to abolish slot machines failed by two votes in the House of Delegates Wednesday night amid charges slot machine interests had swayed legislators through intense lobbying.

The bill, which had received a 93-29 vote of support on a key roll-call last Thursday, could muster only a 70-50 margin when it came up for final passage. There were 22 delegates not recorded.

It is believed the administration will attempt to shore up support and have the measure reconsidered Thursday.

Del. Thomas Hunter Lowe, D-Talbot, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, warned delegates they would bring public contempt on the legislature by the switch in sentiment.

He said that since the bill was supported so overwhelmingly last week, "the halls have been filled with slot operators and lobbyists to the extent that I sometimes thought they outnumbered delegates."

Prestige At Stake

"Not only is the administration's prestige riding on this bill, but so is the prestige of every member of the House," Lowe said. "If in between (the two rollcalls) this mass influx has changed us, what will the people think?"

Majority floor leader W. Dale Hess, D-Harford, said he was "shocked and amazed" at the change in the voting board since last Thursday.

Del. Richard Grumbacher, D-Washington, commented he was neither shocked nor amazed. "Money does not shock, surprise or amaze me," he said. "Sometimes it scares me though." Grumbacher said he feared for the political future of Maryland.

Delegates who explained their votes against the bill insisted it was a local option matter for the four Southern Maryland counties which legalize slots and which would lose them over a five-year period.

They also said it was inconsistent to outlaw one form of gambling in one area and let it flourish in other forms elsewhere, including state-sponsored horse racing.

Big Switches

The biggest switches from last Thursday's rollcall, which came on rejecting an amendment to exempt three Southern Maryland counties, came from Baltimore County and Baltimore City.

The county, which had registered nine votes with the governor last Thursday, gave him only three Wednesday night with seven opposed and three not voting. Baltimore City, which had 27 voting with the administration before, showed only 10 Wednesday night with 17 against and 11 not voting.

Southern Maryland slot machine operators joined the packed house galleries to witness the proceedings.

After the voting, Joseph S. Kaufman, former deputy assistant attorney general who is the registered lobbyist for an Anne Arundel County slot machine firm, approached Hess on the house floor.

"I'm not as bad a lobbyist as you think I am, am I?" he commented.

"We're going to have another round tomorrow, boy, and you'd better keep working," the majority leader rejoined.

The mercury started an upward trend yesterday morning, and by 3 p.m. it reached an unofficial high of 70 degrees in downtown Cumberland.

Yesterday's warm trend was a welcome relief from the wet and cold weather experienced here recently, but the Weather Bureau says it will not last.

The high temperature today is expected to be in the 30s and the cold trend is expected to continue tomorrow.

Firm Is Named For County Mapping Job

$30,000 Planning Project Slated

Alster and Associates Inc. of Washington has been selected by the Allegany County Planning and Zoning Commission for the $30,000 county mapping project, according to C. Lee Renaud, county planning director.

The commission's recommendation will be forwarded to the State Planning Commission, which will award the contract. Four other proposals were considered from aerial mapping firms. They were submitted by Abrams Aerial Survey Corp., Pittsburgh, Pa.; American Air Survey, also of Pittsburgh; National Aerial Surveys Inc., Arlington, Va., and Maps, Inc., Baltimore.

This Allegany County mapping project is part of the planning program designed eventually to obtain accurate base maps and topography of the entire county. It is designed so that increments of mapping may be purchased periodically as the county grows. The project is being financed by the Housing and Home Finance Agency through an urban assistance planning grant, which was approved last December 4.

Two-Way Problem

Alster and Associates, Inc., is caught in a two-way problem. Flights for aerial mapping cannot be started until all the snow is off the ground, and it must be stopped when trees begin to bear foliage.

The county mapping project will provide base maps with physical features such as roads, structures, power and fence lines, wooded areas etc. and another set showing the topography at five-foot contour intervals, according to Mr. Renaud.

Funds available at this time will allow the purchase of mapping for approximately 50 square miles of the county. Priority will be given to those areas in which the commission anticipates the most growth. To get these maps with a high degree of accuracy, the mapping firm will fly the county and take low - altitude photography. Enlargements will be made in a reproduction form to allow maximum use of the photographs.

Purpose Of Flights

Mr. Renaud pointed out that many flights of Allegany County have been made to photograph it by other county, state and federal agencies but none for the specific purposes of establishing accurate mapping and topography. Highly accurate horizontal and vertical ground control as well as controlled flight lines are essential to achieve the high degree of accuracy needed.

Accurate maps are needed for most planning studies and all site development plans. Accuracy is essential in engineering details such as drainage, sanitary sewer lines, road grades and grading plans.

These maps will be invaluable for planning studies and will be helpful to many other agencies as the Sanitary Commission, tax maps and County Roads Department. These maps and photographs also will be available to the public for a nominal charge.

Representatives of utilities, industrial development agencies, real estate people, developers, engineers, surveyors and others interested in site developments.

James A. Perrin is chairman of the County Planning and Zoning Commission. Other members are Ralph M. Race, Carl O. Belt, Dr. Rudolph Steinberger and County Commissioner Robert Little Ebert.

Pogue To Get Hearing Today

James Eugene Pogue, 21, of 124 South Mechanic Street, who is presently serving a one-year sentence for a motor vehicle larceny charge, will be given a hearing this morning in Allegany County Circuit Court on a petition under the Post Conviction Procedure Act.

Pogue was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction last August by former Magistrate V. Browne Kooken of Westernport, who found the local man guilty of operating a motor vehicle without the consent of the owner. Pogue also was given 60 days for operating a vehicle without a license, but that sentence ran concurrently with the year term.

Pogue appealed the magistrate's ruling, but later withdrew the appeal and filed a petition for review.

Hugh A. McMullen was appointed to represent Pogue at the hearing which will be held at 10 a.m. before Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey. Deputy State's Attorney Donald W. Mason will represent the state.

Permit Issued

The City Engineering office yesterday issued a permit to Mrs. J. Homer Wilson, 105 Washington Street, for a building addition at 43-47 North Liberty Street.

The property is to be used for off-street parking and a warehouse. The warehouse will be a two-story concrete block and brick veneer building. Cost is estimated at $10,000.

Backbone Of Naval Reserve Division Here

Naval Reserve Chiefs Boast Long Service

With Local Unit Since Commissioning

Of the 179 men who are now a part of Cumberland Naval Reserve Surface Division 5-9, only the four chiefs were members of the division when the U. S. Naval and Marine Corps Reserves Training Center on McKaig's Hill was commissioned more than 14 years ago — on September 18, 1948.

The four chiefs are Chief Engineman Donald D. Wagoner, Springfield, W. Va.; Chief Shipfitter Lloyd E. Norris, 305 South Street; Chief Radioman Lewis D. Metz, 1308 Holland Street, and Chief Machinist Mate George E. Boore, 327 Fort Hill Avenue.

The careers of these four so-called "plank owners" of the Naval and Marine Corps Reserve Training Center are being emphasized because the division is now preparing for its annual inspection on April 3.

Surface Division 5-9 was activated on November 20, 1946, and reached its maximum authorized strength of 200 enlisted men, 10 division officers and five volunteer associate officers on June 27, 1947.

Center 15 Years Old

Ground was broken and construction started on the training center on July 24, 1947. Installation of equipment started on June 14, 1948. The installation was still incomplete at the time of the commissioning ceremonies on September 18, 1948.

Chief Metz, who is employed by the State Roads Commission, was a 1939 graduate of Allegany High School. He enlisted in the Navy on June 25, 1940, and was discharged exactly six years later.

The day after his discharge he enlisted in the U. S. Naval Reserve and in November 1946 joined the local reserve division. He was recalled to active duty during the Korean conflict from August 1950 until December 1951 and returned to the local division after this second period of active duty.

Chief Metz's wife, the former Miss Helen E. Noble, is a chief personnelman in the local surface division. Chief Metz belongs to B. P. O. Elks Lodge 63 and St. John's Lutheran Church.

Chief Is Restauranteur

Chief Wagoner, who is commander of Fort Ashby Post 6667, Veterans of Foreign Wars, owns and operates Wagoner's Ice and Restaurant on West Virginia Route 28, between Fort Ashby and Springfield.

The Springfield man had an active Navy career. He did convoy duty aboard the U. S. S. Apache in the Atlantic from September to December 1942. Then he was sent to the South Pacific where on patrol duty he participated in action at Guadalcanal, Treasury Island, Bougainville,

Two Supervisors Discuss Elementary Reading Plan

Presenting the explanation were Miss Elizabeth I. Flake and Miss Margaret E. Doak.

Miss Flake stressed at the beginning of their observations that reading is the most important single subject taught in the elementary schools because all other subjects are dependent upon the pupil's ability to read.

In each grade there is a basal reading program which all pupils are expected to complete. However, there are wide variations in the reading ability of children. Miss Flake commented that a typical third grade class was tested recently and children there varied from the first to the sixth grade level in ability to read.

As a consequence, an attempt is made to place pupils of comparable ability in the same classroom.

Miss Doak devoted much of her remarks to a comparison of individualized reading with ability-grouped reading methods. She cited the many advantages that are claimed for individualized reading.

Children choose what they read under this method. A wide variety and great number of books are needed. Reading occurs at the exact ability level of the child. Slow readers' choice of books is unnoticed because of the variety of books chosen. No child need hold up the whole group.

The elementary supervisors said most elementary classes complete their basal reading program for the school year by March. During the rest of the school year a good many teachers experiment with individualized reading.

Members of the school board were reminded by the supervisors that a nationally-recognized authority in the field of reading will be in Cumberland April 19 when the county teachers have their professional day program at Allegany High School. He is Dr. Harry Sartain of the University of Pittsburgh.

In closing their remarks, the elementary supervisors showed the school board members two charts showing the average scores of Allegany County third and sixth graders who recently took the Iowa test of basic skills.

Third graders of Allegany County averaged consistently above the national average. This was given at the end of the fourth month of the third grade and the county average was the equivalent of sixth months through the third grade.

Sixth graders of this county also averaged above the national mean although they fell below the national average in language usage and maps. The test measured language skills, work study skills and arithmetic skills.

Educators Give Strong Support To School Bill

By TOM SEPPY

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Educators reiterated their claim Wednesday that Maryland's emphasis for paying the cost of public education should be placed on pupils and not teachers.

Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, said he favored two bills before the General Assembly, one in the Senate and the other in the House, because "this is not a bill for teachers; it is a bill for children."

Pullen headed a list of 18 witnesses who testified before a joint public hearing of the Senate Finance and House Ways and Means committees in support of a program which would require an additional outlay of $14 million by the state.

Would Lower Exemptions

The program would be financed by lowering state income tax exemptions from $800 to $600.

Despite strong legislative backing—11 senators and 59 delegates sponsored the bills—Gov. Tawes said Sunday he could not lend his support to the program.

The governor said implementation of the program would require a substantial change in distribution of revenues to counties, which is now under study by the commission on state and county finances.

Robert Y. Dubel, associate executive secretary of the Maryland State Teachers Association, told the crowded House chamber that the legislation "carries an equitable tax feature which will fit into any pattern of finance devised by any commission."

Three Opponents

There were only three opponents to the measures, including Calvin W. Mowbray, president of the Maryland Municipal League.

Mowbray said his group was opposed to any program which would take money away from the muncipalities. He suggested that the legislators wait for the results of the study by the governor's commission before making any decision.

Present state aid is based on a complicated formula geared to a minimum salary program for teachers. It involves the number of classroom units in a county, the county's taxable wealth, and other factors.

The proposed program would base state aid on a minimum of $225 for each pupil unit which would be shared on a fifty-fifty basis by the state and the 23 counties and Baltimore City.

Tawes' Slots Bill Fails By 2 Votes

Lobbying Charged; Measure Could Be Reconsidered

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes' bill to abolish slot machines failed by two votes in the House of Delegates Wednesday night amid charges slot machine interests had swayed legislators through intense lobbying.

The bill, which had received a 93-29 vote of support on a key roll-call last Thursday, could muster only a 70-50 margin when it came up for final passage. There were 22 delegates not recorded.

It is believed the administration will attempt to shore up support and have the measure reconsidered Thursday.

Del. Thomas Hunter Lowe, D-Talbot, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, warned delegates they would bring public contempt on the legislature by the switch in sentiment.

He said that since the bill was supported so overwhelmingly last week, "the halls have been filled with slot operators and lobbyists to the extent that I sometimes thought they outnumbered delegates."

Prestige At Stake

"Not only is the administration's prestige riding on this bill, but so is the prestige of every member of the House," Lowe said. "If in between (the two rollcalls) this mass influx has changed us, what will the people think?"

Majority floor leader W. Dale Hess, D-Harford, said he was "shocked and amazed" at the change in the voting board since last Thursday.

Del. Richard Grumbacher, D-Washington, commented he was neither shocked nor amazed. "Money does not shock, surprise or amaze me," he said. "Sometimes it scares me though." Grumbacher said he feared for the political future of Maryland.

Delegates who explained their votes against the bill insisted it was a local option matter for the four Southern Maryland counties which legalize slots and which would lose them over a five-year period.

They also said it was inconsistent to outlaw one form of gambling in one area and let it flourish in other forms elsewhere, including state-sponsored horse racing.

Big Switches

The biggest switches from last Thursday's rollcall, which came on rejecting an amendment to exempt three Southern Maryland counties, came from Baltimore County and Baltimore City.

The county, which had registered nine votes with the governor last Thursday, gave him only three Wednesday night with seven opposed and three not voting. Baltimore City, which had 27 voting with the administration before, showed only 10 Wednesday night with 17 against and 11 not voting.

Southern Maryland slot machine operators joined the packed house galleries to witness the proceedings.

After the voting, Joseph S. Kaufman, former depufy assistant attorney general who is the registered lobbyist for an Anne Arundel County slot machine firm, approached Hess on the house floor.

"I'm not as bad a lobbyist as you think I am, am I?" he commented.

"We're going to have another round tomorrow, boy, and you'd better keep working," the majority leader rejoined.
